ORDERS DRAFTING BE NOT HAMPERED BY BARUCH'S LIST

Crowder Holds Boards Shall Not Be Bound by New Industrial Classifications.

ADVISERS IN EACH DISTRICT

Labor and Agriculture Experts and a Third Associate Will Help the Boards.

EXEMPTION RULES STRICT

Registrant's Time of Employment Is to Show if He Is Avoiding Military Service.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The more important regulations under which 13,000,000 registrants in the new draft are to be classified were made public tonight by Provost Marshal General Crowder. They provide ample opportunity for all registrants who feel that they are vital to the national welfare in their present occupations to claim deferred listing; but, on the other hand, they state emphatically that wholesale exemptions will not be granted at the request of any industry or Governmental agency without the most thorough investigation.

General Crowder makes it evident by the wording of his regulations that he is determined to have the draft run by his office and the district boards, and that, while information supplied by other Governmental departments, such as the War Industries Board, which yesterday issued a long industrial preferential list, will be considered, the final decisions are to be made by the officials and experts of the War Department.

In connection with the Baruch priority list of sixty-nine selected industries, General Crowder said that the district boards would not have their hands tied by such rulings, which would be used simply in supplementing other information collected by the boards in determining whether industries were essential, and whether the employes who claimed deferred classification or for whom deferred classification was asked were vital to such industries. To this extent at least the publication of the regulations was in the nature of a reply to the Baruch preferential list and the statement which accompanied it.

Three Advisers Provided For.

The regulations then proceed to set forth the manner in which General Crowder and those under him intend to solve the problem. Each district board which will decide the questions of deferred classifications will be aided in its researches by three advisers, one to be appointed by the Department of Labor, one by the Department of Agriculture, and the third by the district board.

It shall be the duty of these advisers to confer with managers and heads of various industries and get at the actual conditions. One thing upon which General Crowder will insist is that none who is not especially equipped for work in certain vital plants, and who has entered such plants apparently to escape military service, shall receive preferential treatment.

The regulations are broad enough to make it possible for men in almost any occupation which they feel is vital to the welfare of the nation to set forth their claims for deferred ranking. Such claims, however, will not be passed upon in an offhand manner, and men at the head of certain vital industries and institutions and commercial businesses will have to prove to the satisfaction of the district boards that the war program will be crippled seriously by putting their employes in the army, if they hope to get large numbers of men upon the deferred list.

The scope of the district boards is broad enough to permit them to grant special listing to men they believe are essential in their present positions, even though no exemption claim is made by or in behalf of the registrant. The regulations also make it possible for bankers and professional men to set down exemption claims upon which the district boards will then pass. It is understood that the district boards will demand convincing evidence that an industry or occupation is "necessary" before granting special treatment.

It is possible that industries and occupations not included in the Baruch preferential list will be accepted as "necessary" by the district boards, for the regulations issued by General Crowder permit of this. The boards also have it within their power to reject claims which may be made under the Baruch listing and declare the industry or occupation among the less essential.

Here are the extracts from the revised selective service regulations which General Crowder sent today to all district boards:

Rules of Classification.

"Classification with Respect to Engagement in Industries, Occupations, or Employments, Including Agriculture."

"Section 80. Principles governing classification with respect to engagement in industries, occupations, or employments, including agriculture, found to be necessary to the maintenance of the military establishment or the effective operation of the military forces or the maintenance of national interest during the emergency.

"District boards are charged with the duty of selecting the individuals whose engagement in industry, including agriculture, or whose occupations or employments, including agriculture, are necessary to the maintenance of the military establishment or the effective operation of the military forces or the maintenance of national interest during the emergency, and who are not to be called for military service, and of classifying all other registrants in such manner as to secure the delivery of the quotas required of the district.

"In selecting those engaged in industry, including agriculture, or in occupations or employments, including agriculture, necessary to the maintenance of the military establishment or the effective operation of the military forces or the maintenance of national interest during the emergency, the district board shall be governed by the usefulness of the individual to the efficient prosecution of the war, his order of liability for military service, and the necessity for the continuity of the business, industry, or employment in which he is engaged.

"Each district board shall have authority to classify any registrant in Class I, Class II, Class III, Class IV, or Class V, but shall not place in Class I any registrant who has been placed in Class IV or Class V by the decision of a district board, a board of appeals, or the President, except upon the written order of the President, or of the Provost Marshal General, or of the Director of Operations, or of the Adjutant General, or of the Chief of Staff.

"Registrants shall be placed in Class I in the order of their liability for military service, except that registrants found to be necessary to the maintenance of the military establishment or the effective operation of the military forces or the maintenance of national interest during the emergency shall be placed in Class II, Class III, or Class IV, as the case may be.

comfortable time, for the British guns, in addition to laying down their shells on the Germans between the British infantry positions and the Hindenburg line, are vigorously hammering the enemy's rear. The British artillery, firing on the forward enemy areas, has created great havoc.

Foe Looks on Dugouts as Traps.

Some newly captured German documents disclose that the enemy is not quite satisfied with himself or with his defenses, and that his line is honeycombed with deep dugouts. An order issued by a German General of division, apparently acting under orders from the higher command, expressly forbids the troops to occupy dugouts which descend lower than eight steps underground. The General appears to have been very much worried on the subject and goes into great detail in ordering such dugouts closed up, or otherwise made useless for the troops.

The German command has discovered that its troops are unable to emerge from deep dugouts in time to meet infantry attacks following on bombardments, so quickly do the allied soldiers, co-operating with the tanks, move these days. Thus it would seem that the Hindenburg line may require considerable alteration.

More fires are reported at various places along the front, including Douai. Further corroboration of the enemy's shortage of ammunition has been obtained from gunner prisoners, who said they had been receiving only limited allotments daily.

Further indications of the growing discontent in certain sections of the German Army have been received. A number of Germans recently captured were formerly in captivity in Russia. They express themselves most bitterly against their military leaders. They say they had been told they would be used on the line of communication, but instead they were put through the field recruit departments and placed as infantry in the trenches.

Many Germans are becoming increasingly worried over the prospects of Winter, not only for themselves but for their families, who in many cases, according to the Germans who were captured, are near starvation.

Nearly all the German soldiers going home on leave are taking with them to their families whatever food they can lay their hands on at the front and in as large quantities as possible. Many captured letters to the Germans at the front mourn the lack of food and warm clothing.

The enemy has by no means even started to recover from the shocks he has received day after day since the British offensive began, and it is considered more than likely that new divisions have been thrown in through the desire to stiffen the German morale quite as much as to stiffen the line for a time.

Most Fighting Near Gouzeaucourt.

The principal activity today was in the area around Gouzeaucourt. The high ground overlooking Gouzeaucourt and the wood of the same name were captured. The British guns from this section are able to direct an enfilading fire on the enemy positions to the south.

British forces have advanced to the east of Roisel, about seven miles east of Péronne, and Roisel is now under a heavy fire from the German long-range guns.

The enemy is reported to be leaving Heudicourt, southwest of Gouzeaucourt, in response to continuous pressure.

The crowded enemy trenches at Oppy, east of Arras, are being heavily gassed. Fires continue to burn at some places, and within the last few hours fires have been observed in Douai.

British Gains in Flanders.

In Flanders the British have gained another 1,500 yards to the west of Wytschaete, and from reliable sources it is learned that the Germans have removed virtually all their artillery to the east of the River Lys, to cover the lines they held prior to their April offensive.

West of the Lys the Germans had left only old or captured guns which they had planned to destroy or abandon when the time came.

CAPTURED MAIL SHOWS POOR GERMAN MORALE

Soldiers Write of Intolerable Hardships and Desire to Desert or Surrender.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 9, (Associated Press.) Some idea of the state of the German morale may be had from the following quotations picked at random from captured documents and letters. One German wrote home—but he did not get a chance to post the letter—as follows:

"I have been in the line for fourteen weeks. Johann is being well looked after. I wish I, too, was a prisoner of war."

Another letter reads:

"When we retired, two Alsatians remained behind. If they had only said they were going to desert, many more would have stayed with them."

One message says: "Our men are completely exhausted and can hardly stand upright."

Another says: "The men cannot keep their eyes open owing to strain and fatigue. They must have relief."

Still another soldier writes: "We hear that the Bavarians and Saxons no longer wish to fight. How is it going to end?"

Captured orders indicate that the German air service is being well combed out, and that airplane mechanicians, much to their disgust, are being drafted into the infantry. One mechanician wrote to his brother in great detail what he should do in order not to be removed from the air forces. It appears that even the anti-aircraft batteries are parting with as much as 10 per cent. of their effectives, so that more men may be had for the infantry.

FRENCH FACE GERMANS IN THEIR OLD TRENCHES

Close to Hindenburg Line Along the Forests of Coucy and St. Gobain.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY, Sept. 8, (Associated Press.)—The troops of General Mangin between the Aisne and the Oise Rivers are now virtually behind their old wire entanglements in their old trenches of 1917. All along the edge of the Forest of Coucy and through the western horn of the St. Gobain Forest the Germans are only 200 yards away, and in some places they are in positions in the old Hindenburg line that are plainly visible from the heights west of Coucy-le-Château.

The Oise-Aisne Canal and the River Ailette, that runs between the heights and the château and forms a sort of advanced post of the German main line six miles further back, at Fresnes, were not abandoned voluntarily, but were wrested from the enemy after a struggle of five days, during which five different German divisions tried to hold off a single French division.

"The divisions that tried to prevent the crossing of the canal and river," The Associated Press correspondent was informed by a French officer, who has participated in most of the campaigns of the war, "accomplished the greatest concentration of machine-gun fire that has been witnessed in this war."

The French troops were obliged to face that fire at a range of twenty yards in order to cross the Oise-Aisne Canal and the Ailette. Pioneers throwing bridges over the canal seventeen yards wide suffered not only from the quickfirers, but were in good range of German grenades. It required two days to advance to the Ailette from the village Pont St. Mard, and four days to gain 500 yards of ground. The machine guns were massed thickly all along the canal in front of Quincy and in the woods, thickets, and marshes.

The French engineers finally succeeded in bridging the canal, and over the first bridge an enraged sergeant charged the Germans around a machine-gun position and single-handed made twelve of them prisoners. Such was the work that went on both along the river and the canal during the five days, each day exhausting Germany's best divisions.

ONE GUN SCATTERS BATTALION

Retreating Body of Germans Forced to Flee in Disorganization.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—An incident showing how the Germans are sustaining serious losses in men during their retreat in the present battle is reported from the field. Three staff officers advanced in front of the British lines in a certain area to examine the positions ahead. At about 2,500 yards distance they observed an enemy battalion retiring in a formation of fours, accompanied by artillery and transport.

The officers immediately communicated with the British artillery and a field gun was rushed up. Opening fire over open sights the gun did great execution among the retreating enemy, who became completely disorganized and fled.

It is reported that the German infantry is always complaining about its artillery shelling its own front line. The commander of a German infantry unit placed a white notice board in front of the line of the sector in which his troops were operating, in a position visible to the artillerymen, hoping thus to avoid short range shelling from the German guns.

Evidence indicates that the Germans are again combing out their air service very rigorously. There are two suggestions made in accounting for this. The first is the urgent need for the enemy to strengthen his depleted infantry battalions, while the second is that the Germans have realized that they cannot hope to obtain the mastery of the air.

PREDICTS WINTER CAMPAIGN.

No Rest for Foe, Says Clemenceau Paper—St. Quentin Defense Stiff.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—If the Germans are expecting to have a respite from attack either during the Autumn or through the Winter, they are counting without their host, says Premier Clemenceau's newspaper, L'Homme Libre, in commenting upon the military situation. They made their great trial last Spring to outspeed the United States, it points out, but lost the race to a competitor which was too fast for them.

Nevertheless, the newspaper anticipates a certain slowing up of the fighting because of the necessity of bringing forward the necessary infantry support in front of the new positions which the Germans are occupying and which they are expected to defend stubbornly.

The regrouping of the allied forces will not be delayed, L'Homme Libre predicts, as the movement of the troops is based upon an excellent method through whic hthe allied Commander in Chief was able uninterruptedly to retain the initiative for a period of more than six weeks.

In connection with the probable further course of the fighting in the immediate future, the Echo de Paris points out that the allied command is not of the type to gamble with fortune and that it is not likely to hurry an effort to capture lines so strongly held that losses disproportionate to the results would be risked in taking them.

The Germans evidently intend to defend St. Quentin energetically, and are fighting in the approaches to the town, besides regrouping their forces and concentrating numerous divisions in its protection. The capture of the place, however, is declared by commentators here to be the intenttion of the French commanad.

The Germans are likewise hurriedly strengthening their defences around Laon, according to La Liberte. In the region of Chavigny the Germans are reported to be installing thick barbed wire, digging deep trenches, and accumulating munitions of all sorts, as if for a lengthy defense, in the great underground storage places of the Nanteuil plateau. The entire region north of the Ailette from the vicinity of the Laon-Soissons Railway is a mass of guns which the enemy has emplaced, the reports say, while north of Craonne numerous bateries of 150 and 170 millimetre pieces are concentrated.

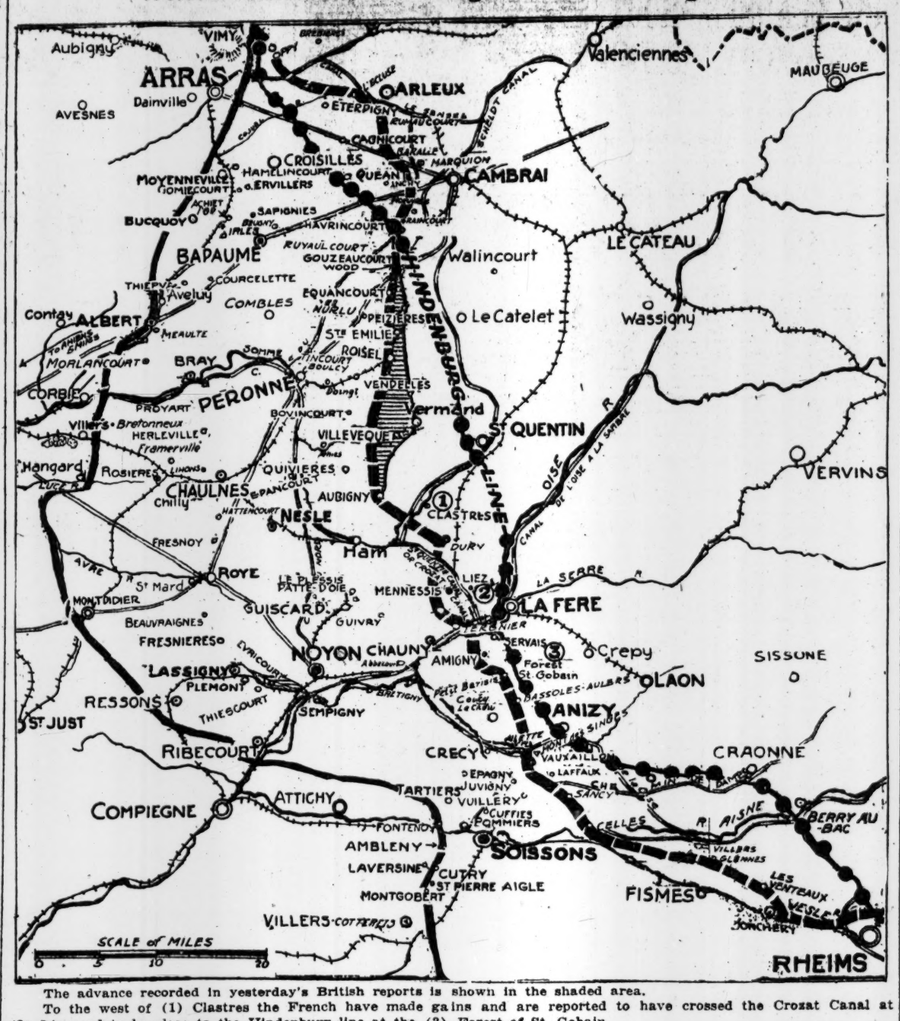
On the British front the advance, it is pointed out, has entirely freed Amiens from gunfire, the only attacks on that base being by airplanes. The bases of Arras and Hazebrouck are still under long-range gunfire. Advices received here indicate that the region around the railway station at Lens is occupied by the British. The advices also predict that the fall of Armentieres may be expected before long.

Pershing Reports Gun Duels Sunday

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—General Pershing's communiqué for Sunday follows:

Section A—Aside from patrol encounters and heavy artillery fighting south of the Aisne there is nothing to report from the sectors occupied by our troops.

Where Allies Are Nearing the Hindenburg Line



The advance recorded in yesterday's British reports is shown in the shaded area.
To the west of (1) Clastres the French have made gains and are reported to have crossed the Crozat Canal at (2) Liez and to be close to the Hindenburg line at the (3) Forest of St. Gobain.
At all of these strongly threatened points the Germans are believed to be massing fresh troops.

LOOK FOR EARLY BLOW AT PERSHING'S ARMY

Washington Observers Expect Foe Counterstroke to Relieve Pressure from Allies.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—With the German Army standing today substantially in the positions it occupied before March 21, when its greatest offensive was launched, officials here appeared to be certain that the next few days would see the plans of the opposing commanders revealed.

The statement in the German official communiqué that "our new lines" have everywhere been occupied, receives only one construction here. Apparently it was intended to mean that the retirement had come to an end and that the Germans expected to stop the allied advance along the old front.

In that event, it was said today, the light forces of the French, British, and American armies would soon reach this defensive position and subsequent operations would quickly show how Marshal Foch proposed to assail the problem that once baffled the French and British General Staffs—the breaking of this advanced line of defense set up by the enemy on Belgian and French soil.

There is a feeling among some officials that the enemy is likely to signalize his intention to stand fast by striking back hard at the advancing French and British forces, or even by an attack at some other point designed to relieve pressure rather than to achieve any decisive result in the way of capturing towns. It is argued that if the German high command has made available a sufficient reserve force by its great withdrawal to permit such operations, a limited drive, possibly on the front held by General Pershing's army beyond Verdun, might well be thought advisable.

On the allied side, it remains to be seen whether Marshal Foch plans a flanking operation on a wide front to turn the enemy out of his new lines and keep him moving back, or will continue to hit at weak spots all along the front. Opinion here is that the larger enterprise is the more probable, since virtually the entire American Army is available as a fresh, hard-hitting force with which to deliver a coup aimed at the breaking of the German front.

There is no doubt that many officers here regard the days immediately ahead as probably the crucial period of the whole battle of 1918.

CLEMENCEAU AT ARMY FRONT.

Visits the Belgian King and Sees Armentieres Burning.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—Premier Clemenceau, accompanied by General Mordacq, head of the Military Cabinet of the French Ministry of War, spent Saturday and Sunday at the front. On Saturday morning the Premier visited, with the King of the Belgians, one of the most interesting spots on the Belgian front.

The Belgian King and Queen entertained the Premier at luncheon, and M. Clemenceau and the King conferred until late in the afternoon. The Premier then visited the devastated regions of Kemmel, from Bailleul to Neuve Eglise, recently reconquered by the British and their allies. From a point of vantage he watched the operations against Armentieres, which is burning, and he could see the first group of houses in the southwestern part of Lille.

On Sunday Premier Clemenceau visited Noyon, and spent the rest of the day walking or motoring in the region of Chauny, Coucy-le-Château, and Soissons.

Upon learning that Abel Ferry and Gaston Dumesnil, members of the French Chamber of Deputies, had been wounded, the Premier visited them at an ambulance immediately in the rear of the lines where the wounded Deputies were being attended. Deputy Dumesnil, who was severely wounded, was decorated with the Cross of the Legion of Honor, while Deputy Ferry was made a Chevalier of the Legion.

RAIN IMPEDES AIR FIGHTING.

But British Bring Down Five Enemy Machines and Lose None.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The official statement on the activities of the British flying forces over the battle zone, issued tonight, says:

On Sept. 8 the sky was overcast, and there were frequent rain storms with high wind. Our airplanes carried on their work for the artillery with difficulty, and also accomplished a number of reconnaissances and contact patrols. Five tons of bombs were dropped during the day.

There was no flying at night. The activity of the enemy's machines was very slight, but we brought down five and drove two down out of control. None of our machines are missing.

KEEN IN HARASSING GERMAN RETREAT

the splendid support which Haig and Pétain have given to the Generalissimo, been forced constantly to expedite his plans and has had to pay a far higher price than he intended for permission to carry them through.

It is interesting to compare this latest withdrawal of the Germans with their retreat over the same ground eighteen months ago. On Aug. 21 last the Germans were approximately on the line from which they began their retreat in February, 1917. That retreat to the section of the main Hindenburg line between Cambrai and St. Quentin was not completed until May 10, so that in 1917 it took us about twelve weeks to force the Germans back over the same ground that we have just driven them across in three, and to complete their retreat eighteen months ago we had to fight the great battle of Arras.

During those twelve weeks of 1917 we captured 23,000 prisoners, 260 guns, 225 trench mortars, and 550 machine guns. The battle of Arras had up to Aug. 8 of this year been our most successful effort in the war, and we were quite rightly very proud and pleased with these captures.

The French and Americans have not yet published their captures during September, but our own in the four weeks since Aug. 8 now amount to about 77,000 prisoners, nearly 800 guns, 6,000 machine guns, and about 1,000 trench mortars, and these results have been obtained at a cost which is enormously less than we had to pay in the Spring of 1917. Nothing could show more clearly than this comparison the change which has come over the face of the war.

Everywhere in the German press apologists for their defeat, while paying here and there grudging tributes to Foch's generalship, describe the German withdrawal as a necessary precaution in view of the overwhelming numerical superiority of the Allies. Nothing could be wider of the mark.

We know that without the Americans the allied forces in the west were in a numerical inferiority to the enemy, and we know also that although the Americans have taken a distinguished part in the allied victories and have shown that in prowess and skill in the field they are second to none they have as yet appeared in battle in comparatively small numbers. The Germans have yet to learn the weight of the American Army.

In the air we have a marked and growing superiority, but a superiority which is as yet only at the beginning of its development. We are unquestionably superior in tanks, and it is probable, thanks to the promptitude with which our losses in the Spring were made good; to the steady flow of guns from England to France; to the growth of the American artillery, and to the heavy losses which the Germans have recently suffered, that we are now somewhat superior in gun power. But it is quite untrue that we have as yet any great superiority in the number of troops which can be thrown into battle.

It is not by weight of numbers, but by generalship that Foch has accomplished so much. It does not require genius to beat down an enemy by sheer weight of numbers. The greatest testimony to Foch's genius is that he has kept the battle going always increasingly in his favor since July 18; that he has extended the front of battle in a way and on a scale which has never before been approached on the western front; that he has never allowed the enemy time to recover from his successive blows, and that he has done all this with such a slight margin of superiority.

Official Reports of the Day's Operations

British

LONDON, Sept. 9.

Night Report—This morning advanced detachments of English and New Zealanders attacked and carried the German positions on the high ground between Peizière and the Havrincourt Wood. After sharp fighting, in the course of which heavy counterattacks were repulsed with losses, we gained the old British trench line on the ridge overlooking Gouzeaucourt and captured Gouzeaucourt Wood.

On the left of our attack other English troops successfully advanced our line in the eastern portion of the Havrincourt Wood. We captured a number of prisoners in these operations.

On the remainder of the British front there was fighting on certain sectors. Hostile attacks against posts we recently established west of La Bassée were repulsed.

Rain fell heavily last night and again today. The weather continues stormy.

Day Report—A hostile raiding party was successfully repulsed last night north of Arleux-en-Gohelle.

With the exception of artillery activity in different localities on both sides, particularly in the neighborhood of the Arras-Cambrai road and in the La Bassée Canal and Ypres sectors, there is nothing to report.

French

PARIS, Sept. 9.

Day Report—North of the Somme we have made further progress to the east of Avesne in the direction of Clastres, and have occupied La Motte Farm. Our forces crossed the Crozat Canal in front of Liez.

Between the Oise and the Aisne the night was marked by a violent reaction of enemy infantry and artillery. Two strong German counterattacks launched in the region of Laffaux were repulsed, eighty prisoners, belonging to five different regiments, being left in our hands.

In Champagne we executed a raid in the region of Mont Sans Nom, taking prisoners.

A German raid was checked to the east of Auberive.

German

BERLIN, Sept. 9, (via London.)

Night Report—On both sides of the Péronne-Cambrai road renewed British attacks failed.

Day Report—Local engagements occurred north of Ploegsteert Wood and La Bassée Canal. North of Armentières the enemy again attacked. We repulsed him and took prisoners.

In the Arleux-Havrincourt Canal sector artillery activity and reconnoitring engagements are reported.

South of the Péronne-Cambrai road the enemy continued his attacks, with the employment of strong forces, against the Gouzeaucourt-Epehy line to the north of Templeux. The attacks failed, with heavy losses.

Yesterday our advanced troops contested against a superior enemy force an advance across St. Simon and the Crozat Canal.

Reconnoitring engagements occurred between the Oise and the Ailette. Between the Ailette and the Aisne, after repeated fruitless partial attacks, the enemy advanced toward evening to the attack in close formation. He was repulsed on the whole front, with sanguinary losses, in part in hand-to-hand fighting and in part by counterthrusts.

Between the Aisne and the Vesle partial attacks failed.

In Champagne there were local enemy advances.

Five airplanes were brought down out of a British squadron which advanced to the attack.

During August 565 enemy airplanes were brought down on the German fronts, 62 of them by our anti-aircraft guns. Captive balloons to the number of 52 also were brought down. Of the total number, 251 airplanes are in our possession. The remainder were observed to fall on the other side of the enemy lines. We lost in battle 153 airplanes and 36 captive balloons.

POLITICAL STORM GATHERS IN BRITAIN

Threatened Coal and Shipbuilding Crises Are Blamed Upon the Cabinet.

MUCH SUFFERING PREDICTED

Government Accused of Assuming to Allies and Neutrals Obligations It Could Not Fulfill.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—"Two black clouds are gathering," says a London paper this evening, "a coal crisis and a shipbuilding crisis." Behind them are the elements of a political crisis.

Charges that the War Cabinet is responsible for this parlous state of affairs because of its shortsighted and unstable policy are openly made by The Manchester Guardian and The Daily Chronicle, both of which papers have loyally stood by the coalition Government, while reserving the right of independent criticism.

The War Cabinet, it is alleged, undertook obligations to allies and to neutrals which it could not fulfill and regardless of conditions that it ought to have foreseen. Instead of safeguarding the supply of coal, which is a most vital raw material for the war, the policy of the War Cabinet made reduction in output inevitable.

Before the present year the miners furnished over 380,000 recruits for the army, and last Spring 75,000 more skilled men were withdrawn. The War Cabinet, which frequently changes its policy on the man-power problem, is now endeavoring to comb skilled miners out of the army. Unless it adopts very stern measures, it will not succeed. The army does not willingly give up fit men, and some of the men do not want to give up the army.

"Will the War Cabinet," asks The Chronicle, "realize its responsibilities before it is too late? The present crisis has been brought about chiefly by the panicky action of the War Cabinet following upon the German March offensive. The proper relation of the claims upon us for men and material was upset. It must now be readjusted."

"Nobody will blame the Government for taking desperate measures at the moment of the German March offensive," says The Manchester Guardian, "but were they not continued when they were no longer necessary? Was not the military crisis of the moment, so far as that was one of men, tided over when the American Government agreed to brigade its troops with the British and French armies, and the military crisis of the future solved when the American Government undertook to send men across at the rate of 250,000 a month?

"These decisions of the American Government were entirely new factors, and they have completely transformed the military man-power situation. Nevertheless, the Government is still carrying out many of the panic measures which were adopted under stress of the events of last March.

"Governmental reluctance to review its past and the War Office desire to maintain as big an army as possible are advanced as an explanation of persistence in a policy which is no longer justifiable. It is no business of the War Office to adjust competitive demands of various national needs and still less to assess the contributions of the various nations. That is the business of the War Cabinet alone in so far as the former point is concerned, and of the War Cabinet in consultation with the Allies in regard to fixing the limit of Britain's military contribution of the common cause at the point where it can maximize its total contribution.

"The present distribution of allied effort is faulty and wasteful. Fault and waste are most glaringly illustrated by the coal and shipbuilding crisis, which are reacting immediately and gravely upon the whole conduct of the war. The initiative, therefore, rests with the British Government, and it would be a dereliction of duty on its part if it omits to review the distribution of its war effort in the light of the transformation brought about by America's gigantic partnership."

Generally speaking, it is believed that remissness in expanding and putting into practice the theory of unified control is at the bottom of the present difficulties, which imperil the whole foundation of the allied cause; for while the British population will this Winter suffer from lack of fuel and light their sufferings, as The Chronicle points out, will be small compared with the misery in store for the French and Italian people.

In Italy the production of munitions is already suffering from shortage of coal. Italy requires 600,000 tons of coal per month for war purposes, and it is not getting it.

The official price for English coal in the great City of Milan is $70 a ton, and in many parts of the country it is already $100 a ton.

The forests are being denuded, including the sacrifice of olive trees, a source of national wealth.

American insistence on the necessity of unified control is well known over here and it is increasingly recognized that the responsibility of opposing it is a heavy one which will be severely judged when accounts are made up.

By comparison with this great issue it is merely amusing to find The Star arguing that the coal and shipbuilding crisis are both "direct consequences of the combing-out stunts conducted by the Harmsworth press."

The British people, says the radical organ, "are tired of Government by stunts. The Government failed to see the manpower problem as a whole because they have been slaves of the stuntmongers."

PARIS WATCHES ST. GOBAIN.

Eagerly Discusses the Culmination of Foch's Big Plan.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—Paris is tingling with expectancy today over the culmination of the previous moves in the Foch offensive in probably the greatest pitched battle of the war. It was a rainy day, favorable for studying the map on which the war sharps laid down the latest communiqué and made their forecasts for the fateful week.

The St. Gobain massif is the centre and backbone of the German position in France. Toward it all our moves between the Somme and Rheims converge, and on this huge battlefield are five French armies.

From the northwest to the southwest they are the armies of Debeney, Humbert, Mangin, De Goutte, and Berthelot. Mangin has the centre, and in his encircling movement American troops are aiding, as they are also on the south bank of the Aisne. The whole operation is under the immediate command of Fayolle, but it is Foch's and Pétain's battle.

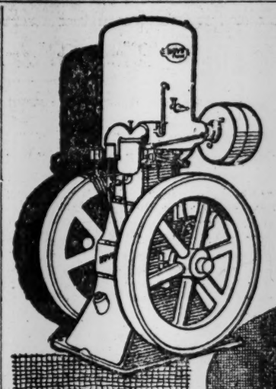
Count Bertrand de Lesseps Killed.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—Captain Count Bertrand de Lesseps was killed while leading a reconnoitring party of his regiment, the 20th Light Horse, before Ecuvilly.

He was the third son of Ferdinand de Lesseps.

MEN MUST REGISTER SEPT. 12.

Every man past his 18th birthday and who has not yet reached his 46th, except those already registered or in service, must register for the selective service draft on Sept. 12.



MINING coal, pumping oil, making guns or erecting buildings—the man who needs power needs it quickly.

More than profits are at stake today, more than business itself. Fighters' lives depend on the prompt supplying of war needs.

LONDON EXPECTS STAND ON NEW GERMAN LINE

Foe Announcement That "We Are Everywhere in Our Positions" Is Thus Interpreted.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—The statement in the German communiqué that "we are everywhere in our new positions" is interpreted here as implying that General Ludendorff is of the belief that the German retirement is now ended and that it is his intention to try to make a stand on the present line. Reports from Paris that the German artillery today was thundering along the whole battle-front as it had not done for several weeks tended to confirm this view of General Ludendorff's supposed intentions.

The belief is expressed here that the Allies are still holding the initiative and will compel the enemy to continue his retirement. It is pointed out that although the Germans are holding the Messines Ridge, forming the northern bulwark of their line, the French seem to be steadily manoeuvring them from before the Laon-La Fère positions and the St. Gobain Forest, which form the southern buttress of the Hindenburg line, and there are no indications of any cessation of this pressure.

WARNS OF STORIES OF GERMAN UNREST

State Department Sanctions Denial of Such Rumors by Minister Morris.

FAITH IN ARMY PERSISTS

People Neither Rebellious Nor on the Verge of Starvation, Says Envoy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—A warning to the American people not to be misled into believing that the German people are on the verge of starvation and revolution or into the delusion that the German military power has yet cracked was authorized by the State Department today. It took the form of a signed statement from Ira Nelson Morris of Chicago, the American Minister to Sweden, who is in Washington on leave of absence.

The importance of the statement is to be found in the fact that it was issued officially with the sanction of the department. Unless the statement made by Minister Morris reflected the opinion of this Government, no such sanction would have been given.

It is believed that the statement was put out not only to controvert erroneous notions that may have arisen in the minds of Americans as a result of the flood of stories, mostly based on statements made in the German Government-controlled newspapers, regarding the internal situation in Germany, but also as an initial step by this Government in the direction of checkmating the Berlin Government's moves in the direction of a peace offensive.

As American Minister to Stockholm Mr. Morris has been in an exceptionally good position to gather information regarding conditions in Germany. His statement follows:

"I have heard reports in the press since my return home to the effect that Germany is on the verge of starvation, and I find this to be the opinion of many with whom I come in daily contact. There can be no question that there is a shortage of most of the essentials of life, but to state that this borders on the verge of starvation is erroneous wholly unprepared to find Finland comparatively well fed, with prices not more than a third of those prevailing neous and misleading. I base this statement on many reports from reliable sources that have reached me in Stockholm.

"There is no doubt that in many parts of Germany there is a marked scarcity of food and that the civilian population has been reduced to the minimum ration, but it still receives sufficient for existence. Conditions are better in the rural districts, particularly as regards the farmers and landowners, even in the northern part of Germany where the scarcity is most felt. In the southern part conditions improve still more, and resorts and hotels there still serve meals at moderate prices.

"In the case of the army, there has been but slight deprivation; this has been fed at the expense of the civilian population.

"In German Poland, in manufacturing districts, and in more densely populated parts there has been suffering, quite visible in the emaciation of the people, which has naturally impaired the efficiency of the German workman, who no longer possesses full vigor, but it is a mistake to believe that this has provoked a strong current toward revolution, or any general lessening of the loyalty of the people. They still possess faith in the invincibility of the military power, being purposely kept in ignorance of the real conditions on the Western front, not only as regard German reverses, but also the full significance of America's entry into the war.

"It is to the advantage of our country and our cause that we should know the actual conditions which face us in this great crusade for democracy, so that we can more effectively direct our effort toward victory.

"The people of the United States are resolute and determined. The country should realize that its entire energy must be put into the struggle, and must not be relaxed for a single instant. There is no doubt of victory so long as these moves by Germany are plainly understood."

TURKEY GETS GERMAN LOAN.

Finance Minister Announces New Advance of $198,000,000.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 9.—The Turkish Minister of Finance has announced that Turkey has concluded a fresh loan from the German Government for 45,000,000 Turkish pounds, the Berlin Vossische Zeitung states.

The conditions are identical with those of previous loans.

approached the town from the rear some time in advance of other forces moving in another direction. Completely surrounded the Americans fought their way through, but found themselves imbedded in deep swamps, through which they struggled for more than two days.

FAKE ALL NEWS IN RUSSIA.

Reds Feed People with Wild Yarns of Outside World's Condition.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 8 (Associated Press.)—The lack of reliable information possessed by Finland and Sweden concerning internal affairs in Russia amazed the American and Italian refugees who have just arrived here from Russian territory. They were likewise much surprised to find Finland and Sweden in such a normal condition.

The Bolshevist and German newspapers and propagandists have the field all to themselves in supplying Russia with what information they choose regarding outside affairs, and they also monopolize the reports going out of the country. Bolshevist Russia now stands in absolute telegraphic isolation from the rest of the world, with the single exception of the outlet through Germany. Telegraphing is no longer possible through the Ukraine, Finland, Siberia, or north Russian ports. Consequently the Bolshevist wireless service and the German-censored and German-colored dispatches alone supply the outside world with Russian news.

As a matter of fact, there is constant friction between the Bolsheviki and the Germans over the transmission of information, and they are making wholesale charges and countercharges of unfairness in the treatment of the news.

Meantime the neutral nations, as well as the belligerents, are suffering from the pernicious campaign of falsification. Little foreign news is given to Russia except that which indicates weakness on the part of the Entente Powers and the strength of the Central Empires. The Bolsheviki have not only suppressed all the opposition newspapers, but the Government now actually prints and controls the few journals that are still appearing in Petrograd and Moscow.

The Associated Press correspondent at Moscow, who left Russia with the recently-arrived party and is filing this dispatch, can testify that the Americans remaining in Russia were treated to many announcements that the Indians were opposing conscription all over America and that the United States was again in the throes of Indian war. The people of the United States were also described as starving for the lack of such commodities as sugar and flour, and general predictions were made that the allied activities on the western and Italian fronts would fail because the United States and Canada could not furnish the necessary bread.

Such stories were so ridiculous that they gained no credence among the educated foreigners. Neither did these believe the wild reports of wholesale starvation in England, where persons were pictured as falling dead in the principal London streets from hunger. Finland and Sweden, concerning which most of the foreigners in Russia had little knowledge, were represented to be in such distress from food riots that the American, Italian, and Belgian refugees in Soviet Russia, and to discover that conditions were even better in Sweden.

Germany and Austria are denounced as fiercely as the Entente by the Bolshevist press, whose constant aim is to create the impression that all the world is starving and demanding a proletariat Government similar to that existing in Russia. Japan, China, and Siam are represented as undergoing widespread revolutions.

Instead of there being a demand for a Bolshevist régime in Finland, as the Soviet papers represent, nine-tenths of the Finns throw up their hands in horror when Bolshevism is mentioned. They express a willingness to accept almost any kind of a Government rather than undergo another period of riot and bloodshed such as that in which the Russian Reds had involved them. Most of the Finns, it appears, are not Monarchists. It is declared that probably not more than 25 per cent. of them, and these mostly in the vicinity of Helsingfors, desire to see Finland governed by a King. Even these prefer a Scandinavian ruler. The Republicans, however, are not willing to assert themselves now lest the Red reign of terror be renewed.

The Bolshevist idea is equally forbidding to the great majority of the Swedes, who have profited by Finland's experience and are paying no attention to the violent propaganda the Bolshevist agents are conducting in Stockholm.

TAKES LENINE'S PLACE.

Kameneff Made Acting Premier During Chief's Enforced Absence.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 1, (Associated Press.)—Premier Lenine's removal temporarily from the head of the Bolshevist Government at a time when it is in such a precarious state threatens to shorten its existence. The Premier's bullet wounds, inflicted by Dora Kaplan, a Social Revolutionary, are so serious that it will be many weeks before he can return to his desk if he recovers.

In the meantime Leo Kameneff, Vice President of the Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates, has been appointed to act in Lenine's place. This appointment undoubtedly will revive the anti-Semitic agitation against the Soviet Government, which had been held in check somewhat by having a Gentile Premier.

Kameneff is a brother-in-law of War Minister Trotsky, being a brother of Mrs. Trotsky. With him in the Premiership, with Trotsky holding the portfolios of War and Navy and with Sverdloff as head of the Central Executive Committee, the three most important offices of the Soviet Government are occupied by Jews.

The War Situation

By THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

In the two truly dangerous sectors of the fighting front, matters either already have or soon will have come to a standstill, at least for the moment. These sectors are the two hinges of the German retreat—the first in the north, where the British lie along the Sensée Canal, and the second into the south, where the French are before the Forest of St. Gobain. Here the Hindenburg line has been reached, and for a short distance crossed. Bassoles and Fresnes were both within the German lines when the offensive of March 21 began. They are now held by the French. It is a matter, however, of only a few hundred yards, so it is practically true that in this section this line is intact. But the question is more than a matter of a mere line. It is more than possible that this line can be broken through by surprise tactics, just as was the Drocourt-Quéant switch line. It is a matter of preparation for defense through the massing of artillery and the concentration of men.

It is hardly necessary to say that the Germans are just as keenly alive to the vital necessity of holding on to their pivotal points as the Allies are desirous of crushing them. The Germans know that if these points give way their entire line may be forced to recoil. They have therefore prepared to defend them. While it is true that the German retirement has been in all probability much more rapid at times than was contemplated, nevertheless for many days it has been in the main voluntary. Reference to the British and French reports will show frequent mention of rear guard actions, showing that the main body of the Germans was retiring behind the fighting line. This retirement meant that the Germans were falling back to prepared positions where artillery was being massed and where every provision was being made for defense. The reports of yesterday of the fighting between the Aisne and the Oise indicate that the end of the German retreat here has been reached and that they are now prepared to stand in their old defensive positions.

In the centre this does not hold true. The defense is still apparently being conducted by rearguards, for the purpose of delaying the allied advance, but without any intention of trying to stop it. Certainly the Germans would not try to halt the Allies in the open when a few miles behind them there is a line which has been prepared for defense by the exhaustion of all of the engineering knowledge and skill of the German Engineer Corps. They will therefore continue to fall back a little each day, delaying the advance as far as possible consistent with safety, until this position has been reached, when they will stand as they stood in the Spring of 1917, and make every possible effort to hold where they are.

There certainly is no indication that the present retreat contemplates carrying them back beyond this line. Douai, Camoral or Lille must fall before this becomes a probability. Certain it is that Foch's main problem will come when the Germans reach the line they moved out from when they began this year's offensives. The British are still keeping up their progress in the centre toward Cambrai, but as the Hindenburg line is approached the advance becomes slower and slower. They are practically through the Havrincourt Wood, and to the south of this wood have taken the little clumps of woods known as the Forest of Gouzeaucourt.

The principal task on this section of the front is to force the crossing of the Canal du Nord between Havricourt and the Sensée Canal. This small water barrier is playing an important function in the German defense, as it guards the perfectly level plain before Cambrai, which plain is embraced between the Arras-Cambrai road and the Sensée River. Just south of this road is Bourlon Wood, which was the furthest point reached by General Byng in his offensive late last Fall. The capture of this wood would give the British domination of the plain to the north, and an excellent observation post overlooking the Cambrai plain. But the line along this section of the Canal du Nord holds fast, leaving the two armies deadlocked.

We must expect, therefore, that from now on the advance will be painfully slow and without the dramatic features which have followed its course up to this time.

FOE CAUGHT OFF HIS GUARD.

General von Freytag Admits Allies Struck at Favorable Time.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 8.—In a lecture on the war in Berlin Lieut. Gen. Baron von Freytag-Loringhoven, Deputy Chief of the General Staff, contended that the present crisis on the western front was less serious than many others during the course of the war.

"The position we occupied before the enemy counteroffensive began was the result of an abortive offensive, and, therefore, unsuitable for a defense whose aim was the effective economizing of forces," the General is quoted in a dispatch from Berlin as saying. "The positions had not been consolidated as trench warfare demands."

General von Freytag-Loringhoven argued that nothing like a decision was in prospect. He said:

"The thing now is to push matters so that Great Britain and America will recognize our invincibility in defensive war. We lack neither men, war material, nor raw material to hold out for a long time. We must, however, not slacken in our determination, which must remain alive in the army and at home. All that might divide us must be postponed until the end of the war."

CZERNIN UPHOLDS LEAGUE.

Defense of Plan in Vienna Paper Considered Peace Feeler.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 9.—Another shot from the Teuton peace propaganda artillery has been fired by Count Czernin, the former Austro-Hungarian Minister of Foreign Affairs, who, in a long article printed in the Vienna Neue Freie Presse, writes in favor of the idea of a league of nations.

The Count says that an overwhelming majority of the German people, with the Emperor at their head, really and honestly desire a lasting peace. He holds that the authoritative factors in the Berlin Cabinet today openly favor the proposal of a league of nations, and that Baron Burian, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, is not antagonistic to that idea.

"Therefore," Count Czernin concludes, "there is nothing to prevent the Central Powers from working out the fundamental principles of this new world order and bringing them before the world."

CRITICISE CROWN PRINCE.

Socialists and Pan Germans Alike Displeased by His Interview.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—From the two extremes of German party lines, the Socialists and the Pan Germans, the Crown Prince is being attacked for his recent interview denying responsibility for the war.

An official dispatch today from France says that the Chemnitz Volksstimme, a Socialist paper, declares that if the Government premeditates a peace offensive the Crown Prince must not be named as one of its spokesmen, as "his bellicose past, his notorious attacks, his untimely manifestations at the Reichstag and elsewhere are in complete contradiction to the way of speaking he now wishes to adopt."

Another Socialist paper, the Arbeiter Zeitung of Essen, ironically recalls the Crown Prince's speech to a regiment at Langthur in which he said:

"The happiest day in my life will be the day when the war breaks out."

On the other hand the Pan German Deutsche Zeitung now demands a dictatorship which will get together all those who have a "clear perception of their duty."

The dispatch says this confusion in political circles in Berlin explains the remarkable statement by Former Chancellor von Hertling in his last speech about "the dangers menacing the Imperial crown and dynasty."

DEVONSHIRE ON PEACE.

Governor General of Canada Says, Like Lodge, It Will Be Dictated.

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—"We will not negotiate terms of peace, but will dictate them," the Duke of Devonshire, Governor General of Canada, declared in a speech at a banquet given in his honor tonight.

"The war will end—it may be in months, it may be in years—only when we have certain assurance that the menace of Prussian autocracy and militarism is not only defeated, but that it is wiped out for all time," he said. "Indeed, I think I may state our aims explicitly by quoting one of your distinguished statesmen.

"'Peace will not be negotiated, but dictated.'

"That is the end which not only ought to be but is the only sound policy on which we can act.

"Never again can any clique of nations attempt such an outrage. Once and for all we must lay down the principle that the rule of law and order must be restored, that the same relations must exist between nations as exist between men.

"Victory is certain. The war is not a war fought by Governments, but by peoples who can make and unmake Governments. It will be won by the peoples united for the rights of humanity."

RED LEADERS SHOOT 546 MORE VICTIMS

most effective speaker and organizer for the Bolsheviki. She did not favor the Brest-Litovsk peace, but accepted it as inevitable, and kept the peasant organizations in line until she learned that the Bolshevist Government was preparing to turn over millions of yards of cloth to the Germans. She denounced this in the press.

Then Admiral Stchasnig, who saved the Baltic fleet for Russia, was executed without trial on the charge of being implicated in a counter-revolutionary plot. Mlle. Spiridonovo always opposed capital punishment and denounced this act.

Premier Lenine's policy of dividing the peasants into rich and poor classes and urging the poor to plunder from the rich was also offensive to Mlle. Spiridonovo. The cumulative evidence of submission to the German demands fired Mlle. Spiridonovo to revolt, and her challenge to the Bolshevist leaders in the All-Russian Soviet Congress on July 4 will never be forgotten by the great audience which filled the Grand Opera House at Moscow.

"You may have a majority in this Congress, but you have not a majority of the workmen of Russia with you and you have not 10 per cent of the peasants," she shouted.

Mlle. Spiridonovo then explained that there were no more than 10 per cent. of the peasants who did not have property and she declared she would never help "these loafers to rob their thrifty neighbors." She announced to the Bolsheviki that she would fight if they wanted fight and, if necessary, would take revolver and bomb in hand and lead the peasants against oppression. She shook her fist at the box occupied by representatives of the German Embassy and declared Russia would never submit itself to become a German colony.

Mlle. Spiridonovo's speech practically broke up the congress. Premier Lenine and Minister of War Trotzky were ineffective in their attempts to refute her charges. Premier Lenine, who had seemed to be a power of strength in the All-Russian Congress four months before, had lost all his fire.

Two days later Count von Mirbach, the German Ambassador, was killed and White Guard uprisings occurred in many parts of the Soviet Republic. Mlle. Spiridonovo was imprisoned but the Bolsheviki leaders did not dare execute her.

Many members of the Left Social Revolutionary Party were shot but the war on the Bolsheviki continued. General Hermann Eichhorn, the German Commander in the Ukraine, was killed at Kiev, and Moses Urtizky, Chairman of the Petrograd Commission for the Suppression of a counter-revolution, was shot at Petrograd. Various other commissaries fell and their guerrilla warfare became more active throughout the Ukraine.

Mlle. Spiridonovo has spent eleven years in Siberian prisons for killing a Governor who oppressed the peasants and most of her associates in the leadership of the Social Revolutionaries have a similar history. Consequently, the Bolsheviki cannot successfully charge her with being opposed to the principles which resulted in the overthrow of the imperial dynasty.

Mlle. Spiridonovo has tuberculosis and has suffered a serious decline since her imprisonment in the Kremlin.

Dora Kaplan was executed on Sept. 4, according to a Moscow dispatch to a Berlin paper that was quoted in a cablegram from Amsterdam on Sunday. Rumors that Maria Spiridonovo had been put to death were current a few weeks ago.

SAY NEUTRALS MUST GUARANTEE BRITAIN

Terms on Which Reds Are Willing to Prepare for Exchange of Diplomats.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 9.—The Soviet Government of Russia is willing to prepare for the exchange of diplomats with Great Britain if the neutral powers will undertake to guarantee that the Bolshevist representatives in London are given a safe conduct home. The following statement by Foreign Minister Tchicherin, forwarded to the Vossische Zeitung by the Petrograd Telegraph Agency, outlines the conditions under which the Soviet Government will act:

"After discovery of the course of action of the French and British diplomatists, whose activities were directed against the Soviet power, the Government of the Soviet Republic found itself obliged to isolate various agents of the powers named. Nevertheless the Government, as before, is willing to prepare for the exchange of diplomats if the neutral powers will undertake to guarantee that M. Litvinoff and all Russian citizens receive a safe conduct; that Litvinoff's and his collaborators' baggage be permitted to pass without examination, and that no further difficulties be put in the way of his collaborators.

"Those conditions must, together with free exit from London and passage across Scandinavia, be guaranteed by Holland, Norway, and Sweden. M. Litvinoff is being notified by telegraph, and on receipt of his answer confirming his departure R. H. Lockhart, acting British Consul General, and those accompanying him will then be handed over to the protection of the Dutch representatives.

"In other disputed questions previous agreements will remain valid."

LONDON, Sept. 9.—A dispatch received here today from neutral sources in Petrograd says that thus far nothing more serious than preventive arrests have occurred in the case of the allied communities in Petrograd.

AMERICANS FROM RUSSIA.

Names of Some of the Refugees Who Have Reached Stockholm.

NEW FUR FASHIONS

As a demonstration of what can be accomplished by France and America working together, the exhibition of new Fur Fashions for Fall and Winter, progressing this week in the Jaeckel Building, in West Thirty-second Street, is the most interesting event of its kind ever held in this city.

After many weeks in Paris, our representative has returned with a remarkable collection of new models, designed exclusively for us, in collaboration with:

Callot	Paquin	Jenny
Cheruit	Bernard	Doucet
Drecol	Lanvin	Aviotti

Our fur knowledge has been added to the inspiration in dress possessed in its highest degree by these coutouriers—the combination in each case resulting in a distinctive, individual effect.

As good furs have not increased in price in proportion to other materials, their purchase is economical by comparison. Selections should be made while the favorable condition continues. The market suggests early increases.

A Notable Announcement Concerning Trust Fund Administration

THE Directors of The Mercantile Trust and Deposit Company, appreciating the high degree of responsibility which they assume toward those who place trust funds in their hands for administration, have established a permanent

TRUST COMMITTEE

This committee will be composed of three members elected from the Board of Directors on account of their wide experience with investment securities. In addition, the President serves as an ex-officio member of the committee.

In handling trust funds no loan, purchase, sale, exchange or conversion will be made except upon the specific authority of this Trust Committee or of the Board as a whole.

At regular and frequent intervals all investments of trust funds will come before the committee for scrutiny.

By the creation of this widely experienced Trust Committee, the company aims to surround the management of trust funds with an extraordinarily high degree of sound business judgment as to safety and yield.

To those familiar with investment matters the soundness of this evolution in trust administration will, we believe, be apparent.

TAX BILL ASSAILED IN HOUSE DEBATE

Will Raise 45% of Annual War Cost, an Unwise Burden, Fordney Declares.

CRITICISED BY MOORE, TOO

Demands Cotton and Consumption Taxes—Wilson and Creel Attacked and Defended.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9. — Opposition to the $8,000,000,000 Revenue bill was registered in the House today in debate, which will probably end Saturday night with the passage of the bill substantially unamended and without a dissenting vote. Although it is apparent that the House does not intend to change the measure, Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee today sharply criticised it in several particulars.

As ranking Republican member of the committee, Representative Fordney of Michigan attacked the provision making a differential on corporation taxes and what he termed the bill's "illy-worded definition of capital." He objected to the amount proposed to be raised by direct taxation to finance the war in the next fiscal year. With the pending bill in effect, Mr. Fordney said, the United States would raise 45 per cent. of its expenditures by direct taxation, while Great Britain raised only 28 per cent. that way. He favored raising a greater percentage by bonds.

Discussing the differential of 6 per cent. of distributed income, Mr. Fordney said that 6 per cent. is the "penalty" for keeping money in the business for expansion and improvement.

"It is an exceedingly serious situation," said Mr. Fordney. "To compel a corporation to put out all its earnings this year, and keep none to do business with, puts the firm in a most embarrassing position. They must borrow to do extra business, with inflated prices and higher cost of raw material and labor, if they pay out their dividends to the stockholders.

"There is one feature of the bill I like. I have taken the position—and so did other members of the committee—that a soldier in the war, fighting for you and for me, should not be taxed upon his measley income from the Government, and we have inserted a provision that exempts him up to $3,500 if he is in France or on the sea.

Definition of Capital.

"I do not believe the definition of capital is correct. The bill provides, for the purpose of deduction, that you can only deduct your 8 or 10 per cent. on the actual capital originally invested, capital, surplus, and undivided profits. People who engaged in business twenty or thirty years ago, and have built up a great institution, ought to have the benefit of the advanced value of their property, down to a certain time at least.

"Another thing in the law is wrong. Borrowed capital ought to be capital. Suppose there is a body of men, rich, who organize a company with $1,000,000, and put in the cash, take their stock for it, and go on and do business. You and I organize a company in the same business for $1,000,000. We are poor; we can only put in $500,000, and go out and borrow half a million dollars. We put that half million of borrowed money in the business. It is capital, and we pay more taxes than the fellow who had the cash to put up. That is not right. In every instance the firm that borrows money pays more excess profits tax and war profits taxes than does the firm that has the money and borrows no money."

Touching upon the expenditures to be made in the next fiscal year Mr. Fordney sai

"I believe we are spending large sums of money unnecessarily. We are spending money that is almost waste. But I have not raised my voice against these things. The responsibility is not upon me, nor upon the Republican Party, as to the expenditures of the Government at this time. It is with the Administration, and if it makes such a mistake, asking for money and asking for men, and saying these things are necessary, it is your duty to give to them what they say they need, in order to successfully carry on the war. Then, when the war is over, it will be time enough for you, me, and our Democratic friends to settle our political row."

Mr. Fordney called attention to alleged extravagances at Hog Island.

"The Government," he said, "let a cost-plus contract to a firm, turned over the shipyard to that firm free of cost, and this firm, as I remember, had a capital of $1,000. It has taken $187,000,000 in contracts from the Government and got the shipyard free of charge. It is to receive 5 per cent. on the cost of building ships. It was stated last year that the earnings would be $11,000,000 on the $1,000 capital.'

Representative Smith, of Michigan, inquired whether members of the firm holding this contract added their income tax to the cost of construction.

"I am glad you ask that question, replied Mr. Fordney. "Information was brought to the committee that contracts were being made by the Government in which the Government agreed to pay taxes imposed by Congress on the profits of those contracts. Some engineers were called before the committee. One very intelligent gentleman said he came into the employ of the Government last January and knew of no such contracts. We obtained copies of contracts wherein it is stated that they are exempt from Government taxes. The man who made that contract for the Government ought to be prosecuted."

Two Kinds of Democrats.

Representative Moore of Pennsylvania, another Republican member of the Committee, objected to the measure because of its income and war profits features, and asserted it was deficient in not providing a tax on cotton or consumption taxes. He said the majority was not of one mind upon the very important and troublesome questions of excess profits and war profits taxes.

"During the weary three months about the council table," he continued, "there were several kinds of Democrats with varying views as to cause and effect. There was an 'eat 'em alive' variety and a 'go slow' brand. There were those who would take all of the war profits and those who had grown conservative through the lapse of years, under the weight of increasing responsibility. It may be said that two distinct kinds of Democrats finally appeared on the scene—the Administration or Treasury wing, whose radicalism was subsequently tempered by discussion and the passage of time, and Congress Democrats who entertained the foolish notion under the Constitution that they were the peoples' representatives.

"The saddest case from the viewpoint of national waste is that of the Aircraft Production Board," Mr. Moore said. "The House will recall the readiness, even the alacrity, with which it responded to the Administration demand in July, 1917, for $640,000,000 to carry out the aircraft program.

"Members were even cautioned against putting too many interrogatories to the spokesman of the Committee on Military Affairs lest secrets might escape and fall into the hands of the enemy. More than a year elapsed, with conflicting reports as to the progress that was being made in aircraft production. We heard that the automobile experts were performing wonders in connection with this vital but more or less secretive work. Congress had no check whatever upon that $640,000,000, and yet it represented a tax of at least $6 upon every man, woman, and child in the United States. I voted for that tax and am disheartened to know that it was wasted. It was as much money taken from the people as was normally to run the Government for a whole year. Much of it was spent in publicity that deceived the people about the progress that was being made. The report of the Senate Committee which finally investigated the entire subject was like a thunderbo't from a clear sky."

Predicts Swollen Revenue.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9, (Associated Press.)—A billion dollars more than the $8,114,000,000 estimated by the Ways and Means Committee will be raised by the War Revenue bill, declared Representative Fordney of Michigan in addressing the House today.

Mr. Fordney said his estimate was predicated on the returns of last year's bill, which is the basis of the pending legislation. Designed to raise $3,750,000,000, he said the present law already had yielded $4,441,000,000, and added that the Internal Revenue Bureau estimated another billion dollars would be collected. This uncollected billion, he said, was due to different interpretations of the law's provisions, and did not include any penalties for tardy payments.

Facility in floating Liberty Loans, Mr. Fordney said, apparently was responsible for abandonment of plans to place a heavier surtax on unearned incomes and also for failure to make a greater increase in larger income surtaxes. The changes, he contended, discriminate against men with smaller incomes and hamper their purchase of Liberty bonds, largely left to extremely wealthy men.

"If this bill, by raising the normal income tax," he said, "and reducing in proportion the higher surtaxes, will have the effect of preventing the masses from purchasing Liberty bonds, it may not be satisfactory to its framers."

As an inequality he cited that 78 per cent. of all corporation and income taxes in 1916 were paid by ten Northern, Mid-Northern, and Western States.

"We might suggest," he added, "that the Administration received its strongest political support from ten States which pay but one-fifth of the taxes."

Voicing one Republican complaint against the bill, Representative Fordney declared "this is the first time in history that a nation did not increase its import duties."

"Now is the most appropriate time for tariff for revenue," said he. "Great Britain, the great free trade country, is collecting $10.70 per capita for its 45,000,000 people, and we are collecting but $1.72."

Representative Fordney launched a joint attack on President Wilson and George Creel. The President, Mr. Fordney declared, was the only official of the Government for whom politics had not been adjourned. Mr. Creel, he charged, was circulating free trade tariff literature through the Committee on Public Information.

"At a time like this," said he, "when the people are called upon to contribute to the point of complaining, their money is spent for political claptrap."

Attacks on Mr. Creel's bureau rained from the Republican side, while the committee was roundly defended by speakers from the Democratic side. The incident quite displaced the debate on the Revenue bill.

Hearings on the Revenue bill continued before the Senate Finance Committee. George P. Hampton, Managing Director of the Farmers' National Headquarters, told the committee the farmers were being persecuted because they asked that a large portion of the cost of the war be paid by current taxation. He defended William Bouck, Master of the Washington State Grange, recently indicted on the charge of conspiracy to obstruct the sale of Liberty bonds, declaring he believed those responsible for the prosecution were war profiteers.

Open Gen. Smith's Will Contest.

Special to The New York Times.

GARRISON, N. Y., Sept. 9.—A legal battle was begun in Surrogate J. B. Southard's court in Putnam County today to try to break the will of the late General Jacob Hurd Smith, a Summer resident of Garrison. It is said that the General, who distinguished himself in fighting in the Philippines, left a considerable fortune. Theodore Rohll, a soldier who served in the army with the General, testified as to the genuineness of the General's signature to the will. The testimony of James Doty, another witness to the signing of the document, which was taken by a commission at Portsmouth, Ohio, was entered in evidence. Mrs. Grace Benjamin, a daughter of the General by his first wife, is contesting the will which leaves practically all his estate to Adelaide Smith, his second wife.

SAY AUSTRIAN HAD CODE TAKEN FROM THE NAVY

Department of Justice Agents Find Map of South America and List of Brazilian Warships.

Joseph Wagner, an Austrian subject, was arraigned in the Enemy Alien Bureau yesterday charged with having in his possession a United States Navy code book which is said to have been taken from the battleship Minnesota of the Atlantic Reserve Fleet. Wagner, who is 22 years old, came to New York in 1913, and was employed at the time of his arrest by a Maiden Lane jewelry concern. Wagner is said to be a collector of stamps, and agents of the Department of Justice are now at work trying to ascertain whether he used these stamps, of which he recently purchased $47 worth, as means of secret communication with persons in and outside of the United States.

Also in Wagner's possession was found a map of South America and a list of warships of the Brazilian Navy. It was also said that Wagner received a folder every day inclosing always a sheet of paper on which were written letters and signs which have not been satisfactorily explained to the officials. The sheet of paper which reached him in a folder on the day of his arrest bore the letter "J," followed by a dash, "P," followed by a dash and the word "love." This was all that was on the paper. Wagner's explanation of this is that he had been a piano player, had become rusty and was taking music lessons by mail. Wagner's father is an Austrian and is at present in the Austrian Army. He gave his occupation as jewelry polisher, wood turner, and elevator runner.

Lieutenant Christian Schroeder, who is said to have inherited a fortune in Germany and who has been living on his income since the beginning of the war, was arrested and arraigned at the Enemy Alien Bureau yesterday. Since this country declared war Schroeder's remittances from Germany have ceased and he is said now to be in financial straits. He served six years in the German Army as an officer of Uhlans. A few days ago Schroeder called on United States Marshal McCarthy and asked him to help him get a job. Yesterday he returned to find out if the Marshal had found a place for him, and when the Marshal said he had not the German showed anger and remarked: "This is what makes us disloyal."

Marshal McCarthy arrested Schroeder and arraigned him before Perry Armstrong, Assistant Chief of the Enemy Alien Bureau. In answer to questions Schroeder said he did not approve of German-Americans, that he approved the sinking of the Lusitania and endorsed what the Germans had done in Belgium. He was committed to Ludlow Street jail pending further investigation.

SOLOVEI GETS INTO NAVY.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Will Be in Paymaster's Office.

Joseph Solovei, Assistant Corporation Counsel in charge of the Street Opening Bureau in Brooklyn, it was learned yesterday, has reported for duty in the navy. He enlisted some time ago but was not called for service immediately. He is now a clerk in the paymaster's office.

Solovei held a $5,000 a year job and, under the provision made by the city to pay their enlisted employes the difference between their former and Government service salaries, he will continue to receive most of that sum. Considerable criticism was directed at Solovei several months ago when he applied for the deferred classification in the first draft, saying that he had dependent parents, brothers, and sisters.

During Mayor Hylan's campaign Solovei became known as his chauffeur, as he drove the candidate to all his meetings in his automobile. Police Commissioner Bugher's resignation hinged largely on his refusal to appoint Solovei a deputy.

STAATS GOES TO COURT.

Gets an Order Against Officials of North Bergen.

Upon motion of the New Yorker Staats-Zeitung, through its attorney, William E. Foster of 60 Broadway, an order was issued yesterday by Vice Chancellor Lane in Newark, N. J., requiring James Nolan, as Mayor and Chairman of the Township Committee of North Bergen, N. J.; the members of the Township Committee, and the Chief of Police of North Bergen, to show cause why an injunction should not be issued against the carrying out of a resolution adopted by the Township Committee on Aug. 25, in effect barring German language newspapers from sale and distribution in the township of North Bergen.

At the same time the township officials were enjoined from interfering with the sale and distribution of the Staats-Zeitung or with the agents or employes of the complainant until further action should be taken by the court. The hearing of arguments was set for tomorrow morning at Chancellery Chambers in Newark.

WILL SING TO SICK SOLDIERS

John McCormack, the Irish tenor, will entertain more than 200 convalescent marines and soldiers from base hospitals in the Port of New York today when they will be treated to a cruise up the Sound on board the yacht Surf, owned by Dr. John A. Harriss, member of the Executive Committee of the Mayor's Committee on National Defense.

It was announced last night by Henry MacDonald, Director General of the Mayor's Committee, that McCormack has volunteered his services and would accompany the boys on a day's outing to Dr. Harriss's Summer home at Journey's End in Connecticut.

TELL OF BRUTALITY IN PRISON CAMPS

Captives Overworked, Underfed, and Beaten, Wounded British from Germany Declare.

SAW AMERICAN VICTIMS

Thirty at Stralkowo, in Posen; Ten at Crossen, in Brandenburg—Belgians Routed Proselytes.

LONDON, Sept. 9, (British Wireless Service.)—The brutal treatment of prisoners of war by the Germans is described by wounded British prisoners who have arrived at The Hague from Germany. All prisoners are badly treated and are on virtually starvation rations. The prison camps at Soltau and Crossen, in Prussia, are reported to be in particularly evil condition.

Belgian prisoners, who were the most numerous in the camp at Soltau, were approached several months ago by two civilians, who claimed to be Flemings. They were introduced by the commandant, with the object of inducing the Belgians to side with Germany. The Belgians stoned these emissaries and made things unpleasant for the commandant, with the result that the whole camp was visited with punishment for a fortnight.

The condition of Russian prisoners throughout all the German camps from which these British prisoners had come is declared to be pitiable. There had been many cases of death from starvation among the Russians, some of whom had been shot and beaten when they were unable to perform the tasks imposed on them.

Several of the British soldiers came from Stralkowo, in the Province of Posen, where about 300 British are confined. Three weeks ago thirty Americans arrived there.

At the camp at Crossen, in Brandenburg, prisoners received little food. Many of these men suffered from dropsy and neurasthenia, and numerous deaths occurred. At one time there were in this camp 140 British prisoners, captured in April, and ten Americans, captured in May. They were compelled to work on the railways, carrying heavy rails and pushing trucks for twelve hours at a stretch. Their food consisted of German soup and one slice of bread. If they failed to get up in the morning quickly when the Germans called them to work they were prodded with bayonets and hit with rifle butts. It is declared that one man so treated was found dead next morning.

Most of these men arrived at the Crossen camp on Aug. 24 in an extremely serious condition. They were inspected after a few days and about ten of them were marked out for work again. They had been working behind the German lines from April until the latter part of August.

TAKE SLACKERS INTO ARMY.

Many at Camp Dix Welcome Induction Into Military Service.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP DIX, WRIGHTSTOWN, N. J., Sept. 9.—By direction of Federal authorities, several hundred prisoners captured in North Jersey slacker raids last week and sent to this camp are being inducted into military service today as rapidly as a special detail from the mustering office can handle them. In a few cases where the prisoners had deferred classification but could not find their cards, they are being assigned as soon as their records are established. About 8 per cent. of the prisoners, it is said, are found to have been deliberate slackers who evaded registration.

While Department of Justice agents were under instructions to have all prisoners inducted into service by their local boards before they were sent to camp, several of the prisoners came through without this procedure. An unusually high percentage of the prisoners will eventually be discharged on physical grounds, it is asserted.

A strange feature of the situation is the fact that a majority of the members of the party seemed highly pleased this afternoon over the prospect of getting in the army. Even some of the wilful slackers admit they grew tired of the apprehension of capture and that their arrival here is a real relief.

Officers say that except in those cases where there has been violation of the statutes that will bring them before a civil or military tribunal for trial, those inducted into the service through the raid will find it depends entirely upon themselves as to whether they make good as soldiers. They will have the opportunity.

ORDERS DRAFTING BE NOT HAMPERED

ployments are such as to require their continued service in civil life rather than in the army.

"In order to provide for the necessary adjustments between the necessities of the military establishment and the requirements of the industries, occupations, and employments, including agriculture, found to be necessary to the maintenance of the military establishment, the effective operation of the military forces, and the maintenance of the national interest during the emergency there shall be appointed by each district board three persons to be known as industrial advisers to the district board.

"One such person for each district board shall be nominated by the Department of Labor, one by the Department of Agriculture, and one by each District Board who shall thereupon be appointed by the respective district boards.

"Whenever, in the discretion of the President, more than three such industrial advisers are required by a district board the President may call upon the Department of Labor or the Department of Agriculture or the district board to nominate such additional industrial advisers, who shall thereupon be appointed by such district board.

"Such industrial advisers so appointed by each district board shall not in any sense be members of such district board, shall have no right to vote at any meetings thereof, and shall have and exercise only the rights, duties, powers, and functions herein specifically given.

"Such advisers shall have the right to furnish all pertinent information to the district board and may attend meetings of the board upon request of the board to which they are attached.

Preference Lists as Guides.

"Such advisers may place before the District Board at its meetings, or at such other time as the board may request, all facts and information in their possession as to the preference lists issued by the Priorities Division of the War Industries Board. Such lists shall not be regarded as binding upon the District Board in its conclusions as to whether or not any particular industry, occupation, or employment, including agriculture, is a necessary industry, occupation, or employment within the meaning of the law and regulations, nor shall such lists prevent the District Board from holding as necessary any industry, occupation, or employment, including agriculture, not contained therein.

"Such preference lists and other facts and information in the possession of such advisers will supplement the information in the possession of the District Boards, and will also be used to assist the District Boards in dealing with specific cases.

"Inasmuch as the United States Employment Service, under the Department of Labor, has already established throughout the nation State advisory boards and numerous recruiting agencies in divisions of the country, and is therefore familiar with the needs for skilled labor in each community, and the supply in each community, the advice of the industrial adviser nominated by the Department of Labor will be of great value to the district boards in arriving at their decisions as to whether or not individiauls engaged in certain industries, occupations, or employments are engaged in work necessary to the maintenance of the military establishment, the effective operation of the military forces, or the maintenance of the national interest during the emergency.

"The Department of Agriculture has special facilities for being informed as to the supply of labor for agricultural purposes, and the demand for such labor in the various communities of the nation, and such information will be, through the adviser nominated by the Department of Agriculture, available to the district boards, and helpful in assisting such boards in determining the claims by or in respect of registrants based upon their engagement in agriculture.

"The necessity of not seriously interfering with certain occupations and employments, such as financial, commercial, educational, hospital work, care of the public health, or with the conduct of certain other activities necessary to the public welfare and the prosecution of the war, requires that the district boards have the co-operation of such advisers, so that persons necessary in such activities be not removed therefrom.

Value of Individuals.

"To this end, the adviser nominated by the district board should bring to the attention of the latter the questions as to whether or not individuals engaged in some particular industry, occupation, or employment are so necessary thereto as to outweigh the benefit to the nation should they be drafted into the army.

"Such advisers shall, under rules to be prescribed by the local boards, have access to the questionnaires and other records in the files of the local boards, and shall confer with persons engaged in various industries, occupations, and employments, for the purpose of having the cases of certain individual registrants, by whom or in whose behalf no claim for deferred classification has been made, presented to the district board for consideration and determination as to whether or not such registrants should be placed in a deferred class.

"If any such adviser files with the district board a claim on Form 1,001-A for deferred classification on the ground of a registrant being engaged in a necessary industry, occupation, or employment, including agriculture, the district board shall forward such claim to the local board having jurisdiction, and upon receipt thereof it will be the duty of such local board to certify the questionnaire and record of any such registrant to the district board for consideration, although no claim by or in respect of such registrant for deferred classification has been made or such registrant has waived deferred classification; provided the day and hour fixed to report for military duty have not arrived.

"If the information and the affidavits necessary for the classification of the registrant because of his engagement in a necessary industry, occupation, or employment, including agriculture, are not contained in the questionnaire of such registrant, it shall be the duty of such local board to give the opportunity by reasonable extension of time to those interested in obtaining a deferred classification, to furnish the information and supply the affidavits required by the questionnaire and the regulations. Pending the final classification of such registrant he shall not be inducted into military service.

"It shall be the duty of such advisers to confer with the managers and heads of various industries, and those familiar with the needs in occupations and employments, including agriculture, and instruct such persons as to their right under the regulations to file a claim for deferred classification in respect of any registrant who has failed or refused to file a claim for deferred classification in his own behalf or who has waived his claim for deferred classification.

To Aid District Boards.

"Such advisers should in all ways cooperate with the district boards in order that the information in their possession may at all times be available to the district boards and be made use of in the work of classifying registrants.

"If, under the authority of Rule XXVII, Section 101, a local board determines to consider a case for deferred classification because the registrant is engaged in a necessary industry, occupation or employment, including agriculture, notwithstanding no claim for deferred classification on that ground has been made, the local board shall, after indorsing the recommendation on the questionnaire, forward the questionnaire and record to the district board having jurisdiction.

"The district board shall thereupon consider the case and proceed to classify the registrant, notwithstanding the fact that no claim for deferred classification by or in respect of the registrant has been made.

"Section 81. General classification rules applicable to industries, occupations, or employments, including agriculture.

"Rule 15. The words 'persons engaged in industries, ocupations, or emplyments, including agriculture,' as used in the selective service law, shall not be construed to mean that a person so engaged is entitled to deferred classification merely by reason of the fact that the industry, occupation, or employment, taken as a whole, or agriculture taken in its entirety, is necessary to the maintenance of the military establishment, or the effective operation of the military forces, or the maintenance of national interest during the emergency. In order to support such deferred classification the evidence must establish that the registrant is engaged in a particular industrial or agricultural enterprise, or occupation, or employment, and that the particular industrial or agricultural enterprise, or occupation, or employment is 'necessary' in the sense recited in Rule 17.

"Rule XVI.—In acting on any claim for deferred classification based on engagement in a particular industry, or occupation, or employment, or agricultural enterprise, the board shall first proceed to determine whether such industry, or occupation, or employment, or agricultural enterprise is 'necessary' in the sense recited in Rule 17. If the board does not find that such industry, or occupation, or employment, or agricultural enterprise is 'necessary' in such sense, the claim is concluded and the registrant shall be classified in Class 1.

Registrant Must Be Necessary.

"If the board determines that the industry, or occupation, or employment, or agricultural enterprise is 'necessary' it will then proceed to determine whether the registrant is 'necessary' thereto in the sense recited in Rule 18 and in the capacity recited in any of the various rules in the classification schedule. If the board does not find that the registrant is 'necessary' in such sense and in any such capacity, the claim is concluded and the registrant shall be classified in Class 1.

"Rule XVII.—The word 'necessary,' as applied to any industry, or occupation, or employment, or agricultural enterprise, within the meaning of these regulations, shall be taken to import that the discontinuance, the serious interruption, or the materially reduced production thereof, or the discontinuance or serious interreuption thereof, will result in substantial net loss and detriment to the adequate and effective maintenance of the military establishment, or the effective operation of the military forces, or the maintenance of the national interest during the emergency.

"A particular industry, or occupation, or employment, or agricultural enterprise shall be found to be 'necessary' only when it is shown that it is contributing substantially and materially to the maintenance of the military establishment, or the effective operation of the military forces, or the maintenance of national interest during the emergency, such as American Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., Knights of Columbus, Jewish Welfare League, may make claims as being engaged in occupations or employments under Sections 80 to 89, inclusive, and such claims must be supported by affidavits as provided in respect of industrial claims in the questionnaire."

Addition to Questionnaire.

The Provost Marshal General also issued an explanatory memorandum which is to be inserted in the questionnaire. This relates to the amendment to the selective draft act adopted on August 31, which includes the words "occupations and employments" in the list of activities in which a person may be engaged and still claim deferred classification. General Crowder emphasizes his position as to where authority lies in these words:

"The decision as to whether or not any particular occupation or employment is 'necessary' for any of the purposes specified in the act of Congress and as to whether or not the registrant is 'necessary' therein, rests with the district boards, subject only to the duty of the local boards under Rule 32, Section 101 of the selective service regulations to make their recommendations.

"However, the local boards have original jurisdiction, subject to the right of appeal to the district boards, of the claims of registrants who are engaged in the occupations or employments specifically designated in Section 4 of the Selective Service act as exempt or entitled to temporary discharge, that is, deferred classification, under rules and regulations prescribed by the President, namely, officers, legislative, executive, and judicial of the United States, and of the several States, Territories, and the District of Columbia, ministers of religion, students of divinity, medical students, county and municipal officials, including firemen and policemen, Custom House clerks, persons employed by the United States in the transmission of the mail, artificers, and workmen employed in the armories, arsenals, and navy yards of the United States, such persons employed in the service of the United States as the President may designate, pilots, and mariners.

"Under the act as amended, claims by or in respect of registrants engaged in occupations or employments other than those specificially named in the act come within the exclusive original jurisdiction of the district boards for decision as to whether or not the particular occupation or employment is 'necessary' for one of the purposes specified in the act and the registrant is 'necessary' thereto, the local boards only making their recommendations."

Instructions are then given to registrants concerning the manner in which those who wish to claim deferred classification must answer questions on Page 1 of the questionnaire.

Supply of Available Substitutes.

"(3) That the available supply of persons competent in the capacity recited in the rule is such that the registrant cannot be replaced in such capacity without direct, substantial, material loss and detriment to the adequate and effective operation of the industry, or occupation, or employment, or agricultural enterprise.

"Note.—In applying Rule XVIII., the board should consider generally—

"(1) The length of time the registrant has been engaged in such capacity, and especially whether the circumstances of his engagement are such as to convince the board that he is not now so engaged for the primary purpose of evading military service.

"(2) The nature of the claimant's study, training, or experience, and the extent and value of his qualification for the capacity in which he is engaged.

"(3) The actual conditions which would result from his removal.

"Section 82. Class I.—Agriculture.

"Rule XIX. In Class I. shall be placed:

"(e) Any registrant not found to be engaged in a 'necessary' agricultural enterprise, or, if found to be engaged in such an enterprise, not found to be 'necessary' to the effective operation of the enterprise in any capacity recited in Rules XX., XXI., or XXII.

"Section 83. Class II.—Agriculture.

"Rule XX. In Class II. shall be placed:

"(c)—Any registrant found to be engaged in a 'necessary' agricultural enterprise and found to be 'necessary' to such enterprise in the capacity of a farm laborer, especially fitted for the work in which he is engaged.

"Section 84. Class III.—Agriculture.

"Rule XXI In Class III. shall be placed:

"(j)—Any registrant found to be engaged in a 'necessary' agricultural enterprise, and found to be 'necessary' to such enterprise in the capacity of an assistant, associate, or hired manager of such particular enterprise or of a substantial and integral part thereof.

"Section 85. Class IV.—Agriculture.

To Be Put in Class IV.

"Rule XXII. In Class IV. shall be placed:

"(c)—Any registrant found to be engaged in a 'necessary' agricultural enterprise and found to be 'necessary' to such enterprise in the capacity of sole managing, controlling, and directing head of the enterprise.

"Section 86. Class I.—Industry, occupation, or employment.

"Rule XXIII. In Class I. shall be placed:

"(f) Any registrant not found to be engaged in a 'necessary' industry or employment, or if found to be so engaged, not found to be 'necessary' to the effective operation thereof in a capacity recited in Rule XXIV., XXV., or XXVI.

"Section 87. Class I. Industry, occupation, or employment.

"Rule XXIV. In Class I. shall be placed:

"(d) Any registrant found to be engaged in a 'necessary' industry or occupation or employment and found to be 'necessary' therein in the capacity of a laborer, worker, or employe, especially fitted for the work in which he is engaged.

"Section 88, Class III.—Industry, occupation, or employment.

"Rule XXV. In Class III. shall be placed:

"Any registrant found to be engaged in a 'necessary' industry, or occupation, or employment, and found to be 'necessary' therein in the capacity of

"(k) A highly specialized expert.

"(l) An assistant or associate manager of the industry, or in the occupation, or employment, or a manager of a substantial integral part thereof.

"Section 89, Class IV.—Industry, occupation, or employment:

"Rule XXVI.—In Class IV. shall be placed:

"(d) Any registrant found to be engaged in a 'necessary' industry or occupation or employment, and found to be 'necessary' therein in the capacity of sole managing, controlling, and directing head thereof.

SLAYER TO FACE ALIENIST.

Mrs. Neinstedt's Responsibility for Killing to be Determined.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 9.—Whether Mrs. Claire Madeline Neinstedt of Brooklyn, who killed her 8-year-old daughter on Sunday in their room at Hotel Ponchartrain, must stand trial for murder or be committed to an asylum depends upon the report of Dr. Isaac L. Polozker, alienist, who has been retained by the prosecutor to make an examination to determine the woman's sanity.

If Dr. Polozker found Mrs. Neinstedt insane, Assistant Prosecutor Speed said, either the Probate Court would be asked to name a commission of alienists to pass formally upon her responsibility for the slaying or an effort would be made to have her returned to her home in Brooklyn, where the New York State authorities might commit her to some institution.

Crying for her children, Mrs. Neinstedt tossed feverishly upon her cot at City Receiving Hospital today, unable to recall the tragedy of Sunday. She does not know yet that her daughter is dead. Her son, Bernie, 12 years old, and another daughter will be taken to New York by friends. Their grandmother, Mrs. Bernard Neinstedt, arrived here from Brooklyn today, and will return there with the body of the slain child.

Mrs. Clare Madeline Neinstedt of Brooklyn, who killed her daughter, Zilna, at Detroit, Mich., was not the daughter of Lieut. Commander Thomas Manning, as was reported in dispatches from Detroit, according to the family of Lieut. Commander Manning. It was stated that Mrs. Neinstedt had lived with the family of Lieut. Commander Manning up to the time that she ran away to marry Neinstedt, but was not a daughter and had not been adopted.

Business Women's War Service.

It was announced by the Secretary of the Business Women's War Service yesterday that all those desiring to enroll with the organization should communicate with the Chairman, Charlotte Walkinshaw of E. H. Rollins & Sons, 43 Exchange Place, instead of calling at 120 Broadway, as reported in a previous notice. The organization will supply and distribute the workers to the various war committees as they are needed.

ILLED BY THIEVES HE DID NOT DISARM

onton's Acting Police Chief Had Caught Them Robbing Freight Cars.

TARTED FOR TOWN JAIL

ter He Dismissed Posse Prisoners Shot Him Down—Slew One Before He Died.

BOONTON, N. J., Sept. 9.—Patrick ilton, Acting Chief of Police here, s killed today in a fight with thieves, om he had arrested in the act of obing freight cars on the Lackawanna ilroad. He had neglected to take ir weapons away from them. Will-n Dennison of Kearny, N. J., one of thieves, was shot by the policeman d died in the hospital here.

Guilton, who was taking the place of regular Chief of Police during va-tion, received word this morning that ir thieves were breaking into box-rs near the Boonton Rubber Works, d he started for the railroad in a tor truck. On the way he asked four armed civilians to accompany him. hen the posse reached the rubber rks they left the motor truck and proached the railroad cars under er of fences and bushes. Guilton nt ahead and compelled the thieves surrender.

He did not search the men for apons, but compelled them to climb o the motor truck and started for the wn jail. When he reached Main reet he told his assistants that he did t think he would need them longer, d they left the truck. After he had ven a few blocks Guilton put his pistol into his pocket, and immediately the thieves attacked him. One shot Guilton, who began shooting also, mortally wounding Dennison.

When they saw their companion fall to the ground the other thieves jumped from the truck and ran for a wood about 400 yards west of the town. Clerks who ran out of stores pursued them and posted pickets at the edges of the wood while a posse of about fifty was organized in the village. Howard Jackson and Frank Kennedy, who said they had come from Kearny, N. J., to rob freight cars, were captured without a fight, and William Riley, who evaded the pickets, ran across the Rockaway River Bridge and caught a coal train on the Lackawanna Railroad. Sheriff Orr of Morris County stopped the train and captured Riley, who had fled to another small wood. All the thieves are held in the Morris County Jail on a charge of murder, but Jackson and Kennedy assert that Riley fired the shot that killed the policeman.

Princeton Naval Courses.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 9.—Princeton's Naval Training Unit under the general supervision of Rear Admiral B. F. Goodrich, U. S. N., will open after Sept. 24 to students of the Naval Reserve and all other youths of 18 years or more who desire naval instruction, the authorities of the university announced today. There will be courses preparatory for the line and basic engineering courses also, with Annapolis as the standard for instruction. The program calls for nine months' training. Registration is fixed for Sept. 12.

Fordham Law School to Continue.

The Rev. Thomas A. Mulry, President of Fordham University, yesterday denied reports that the Fordham University Law School would close as a result of the taking over of the university by the Government. Father Mulry said that the university was doing all it could to aid the military authorities, but that no move had been made to close the Law School and that he did not wish such an impression to go abroad.

SCHIFF GIVES $40,000 MORTGAGE TO SOCIETY

Cancels Debt Borrowed from Him by Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Organization.

The Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society of America, 220 East Broadway, announced last evening that it had received a gift of $40,000 from Jacob H. Schiff. Ten years ago Mr. Schiff took a mortgage of $40,000 on the property of the society, without charging any interest and with the understanding that if at the end of ten years certain stipulations were complied with, he would release the organization from the payment of the mortgage. The ten years having expired and Mr. Schiff being convinced that the society has satisfactorily discharged its duties, he has canceled the mortgage. The Directors of the society have unanimously adopted a resolution, which has been forwarded to Mr. Schiff by Jacob Massel, Honorary Secretary of the society, and which said:

"The Board of Directors of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society of America, at its meeting held on Aug. 13, 1918, hereby gratefully acknowledges to Mr. Schiff our sincerest thanks for this generous donation actually amounting to $60,000, and records as well our great gratification that in the judgment of Mr. Schiff, this society has earned and won, through its work and service during the last ten years, this splendid testimonial of his confidence and deep interest.

"We shall ever earnestly strive to hold and merit the approval of our friend and generous benefactor, whom we wish many, many years of health and happiness."

Senate to Adjourn Over Thursday.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The Senate will adjourn Wednesday for over Thursday, leaders announced today, as a part of the general plan to make registration day a holiday, and to give Senate employes time to register. The House was not expected to recess because of the pending revenue bill. The Senate adjourned today until Wednesday so that members may have time to frame amendments to the Mineral Control bill, now being considered.

THE OFFICE HELP PROBLEM

Office help is scarce. It is going to be more so.

The new draft and urgent Government requirements will seriously deplete the number of workers now in commercial offices.

An effective solution of this office problem is for every business firm to use up-to-the-minute office machinery and system which will enable them to do all essential office work with a minimum number of workers.

Business executives can save money and perform a patriotic duty by having their offices equipped with the new systems and office appliances that have been developed to meet war conditions.

American manufacturers of office appliances and systems are "on the job." They have worked out new short cuts for office routine, and are providing machines that conserve office labor.

To save time of busy executives and make it convenient for them to get personal knowledge of the latest developments in their industry, representative manufacturers have arranged for an Exposition of Modern Equipment and System for promoting economy and conserving labor in the office, to be held in New York, October 21st to 26th, inclusive.

This will be a week of Service on the part of the leaders in the office appliance industry. Thoroughly competent members of their organizations will be present at all times to render assistance and offer suggestions.

The United States Civil Service Commission will have representatives at this Exposition to explain the urgent needs of the Government for war office workers and give complete information concerning Federal civil positions of all kinds. Opportunity will be given to qualify then and there for positions open.

Business houses are urged to have their department heads plan now to visit this Exposition, so that they may confer with experts regarding administrative problems.

Admission to this Exposition will be by ticket—required so that attendance may be limited to interested visitors. Any business concern may have as many of these admission tickets as they require—without obligation of any kind—by writing for same on business stationery and enclosing stamped addressed envelope.

Requests for admission tickets should be sent now to the Annual Business Show Co., 150 Nassau Street, New York.

Send for your tickets today.

On October 1st, it will be necessary to increase the price of The Dictaphone in order to maintain the present high quality of material and workmanship. Prior to that date, orders will be accepted at current prices

Trained Women Dietitians Needed in U. S. Medical Corps
One of the Government's great needs is for trained dietitians. To help supply them, Drexel Institute, in cooperation with the United States War Department, has prepared special training courses.
Graduates of these courses are eligible to certification for position as assistant dietitian, upon satisfactory completion of four months' probationary work as pupil dietitians in the United States Military Hospital.
1. A four months' intensive course for those who have had two years' college studies or hold a degree from some Domestic Science institution, and one year's occupational experience.
2. A one year's intensive course for college graduates.
3. A two years' course for high-school graduates.
Drexel Institute's special war training Dietetic courses have been arranged under the supervision, and have received the approval of the Hospital Division, Medical Corps, U. S. Army
Students who enter these courses will be at once in training for their country's service. Uniform will be worn. Military regulations.
Enrollment will be limited and applicants carefully selected. Courses begin October 21.
The Army's need for trained dietitians is urgent, and the time is short in which to enroll.

ARREST APPLAUDERS AT TRIAL OF DEBS

Rose Pastor Stokes and Six Others Brought Before Angry Federal Judge.

CLAPPED DEFENSE OF DEBS

Court to Deal with Them Today—Jury Quickly Obtained in Famous Espionage Case.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 9.—The speed with which a jury was selected and the arrest of seven persons in the court room for applauding the peroration of the opening statement of Attorney Seymour Stedman of the defense were features of the opening session today of the trial of Eugene Victor Debs, four times the Socialist candidate for President, on five counts of an indictment charging violation of the Espionage act.

Rose Pastor Stokes was among those who admitted applauding and was arrested on orders from the bench by Judge D. C. Westenhaver. The others arrested were M. S. Basista, Max Slopoub, Margaret Pavey of Akron, Ohio, who is on Debs's bond; Frank Wells, Edgar Delaney, and J. J. Fried.

The offenders apparently were carried off their feet by Stedman's eloquence. Judge Westenhaver, however, exceedingly wroth, saw in it only a deliberate contempt of Court, remarking that, in all his experience, he had never known so flagrant a case. Later he said that perhaps he had been unduly vexed, but this concession went only far enough to allow the culprits their liberty on their personal recognizance instead of on bail, as he at first demanded. He ordered that they appear before him tomorrow morning a half hour in advance of the resumption of the trial.

F. B. Kavanagh, the Assistant United States District Attorney who made the opening statement for the Government, had closed by asserting that the jury should judge Debs "by his works." Stedman assented, saying: "The defense accepts the challenge. You shall know him by his works—by the works of his whole life."

Stedman sat down amid increasing applause from the body of the audience. The bailiffs seemed stunned by an outburst hitherto unhinted in the austere atmosphere of Judge Westenhaven's court. The Judge himself, known as a martinet among lawyers, was a full minute in grasping the incident. Then, recovering, he addressed the bailiffs in a voice that quivered with anger.

"Bring that man in the brown coat, standing to the left of the doorway, to the bench. Bring any others that you saw clapping their hands."

In a moment the seven were before the bar, among them Mrs. Stokes, the factory girl who became the wife of the millionaire Socialist of New York, J. G. Phelps Stokes. Mrs. Stokes, plainly clad as usual, and at liberty on an appeal bond herself after conviction at Kansas City of violating the Espionage act, stood with bowed head and with an air which said as plainly as words: "In trouble again."

A rotund person, in a scared-to-death voice, the first person questioned by the judge, and answering to the name of Fried, explained quaveringly that his hand had been clasped beneath his hat and that he had made no sound. Mrs. Stokes, however, answered, quietly: "Yes, I applauded." Mrs. Pavey replied with similar composure.

Attorney Stedman and Attorney W. A. Cunnea, also of the defense, argued earnestly against holding the culprits, but the judge insisted that they appear before him in the morning.

It required only two hours and fifteen minutes of actual work to obtain a jury. All were men past middle age and largely men of property. Mr. Stedman said it was not the kind of a jury he would have chosen. The Judge's instructions, however, admitted of little latitude in challenging for cause. Only two men were dismissed in this manner, both confessing that it would be difficult for the defense to dislodge their prejudice against any one who opposed the Government, however slightly, in any of its measures to win the war speedily.

Jones Decker of Bucyrus, a venireman, said he had no occupation. More closely questioned, he added: "Well, I'm President of an insurance company and Director of a Bank, if you call that an occupation." He was subsequently dismissed on a peremptory challenge.

The defense had exercised all of its ten peremptory challenges in getting rid of veniremen of civil war antecedents and patriotism when the jury was sworn. The Government had three of its six left. Their examination of veniremen was brief and perfunctory, while the defense went fully into the question of prejudice and political opinion.

The greater part of Kavanagh's opening statement was devoted to reading the indictment and Debs's entire speech at the Socialist convention at Canton, Ohio, June 16, on which the indictment is based. In that speech, according to the indictment and Mr. Kavanagh's remarks, Debs held the army, the navy, and the uniform up to ridicule, opposed the ideals for which the American flag stands, criticised the cause of the war, made remarks calculated to promote insubordination and attempted to propagate obstruction to the draft.

Mr. Stedman declared that the transcript of the Debs speech upon which the indictment was based was inaccurate in the omission of words and even whole paragraphs. He said that Debs talked for two hours at Canton, while the reading of his speech took much less time.

"Mr. Debs opposed war? Yes. But he did not oppose the machinery by which the present war is being conducted," said the attorney.

The case may be in the hands of the jury in a week or ten days, as two days, it is believed, will suffice for presentation of the evidence of the twelve Government witnesses. The first witnesses tomorrow will be two stenographers who took down Debs's remarks at Canton.

COL. L. W. V. KENNON DEAD.

Commander of Army Cantonment at Charlotte, N. C., Dies Here.

Colonel Lyman W. V. Kennon, U. S. A., Commander of the National Army Cantonment at Charlotte, N. C., died yesterday after a brief illness at the Hotel Cumberland, Broadway and Fifty-fourth Street. Military funeral services will take place on Wednesday at Washington. Interment will be in the National Cemetery at Arlington. He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Anne Beecher Rice of Goshen, Conn., a brother and a niece, Miss Laura Kennon and a brother-in-law, James Q. Rice of this city.

Previous to his command at Charlotte, Colonel Kennon had charge of the cantonment at Syracuse and Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill. He was born at Providence, R. I., in 1858, was a graduate of West Point, 1881, and of the Army War College in 1910, and had been in active service in the Indian wars and the Spanish-American War, both in Cuba and the Philippines. At the time of the American occupation in the Philippines he constructed the Benguet Road between Manila and Baguio, for which he received special commendation from President Roosevelt.

ARMY READY TO EQUIP 2,000,000 MORE MEN

Quartermaster General Says There Will Be Enough Clothes When New Draft Calls Come.

FACING A GIGANTIC TASK

Winter Clothing Still to be Issued to Soldiers Called During the Summer Months.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Brig. Gen. R. E. Wood, the Acting Quartermaster General of the Army, granted an interview today, during which he discussed the gigantic task of equipping the new draft army that now confronts the War Department. Including the September draft, there will have been inducted into the military service of the nation, according to General Crowder's figures, 2,750,000 men.

General Wood said that the estimated requirements of wool for the army, navy, and Marine Corps between now and June 30 next will be 266,000,000 pounds, and approximately 17,500,000 pounds additional for semi-Governmental needs. This quantity, he said, will be available, and will provide for the new draft army.

"After this month," said General Wood, "there will be 2,000,000 men called into service between Oct. 1 and July 1. Our greatest strain is coming in the next three months. We have got to outfit the drafts called in September, October, November, and December. We have to keep up the shipments overseas, and then we have to put woolen clothing in the hands of all the men who have been called this Summer. They have not got their overcoats, their blankets, their woolen coats, and woolen trousers. That puts the biggest strain on us during October, November, and December.

"The troubles last Fall were partly due to the fact that they didn't know where the material was. Since the first of March we have had double the number of men called in the last September draft and, as far as I know, there has not been the slightest trouble. I assume if the men hadn't been supplied we'd have heard of it.

"There is no excuse for the Quartermaster Department falling down. Our biggest problem is distribution, and the fact that we have got to distribute to each individual soldier. The army can go without guns and airplanes, but it can't do without clothes without a big kick from the soldier and his people."

"Can you tell us now many uniforms have been provided for the new draft," General Wood was asked.

"The first of August," he replied, "we had on hand 5,000,000 woolen breeches, 5,800,000 cotton breeches, or over 10,500,000 breeches all together. We had 4,000,000 cotton coats, 4,000,000 woolen coats, 29,000,000 drawers, Summer and Winter; 24,000,000 undershirts, Summer and Winter, and 5,200,000 blankets."

"About the army raincoat frauds—how much did that amount to in dollars?" the General was asked.

"I would say, off hand, about $2,000,000," he replied. "We didn't lose anything. The contractors are the losers. We cancelled the contracts and then what raw material they had in process we commandeered. We re-let the contracts to new firms or firms who were not implicated. It slowed up production some—lost us a month in production, but it is better to have no raincoats at all than defective ones."

"Can it be said that every call made under the 15 to 45 draft during the Fall and Winter will find clothing ready for them?"

"Yes," said General Wood. "We are going to be pretty short for a very short time on one or two articles, but we have enough."

"What is the present status of the officers' cloth?"

"That was finally approved last month by the General Staff, and we are now buying cloth, and getting the proposals for the uniforms. We expect to have the cloth and uniforms on sale about the middle of November."

BEAU BRUMMELL—who "taught Wales what a coat was like"—inventor of numberless niceties of dress—gambled himself into poverty. Publicly cut by the King, he had his last remaining finery laid out preparatory to seeking a friend who might save him from disgrace. With Weston, his faithful valet, keeping the door against the bailiffs, the great beau shaved serenely on. Prince of the Dandies to the last, he finished the job with the utmost care. Then, carefully wiping dry the precious blade and affectionately placing it in its case, he turned to Weston with the command: "Now let the rogues in."

The razor that Beau Brummell used was a shaving tool of wonderful balance. Length, temper and correct diagonal stroke were there; all it lacked was the safety and convenience of the double-edged, detachable blades of the

RUTH HELPS RED SOX TO DRIVE WITHIN ONE VICTORY OF WORLD'S BASEBALL TITLE

WILD TOSS GIVES RED SOX VICTORY IN FOURTH GAME

Douglas of Cubs Throws Ball Away in Eighth Inning of Seething Battle.

RUTH STILL UNTAMED HERO

Tarzan of Boston Tribe Triples with Two on Bases in Early Effort.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 9.—The dogged, uphill fight of the Chicago Cubs today to wrest victory from the Boston Red Sox at Fenway Park in the fourth game of the world's series was depressingly thwarted this afternoon by one of their own players. Shuffling Phil Douglas, the big, awkward pitcher, sent the Boston men riding to victory on the wings of an impetuous, violent throw past first base which allowed Wallie Schang to race home from second base with the run that lacerated the 2 to 2 tie and brought the Athens of America home in front by a score of 3 to 2.

It was the tricky, moist ball which brought disaster tumbling down on Douglas's head. He thoroughly moistened the ball in serving a deceptive jumping tangent to Harry Hooper in the eighth inning. Hooper laid a bunt on the infield lawn and when Douglas picked the ball up the wet, slippery sphere skidded in his hand as he threw and went hopping to the right field stand.

With the Boston crowd in a hysterical agitation of excitement, Shang, perched on second base, cut loose and speeded over the plate. The trickery pitching of Douglas had turned on him like a boomerang and he succumbed to his own faulty artfulness.

The Red Sox have now won three out of four games and each victory has come only after the closest and bitterest competition ever witnessed in the national baseball carnival.

Governor McCall Sees Game.

A threatening cloudy day was the reason for some empty seats in the pavilion and bleachers, but the grand stand was packed. In the crowd of prominent New England folks who filled the boxes were the Governor of the Commonwealth, Samuel W. McCall, and the Mayor of Boston, Andrew J. Peters. Besides there were as many thousands as could conveniently lay aside the pursuit of knowledge and culture to enjoy the frivolous fancies of an afternoon of sport.

No one in the crowd enjoyed the matinee quite as much as sixty pale and modest heroes who have been invalided home from the horrors of the Marne battlefield. These wounded Yanks had their first taste of enjoyment since they got out of ear shot of the thundering shells of the Huns.

Boston, always sparing and careful with its applause, watched the proceedings with a critical eye this afternoon for the first few innings as the Cubs and Red Sox battled along on even terms. There was nothing to choose between the skill and cunning of the opposing athletes.

It was not until the fourth inning, when the Tarzan of the Boston tribe, Babe Ruth, came to the plate, swinging his savage looking black bludgeon, that restraint was set aside. Like Banquo's ghost at Macbeth's banquet the colossal figure of Ruth cast a sinister shadow over the Chicago club. From Manager Mitchell down to the Cubs' bat boy they have feared Boston's superslugger. In vain have they tried to make themselves believe that Tarzan, as his teammates affectionately call him, could always be subdued as Big Jim Vaughn suppressed him in the first game in Chicago.

Ruth Still Untamed.

The fourth inning was been Boston's lucky stanza in this series, and when the Red Sox came to the bat in the fourth the unemotional gathering first began to prick up their ears. Dave Shean was the first batsman up and Lefty Tyler, on whose shoulders the Cubs had placed the responsibility of today's battle, was very wary of David, because in the first inning Shean had cast a rumbling two bagger against the left field fence. This trip Dave got a free ticket. He started to steal second, and Killifer let one of Tyler's shoots slip past him, and Shean was high and dry at the keystone cushion.

After Strunk had pumped a high rocket to Paskert, Ty'er again lost his grip and gave Whiteman a pass. Dangerous Jack McInnis rolled a grounder to Tyler, who tossed to Deal, forcing Shean at third.

Wherefore and why comes all the tumult and the shouting? Why does the select gathering forget its dignity and poise to burst into paans of raucous clamor as becomes only the proletariat of the bleachers? Look, neighbor, it is all because Tarzan comes to the bat.

Tyler looked him over with a keen eye. He pitched three wide low curves outside of the plate, and Ruth looked on with disdain, and his black bat never left his shoulder.

It appeared as if Tyler was going to use good sense and pass Ruth to fill the bases and take a chance on Everett Scott. But no, Tyler wanted to humble this fence breaker, just as his teammate Jim Vaughn had done, and strike him out. Tyler then cut the plate with a couple of swift dizzy tosses, both of which Umpire "Brick" Owens decreed were perfectly healthy strikes. Three balls and two strikes was the predicament in which Tyler found himself.

Tyler turned about toward right field and wig-wagged Max Flack to pitch his camp nearer the fence. Flack heeded not Tyler's warning and shifted only a few inches. Again Tyler waved to Flack to play deeper, but Flack seemed to think that he would play right field just about as he thought best, and decided to stay where he was.

The Chicago pitcher then turned loose the all-important shoot at Ruth. Babe's bat left his shoulder and met with crushing impact against the innocent ball. The worst had happened. Ruth's smash soared high over Flack's head and Max was so flustered that at first he took a few steps forward before he realized that the ball was soaring past him. On and on the ball rolled to the fence, where it came to a sudden stop as it nestled, bruised and lopsided, against a sign which advised the reader to eat somebody or other's bread.

Whiteman and McInnis scampered home while the quiet folks of the Fenway stuck their heads out of the windows to see whether an earthquake had struck their exclusive neighborhood. Ruth did not stop running until he reached third base.

Flack had disobeyed orders just as Cy Seymour did back on the Polo Grounds in that eventful play-off with the Cubs in 1908. The Peerless Matty on that occasion waved Seymour back into centre field when Joe Tinker came to bat, but Seymour, just as Flack did today, did not take the warning and Tinker won a pennant by slapping the ball over Cy's head. Thus does history repeat itself.

Oh why, oh why, thought Lefty Tyler, didn't I have the common and garden variety of sense to pass that boy.

The next time Ruth came up was in the seventh and this time Flack played far out in the wilderness only to be laughed at because Ruth made only a sacrifice hit.

Exhilarated by this lead of two runs, the Red Sox blocked the way of the Cubs with a stonewall defense which produced many fielding gems of rare worth. Scott at shortstop, as he always does at critical moments, performed with a wonderful execution that brought rounds of cheers from the spectators.

Those pesky Cubs had not yet started to fight. There was still a lot of clawing and kicking left in them, and they always had Ruth in a hole. From the very start of the game Ruth lacked the sureness and confidence that marked his pitching in the opening game in Chicago. He was in trouble often and had to work hard on all the batsmen before they were finally disposed of.

A gleam of hope came from the Cubs in the seventh when, with one gone, Ruth lost control and passed Merkle and Rollie Zeider, who went in to bat for Pick and later played at third base. Manager Mitchell rushed in Wortman to bat for Chuck Deal, but again the Red Sox defense rose to the occasion and Wortman fell into the trap of a double play which was swiftly engineered by the incomparable Scott, who tossed to Shean, forcing Zeider, while Shean relayed the ball to first in time to double Wortman.

It was in the eighth that the Cubs struck back and persistently stuck to their task until they had completely wiped out the destruction executed by Ruth's savage bat.

Cubs Tie Up Contest.

Bill Killifer was favored by Ruth at the opening of the eighth with a pass, Manager Mitchell, now desperate in his effort to overtake the Sox, sent Claude Hendrix to the plate as a pinch hitter for Tyler, and Claude did his duty well, cracking a single to left centre which sent Killifer to second. Ruth was somewhat upset at this sudden turn of affairs and unraveled a wild pitch which placed the runners on second and third.

At this point Mitchell sent McCabe in to run for Hendrix. Here was a fine chance for Max Flack to redeem himself. His judgment had been costly to the Cubs up to this time, for not only did he lose Ruth's great wallop by disobeying Tyler's orders but twice when he got on bases in the first and later in the third he was stricken with insomnia and was caught napping. Flack again fell down, sending an easy grounder right into the hands of Stuffy McInnis.

Charley Hollocher, whose weak hitting has been one of the Cubs' greatest disappointments, was next at the bat, and as Shean was tossing him out at first Killifer crossed the plate. The Cubs were fired at this bit of fortune, and Leslie Mann showed his enthusiasm with a singing single to left which sent McCabe home with the tieing run.

Then came the last of the eighth with Phil Douglas on the mound. Schang, pinch hitting for Sam Agnew, gave Shufflin' Phil a rough greeting and slammed a single to centre. Killifer, playing far below his usual form, let another ball get by him, and Schang decorated second base after the passed ball.

Up came Harry Hooper and he laid down a bunt with which he meant to sacrifice Schang to third, but when Douglas picked up the ball and made his incorrigible throw past Merkle at first, Schang raced home with the victory.

The ninth inning saw the wise head of little Jack McInnis play an important part in the timely halt of another Cub rally. No player in the whole series has shown the baseball sense that the first baseman of the Red Sox has displayed.

Ruth was tottering in the ninth when Merkle opened the inning with a single to left. Zeider was patient and Ruth gave him pass. On the Red Sox bench Manager Barrow was fit to be tied. He saw the game slipping away, and although Ruth had made himself the day's hero he ruthlessly banked Tarzan out of the box and sent him out into left field while Bullet Joe Bush was called in from the warming-up pasture to save the day.

Vortman was the first batsman to face Bush, and McInnis came in and played within a few feet of the batter in order to choke off a bunt. Vortman, after his first attempt to bunt, tried to fool McInnis by making a swing at the ball. Here is where McInnis outguessed the batter, and when Vortman bunted again McInnis was right on top of the ball and threw to Thomas, forcing Merkle at third in the play which would have been a vital factor for the Cubs if it had been successful.

Still Manager Mitchell hoped to outgeneral the Sox. He took Killifer out of the game and sent Barber in to bat for him. A single would have tied the score, but once more Scott rose to menace the onrushing Cubs. Barber ripped a tearing ground at Scotty, who, without flurry or effort, placed himself at the forward end of a double play, which in two seconds squelched both Wortman and Barber for the double killing which sent Chicago's ambitious baseball machine crumbling to defeat.

DOUGLAS MARS CUBS' FIGHT.

Uphill Battle of Chicago Lost on Weird Heave.

BOSTON, Sept. 9.—Thrown back on the defensive by two defeats on their home grounds, the Chicago Cubs engaged the Boston Red Sox on foreign fields this afternoon in the fourth combat of the world's series. Some twenty thousand spectators saw the red-hosed champions of the American League renew their offensive on their own grounds where they have always played their strongest game. The contest was fought on a rain-soaked field.

The details of the game follow:

FIRST INNING.—Cubs—The crowd gave Flack a good cheer when he singled sharply to right after the count was two balls and one strike. Hollocher lined to Scott and Flack darted back to first safely. Agnew picked Flack off first base with a lightning throw to McInnis. Mann fouled out to McInnis. NO RUNS. ONE HIT. NO ERRORS.

FIRST INNING.—Red Sox—The home folks gave Harry Hooper a big hand when he came to bat. With the count two and three Hooper drove a high fly to Flack. Shean drove a long hit against the left field fence for two bases. Strunk waited Tyler out till the count was three and two, and then fanned on a low curve. Tyler had plenty of speed and kept the ball on the corner of the plate. Whiteman filed to Flack. NO RUNS. ONE HIT. NO ERRORS.

SECOND INNING.—Cubs—Ruth took Paskert's grounder and threw him out. Scott came in fast for Merkle's grounder and threw him out at first. Pick beat out an infield hit which Thomas could not field in time. Deal singled sharply past Thomas, Pick going to second. Agnew almost picked Deal off first. Killifer forced Pick at third, Scott to Thomas. NO RUNS. TWO HITS. NO ERRORS.

SECOND INNING.—Red Sox—McInnis sent up a high fly to Hollocher. A storm of applause greeted Ruth as he came to bat and the Chicago outfield complimented him by backing up against the fences. Pick made a pretty one-hand stop of Ruth's grounder and got his man at first. Deal threw out Scott. NO RUNS. NO HITS. NO ERRORS.

THIRD INNING.—Cubs—George Tyler, who formerly pitched for the Boston Braves, was treated to a good reception when he came to the plate. Tyler walked. Ruth's sweeping curve broke wide of the plate. Flack forced Tyler at second, Scott to Shean. Hollocher grounded out to McInnis, unassisted, Flack going to second. Ruth picked Flack off second, Scott took the throw. NO RUNS. NO HITS. NO ERRORS.

THIRD INNING.—Red Sox—Thomas popped to Hollocher, who went back of second to make the catch. Mann had to go out toward the embankment to get Agnew's long smash. Hooper went out, Merkle to Tyler. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

FOURTH INNING.—Cubs—Thomas threw out Mann at first. Scott went down behind second base and robbed Paskert of a hit. The Boston shortstop took Paskert's grounder on the dead run and made a sharp throw to first. Merkle filed out to Whiteman. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

FOURTH INNING.—Red Sox—Shean walked. Strunk filed out to Paskert. Shean went to second on a short passed ball. Shean was credited with a stolen base by the official scorer, Shean having started on the pitch. Whiteman walked. Hendrix began to warm up for Chicago. McInnis forced Shean at third. Tyler to Deal. Whiteman went to second on the play. McInnis was safe at first, Deal's throw to double him being late. Tyler tossed up three straight balls, and then put over two strikes to Ruth. Whiteman and McInnis scored on Ruth's terrific three-base hit to right centre. The stands were in an uproar. Scott filed to Paskert. TWO RUNS, ONE HIT, NO ERRORS.

FIFTH INNING.—Cubs—Pick popped a hit over Ruth's head. Hooper came in and took Deal's holst. Killifer hit into a double play. Ruth to Scott to McInnis. NO RUNS, ONE HIT, NO ERRORS.

FIFTH INNING.—Red Sox—Tyler took Thomas's dribbler and tossed him out. Deal made a nice play on Agnew's hopper, and got his man at first. Hooper sent a high fly to Flack. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

SIXTH INNING.—Cubs—Tyler walked for the second time. Flack forced Tyler at second, Ruth to Shean. Shean threw out Hollocher at first, Flack going to second. Thomas threw out Mann at first. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

SIXTH INNING.—Red Sox—Deal made a sparkling play on Shean's grounder and got him at first. Pick tossed out Strunk at first. Tyler took Whiteman's grounder and threw him out. NO RUNS, NO HITS. NO ERRORS.

SEVENTH INNING.—Cubs — Scott threw out Paskert. Merkle strolled, the fourth ball going low. Zeider batted in place of Pick. Zeider also walked. O'Farrell batted for Deal. O'Farrell hit into a double play, Scott to Shean to McInnis. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

SEVENTH INNING.—Red Sox—Zeider went to third base for the Cubs and Wortman went to second in place of Pick. McInnis singled into left field. The stands rocked with applause when Ruth came to bat. Ruth sacrificed, Zeider to Merkle. Tyler took Scott's grounder and threw to Zeider, who touched out McInnis on the line, Scott reaching first. Wortman caught Thomas's high fly. NO RUNS, ONE HIT. NO ERRORS.

EIGHTH INNING.—Cubs—Killifer walked. Hendrix batted for Tyler. Hendrix drove a long single into left field, Killifer going to second. On a wild pitch Killifer went to third and Hendrix to second. McInnis picked up Flack's grounder and touched him out, Killifer and Hendrix holding their bases. With Hollocher up, McCabe was put in to run for Hendrix. Killifer scored while Shean was throwing out Hollocher, McCabe taking third. McCabe scored on Mann's timely and well-placed single to left. Thomas threw out Paskert at first. TWO RUNS. TWO HITS. NO ERRORS.

EIGHTH INNING.—Red Sox—Douglas went into the box for Chicago. Schang batted in place of Agnew. Schang shot a single over second. On a short passed ball, Schang went to second. Hooper sacrificed, and when Douglas threw wildly past Merkle, Schang scored and Hooper reached second. Shean filed to Mann. Strunk flied out to Paskert. Zeider threw out Whiteman at first. ONE RUN. ONE HIT. ONE ERROR.

NINTH INNING.—Cubs—Schang now catching for Boston. Merkle singled over second. Zeider walked, for the second time, and Ruth was called from the box. He had weakened in the last two innings. Ruth was sent out to left field in place of Whiteman. Bush went into the box for Boston. Bush sent a strike over to Wortman on the first pitch. Two balls followed. McInnis took Wortman's attempted sacrifice and threw to Thomas, forcing Merkle. Wortman reached first, Zeider second. Barber batted for Killifer. Barber hit into a double play, Scott to Shean to McInnis. NO RUNS. ONE HIT. NO ERRORS.

LYKE'S RIDE LANDS CORN TASSEL FIRST

Lawrence Lyke showed that he has entirely recovered from the slump that affected his riding at Saratoga when he rode R. T. Wilson, Jr.'s Corn Tassel to victory yesterday in a race that thrilled a fair-sized crowd at Belmont Park.

Corn Tassel, though giving away weight to all the starters in the Amityville Handicap at a mile, was a strong favorite, but his chances appeared to be ruined when he was practically left at the post. The starter and his assistants were so busy keeping in order the fractious Hank O'Day that when the unruly one got in line the barrier was sent up irrespective of the fact that the favorite was not ready.

There was a cry of dismay as the field went rushing through the back stretch with the speedy St. Isidore in the lead and Corn Tassel ten lengths back. That Corn Tassel had no chance was the general verdict, but Lyke, in command of the forlorn hope, remained cool and was content to make up ground gradually. Going around the bend Lyke had managed to work up to fourth place, and then with the goal almost in sight he began to set it in. There was no time to manoeuvre for a chance to cut through on the rail, and with four horses in front of him, Corn Tassel had to run wide, entering the stretch. He moved so swiftly, however, that he was almost on even terms with the leader as he straightened out for home. Walls on St. Isidore was doing his best to maintain his slight advantage, but the vigorous Lyke had a game horse under him, and rode with such energy that he landed Corn Tassel first by a head. There was a great reception for Lyke as he returned to the scales, as he had saved the day for form players on what promised to be another disastrous occasion.

WELLING BEATS WALLACE.

Brooklyn Boxer Averts Disaster by Butting with Head.

The only impression Eddie Wallace of Brooklyn could make on Joe Welling, a jackie from the U. S. S. Granite State, in their eight-round boxing bout last night at the Armory A. A. of Jersey City, was by butting with his head. For six rounds Wallace took an unmerciful beating trying to get one blow through the guard of the clever sailor, and then, disgusted with his vain efforts, Wallace lowered his head and jumped at Welling. The heads of the two fighters came together with a thud, but Welling had his eye in the collision and a cut was opened that bled profusely for the rest of the bout, which was fought to a conclusion, although the referee could have disqualified Wallace for butting.

DIRECTUM J. WINS PACE.

Travels Last Half Mile in 0:59½ at Syracuse.

SYRACUSE, Sept. 9.—Directum J., driven by Tommy Murphy, won the Chamber of Commerce 2:05 pace, the feature event of the opening day's card of the Grand Corcuit held in connection with the New York State fair here this afternoon.

Murphy's black horse fought it out in all three heats with Mary Rosalind Parr and Jay Mack, but the Poughkeepsie reinsman, in a whipping finish, flashed his silks across first in the last two heats. Directum J., paced the last half of the final heat in 0:59½ to win first money.

Tennis Tourney Postponed.

The women's Long Island championship tennis tournament, which was scheduled to have started yesterday on the courts of the Woodmere Country Club, has been postponed until Friday, when play will begin in the singles. The tournament will continue Saturday and Sunday.

The *"Composite" Derby is built on the "law of averages."

It's our own idea and is the result of keeping close tabs for three seasons on:

(1) The number of hats sold.

(2) The favorite styles.

(3) The most becoming shapes.

(4) The conforms necessary to conform those shapes to most men's heads.

In short, we averaged all the information we could gather and built up a composite picture of the average man's hat for the average man's head. Hence the name *"Composite."

A wide variety of proportions and dimensions—a variety unusual even for us. All sizes from 6⅝ to 7¾.

Lightweight and flexible; conforms without conforming.

We put the average low, but it's safe to say the *"Composite" will easily fit "80 out of every 100" men.

It was something more than the circus of our youth that filled the scene last night at the Criterion. The snake-charmer was there, to be sure, and the lady bareback rider—two of them. The Wild Man raged and the Living Skeleton did his long familiar contortions. Lavinia Warren coquetted diminutively with each and sundry, and eventually married General Tom Thumb. We assisted at the birth of the great idea of pink lemonade, and we had our nostrils filled with the glorious aroma of peanuts and sawdust. And in and above it all was the person of P. T. Barnum, greatest moral showman on earth, reincarnated in earth's greatest fat actor, Thomas A. Wise. But that was the lesser part.

Any adequate history of the nineteenth century will surely take note of Barnum among its representative men. It was he who discovered that the public likes to be humbugged—and took good care that the humbuggery was clever enough to be worth half a dollar. And it was he who discovered the great truth that the twentieth century has dramatized—it pays to advertise. American brag and American bluff; our love of clever new trickery and our passion for all the old moralities; our remorseless calculation in matters of business and our abounding personal kindliness and generosity—they were all there. Barnum was the soul of the provincial American of the nineteenth century, but the soul was big enough to inspire a continent and win fame and fortune in the other hemisphere.

Really the press agents should canonize Mr. Barnum as their patron saint. Was business slack in one-day stands on the Mississippi? Mr. Barnum let the wild man loose, and sent his tent-peggers out to warn mothers and protect the lives of their children. And by showtime he had not only captured his wild man, (a fugitive negro,) but had rehearsed him in all the tricks of wildness, so that the local ladies could see the terrible thing from which he had saved their darlings. When General Tom Thumb and Lavinia allowed they would get married he had the ceremony performed in Grace Church, with full military escort, and invited all the notables of the nation, and ultimately presented them to the royal notice of Queen Victoria. There is scarcely a dodge known to contemporary Broadway which he did not invent and practice on a scale that was simply gigantic.

Envy will no doubt mingle with reverence for him. It may even be alleged that the public of that early day must have been a precious lot of boobs. They were, but only because the game was new to them. Barnum was the Christopher Columbus of publicity, the second great discoverer of America.

As a play, the offering is somewhat sketchy. Most of the evening is spent in depicting the veracious origins of the Wild Man, of pink lemonade, and of Tom Thumb, with revealing the historic character of the Greatest Moral Showman in all its lights and shadows, its thousand faces of humorous invention. Little time is left for plot. But a love story trickles through the evening, and also a business plot. It shows how our hero was brought to the verge of ruin by a trusted Lieutenant, and retrieved his fortunes by importing Jenny Lind to sing at Castle Garden. But if it all makes little impression dramatically, it serves well as a background for the picturing of the era of Barnum, and that for one evening is good and sufficient measure.

The art of Mr. Wise is as abundant as his person, and it is of consummate delicacy and skill. The episodes which he and Mr. Rhodes have devised are highly characteristic and clever, the lines pointed and pungent of wit. In Barnum's hands they take on the very color of actuality, and keep the audience incessantly interested and amused, in spite of the lack of body in the play.

Youngsters will delight in seeing the circus which they love in its humble origins and inceptions; and oldsters, whose fairest memories are the Wild Man and Tom Thumb, peanuts and pink lemonade, will find a rarer delight in taking them to this play than to the circus of today, the three rings of which still seem an impertinent redundancy of what singly was the most precious of mortal delectations.

WILSON DRIVES IN VICTORIA.

President and Wife Take a Ride Behind Bay Horses.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—President and Mrs. Wilson took a drive this afternoon in their victoria, drawn by two bay horses.

Italian Ambassador and Countess di Cellere left for Chicago this afternoon to attend the Allied War Exposition, which opened Labor Day. They returned to Washingtotn last night from New York, where they went for the launching of the Piave on Saturday.

Japanese Ambassador and Viscountess Ishii, who went to New York for the Lafayette celebration last Friday, are now in Canada, where they will spend a fortnight, returning to the embassy early next week.

Mrs. Baker, wife of Secretary Baker, accompanied her guest, Mme. Miura, the Japanese prima donna, to Camp Humphreys this afternoon. They had dinner at the camp. Mme. Miura gave a short program afterward.

Mrs. Nordvall, wife of the Special Commissioner of Sweden to the United States, accompanied by Miss Lif. Nanssen, daughter of Dr. Nanssen, the explorer, is touring the West. They are now in Yellowstone Park, and will go to Salt Lake City. Miss Nanssen came to this country with her father when he was Special Envoy for the Norwegian Government.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Maytime" last night returned to the stage of the Broadhurst following a brief engagement at the Lyric. The latter house will remain dark until Saturday night, when "The Unknown Purple" will be presented.

A free performance of "Three Faces East" will be given at the Conan and Harris Theatre next Sunday night for soldiers and sailors.

Two companies of "Seventeen" will be sent on tour next week by Stuart Walker. Burford Hampden will play the leading role in the Eastern organization, and Donald Foster in the Western.

Cecil Kern will be the leading woman in "Tell That to the Marines," with which Adolf Philipp will begin a season of American drama at the Yorkville Theatre on Sept. 24.

"ONE OF US" IS GOOD FUN.

Jack Lait's "Metropolitan Comedy" at Bijou Is Full of Action.

ONE OF US, a comedy in three acts by Jack Lait and Jo Swerling. At the Bijou.

Young Mason	Henry Tracey
David Strong	Arthur Ashley
Elsie Strong	Helen Montrose
Cyril Roswell	Murray Stephen
Tony Watson	M. S. Vincent
Harry Miller	William Balfour
Marie Foley	Ruth Donnelly
"Jazz Joe" Falk	Bertha Mann
Joan Grey	Bertha Mann
"Parson" Smith	Harry C. Bradley
"Coast-to-Coast" Taylor	Charles Gotthold
Mullen	William Balfour
Egan	Stanley Jessup
Barry	F. Raymond
A Butler	Wilson Haggard
The Jazz Land Band	John H. Phillips, Frank Christian, John J. Stern, Frank T. Shotak.

Jack Lait's "One of Us," which Oliver Morosco brought to the Bijou last night, has some stamp of Western journeying in a dancing Frisco Molly and a Chicago jazz band, which made it fit neatly into the after-dinner hour in New York. Before the café noise died down, the play2 got going with a make-believe roughhouse cabaret wedding, where David Strong, Jr., Harvard '12, pretended to be the roughest of the underworld and got away with it through most of four quick scenes. He wound up at a real wedding of Strong's sister, where the underworld girl of David's choice broke in to save "her man" from supposed thievery and murder, and where she ran instead into the arms of a mother-in-law, who saw in her "one of" the other kind of thoroughbreds. Midway in the play only the stage lights misbehaved in poor Joan's flat.

Bertha Mann acted the girl of the cabaret, who was good enough for the Lake Shore Drive, and acted so simply that she carried her audience with her. It was masked melodrama, this "metropolitan comedy," and Arthur Ashley was more to be pitied than scorned for a gallant effort to prove you could "fool" a girl like that if you weren't one of her kind. When the "Harvard man" said, "I haven't the fundamental rudiments of an education," even the Lake Shore would have begun to suspect. Mr. Ashley carried the crook scenes with a firm hand and loud voice, and he had plenty to do in what one of the characters described as "a crooks' convention."

Among the players, Harry Bradley as a sunny paragon struck a friendly note of old-time melodrama. Helene Montrose, Murray Stevens, and Mrs. Gurney were the Chicago bluebook folk, and David Vincent, Ruth Donnelly, Isabella Jason, Harry Hart, Stanley Jessup, and Charles Gotthold some of those who followed the hero's mad wooing from the cabaret to a conclusion that held the house at the final curtain.

WAR PLAY OPENS CENTRAL.

Alice Brady Acts the Heroine of "Forever After," by Owen Davis.

FOREVER AFTER, a drama in three acts and seven scenes, by Owen Davis. At the Central Theatre.

Ted	Conrad Nagel
Jack	John Warner
Jennie	Alice Brady
Mrs. Clayton	Mrs. Russ Whytal
Mr. Clayton	Frank Hatch
Nan	Isabel Lamon
Private Nolan	Fred Bond
Tom Lowell	Frederick Manatt
McNab	Paul Jones
Miss Webb	Hilda Helstrom
Dr. Mason	Harry Forsman
Williams	J. Paul Jones

Alice Brady returned to the spoken drama last night in a war play, "Forever After," by Owen Davis, introducing incidentally the latest Shubert playhouse to the public, the New Central, at Broadway and Forty-seventh Street. The play which in structure resembles somewhat the style of "On Trial," opens with a battlefield scene in the wilderness, where Conrad Nagel as Ted, dying in the arms of his comrade Jack, (John Warner,) reviews in delirium his stormy love affair with Jenny, (Alice Brady.)

The story concerns itself with the beautiful idyll of two childhood sweethearts, Jenny, the daughter of a rich man, and Ted, the son of the poor man, a romance which is for a time shattered by Jenny's ambitious mother, Mrs. Clayton, (Mrs. Russ Whytal,) who aims at a better match with Jack. Ted, laden with his father's debts and crushed by his own poverty, seeks to disillusion his sweetheart. He succeeds for a time, only to meet her again in a ruined château, where he is brought to die and where she, as a Red Cross nurse, pours out again to him her passionate declaration of love.

The play offered many possibilities to Miss Brady, first as a young girl in the glory of her earliest love affair and later as a grief-stricken woman mourning the destruction of her ideals. In the smaller roles the work of Frank Hatch as Mr. Clayton and Frederick Manatt as the distracted captain of a college crew stood out prominently.

The newest of the Shubert playhouses is a large one, seating 1,100 and is one of the prettiest in the city. The interior decorations are colored French gray and old gold, designed in the style of Louis XVI.

Lina Abarbanell in Little Operetta.

Operetta of the old-fashioned sort, lately introduced to Broadway by "Fiddlers Three," finds its way into the varieties at the Palace this week. The piece is entitled "Philopena," and serves to reintroduce Lina Abarbanell to vaudeville. It is tuneful and well presented.

Theodore Kosloff stages a new Russian dancing act, and George White and his terpsichorean number are retained for a second week. The comedy of the program is in the hands of a trio of established performers—Stan Stanley, Lew Dockstader, and T. Roy Barnes.

Cardinal Farley Out of Danger.

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Sept. 9.—Cardinal Farley was pronounced out of danger today by his attending physicians, it was said at the Cardinal's Summer home here, where he has been seriously ill with pneumonia. He is very much improved and was able to leave his bed early this morning.

MEN MUST REGISTER SEPT. 12.

Every man past his 18th birthday and who has not yet reached his 46th, except those already registered or in service, must register for the selective service draft on Sept. 12.

LIVELY COMEDY IN NEW MELODRAMA

"Some One in the House" Excites Interest and Curiosity to the Play's End.

ATTRACTIVE CROOK ITS HERO

A Variety of Interesting Characters Help in the Rapid Development of the Plot.

SOME ONE IN THE HOUSE, a comedy in four acts by Larry Evans. Walter C. Percival, and George S. Kaufman. At the Knickerbocker.

McVeigh	Joseph Woodburn
Snowie	Edwin Redding
The Deacon	William B. Mack
English	Dudley Digges
Halloran	Sidney Toler
Jimmy Burke	Robert Hudson
Peter Spencer	Robert Barrat
Freddie Vanderpool	Rex McDougal
Tom Hargraves	John Blair
Gerald Fenshaw	James Dyrenforth
Molly Brent	Julia Hay
Mrs. Glendenning	Lynn Fontanne
J. Percyval Glendenning	Hassard Short
Higgins	Basil West
Roberta Rollings	Mona Kingsley
Malone	John Sparks

One of the tests by which the appeal of a melodrama to an audience may be determined is in whether, after the final curtain has fallen, the people, as they go out, discuss the play, particularly its ending, how it was arrived at and what relation it bears to the guesses and speculations stimulated during the performance. By this test, "Someone in the House," presented at the Knickerbocker Theatre last night, succeeded with its initial New York audience.

"I didn't think he would really do it, but I didn't see how he was going to get out of it," one woman was heard to remark.

"I expected him to succeed—he just had to, you know. Yet, he couldn't have, really—for that would have spoiled everything," was another comment.

"He certainly did both of the things he wanted to do, didn't he?" said another. And so on.

All of which is to say that "Someone in the House" progressed through four acts of melodramatic plot—and lively comedy be it added at once—developing the interest and curiosity of the audience to the end, when the unexpected, and yet, only logical, thing happened—and everybody seemed satisfied. The crook in a melodrama always wins the sympathy of an audience. He just can't be caught in the end and send ignominiously to prison. Yet if he is a real crook he can't reform, promise to be a good little boy in the future, receive the Governor's pardon for his past offenses, and marry the lovely girl who has learned to love him. He becomes too tame under any such treatment. Yet it would be not quite tasteful to have him remain a cold blooded crook and succeed in his nefarious designs at the expense of trusting friends, including the lovely girl. What can be done with him in the last act, then—when he becomes so troublesome? That is the problem tackled by the authors of "Someone in the House," and solved as cleverly as any one last night seemed to wish.

Robert Hudson is the crook—and a convincing one. He appears in the first act in his true character—in a realistically staged pawnbroker's shop, where Deacon, played by William B. Mack, and English, played by Dudley Digges, his pals, enter the plot with him. This act is straight melodrama—and well done. It gets the play going with its own momentum.

The comedy is introduced in the second act, and it never departs. Hassard Short as J. Percival Glendenning, and Lynn Fontanne as Mrs. Glendenning supply most of it. They have lines with which to make the most of their talents at appearing as human absurdities—and one gets the habit of laughing at everything they say and do. They would be a temptation to a normally honest man with only the ordinary criminal tendencies ascribed to most humans by psychologists. The lovely girl, Molly Brant, is very lovely, and John Blair, in the character of Tom Hargraves, who had had hopes and chances of winning the girl until the attractive crook came, assumes appropriately, and with skill, the burden of keeping ever present the element of vague, yet menacing, suspicion by which the criminal on the stage, and his friends in the audience, are kept on their mettle.

There are many other factors in the plot and comedy—a rube policeman, two New York detectives, several society people of both sexes, and a valuable Pekinese which appears only in the affectionate memory of J. Percival.

STORY OF CHANGES IN CABINET DENIED

Rumor Had It Baker Would Retire Shortly and McAdoo Take War Portfolio.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—No real basis was discovered in Washington today for current reports of impending changes in President Wilson's Cabinet involving the War and Treasury portfolios. In well-informed Administration circles these reports were declared to be so lacking in foundation as not to warrant the recognition of formal denial.

According to one of the reports, Secretary Baker is to remain in France for a considerable period, co-ordinating the work of the army on both sides of the Atlantic, and ultimately will retire as Secretary of War. The same report had it that Secretary McAdoo would become Secretary of War and John Skelton Williams Secretary of the Treasury, but that none of these changes would occur until after the Liberty Loan flotation.

Benedict Crowell, the Acting Secretary of War, asserted very definitely tonight that Secretary Baker crossed the ocean only for a quick trip to France on official army matters and that his stay would not be extended. It was also learned definitely from a high official source, in full confirmation of the statement made in THE NEW YORK TIMES this morning, that the primary object of Secretary Baker's present trip to France was to deal with the aircraft situation.

PARIS WOMEN THANK WILSON

Tell of Their Pleasure at His Letter on Suffrage.

On behalf of the women of France, Mme. Marguerite De Witt Schlumberger, President of the Union Française pour le Suffrage des Femmes, has sent a letter to President Wilson thanking him for his "stirring reply on the subject of woman suffrage," and stating that the President's message has been given wide publicity in the press of Paris and the provinces. The letter continues: "The position of moral authority which you occupy in the world, Mr. President, gives to your thoughts and your opinions upon all profound and vital questions tremendous and uncontested weight. After the publication of your letter in the press we were immediately conscious, as we hoped, that your opinion on woman suffrage had made a deep impression in France. I had waited to thank you until I could indicate the first result of your reply to our address. The newspapers have published it during the last few days, as follows:

"Petit Parisien: 'The group for women's rights, meeting at the Chamber, has noted President Wilson's reply to the International Woman Suffrage Alliance, recognizing the part played by women in the war, and declaring himself in favor of their right to political franchise. The group has decided to request the Committee for Universal Suffrage to lodge its report on this question in the near future.'"

The letter was transmitted to President Wilson yesterday by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, when she arrived in Washington from New York.

W. S. S. CHANGES NEAR.

Vanderlip Will Retire, His Committee Going Out of Existence.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Under the new plan for reorganization of the national war savings machinery, Frank A. Vanderlip will retire within a few weeks as Chairman of the National War Savings Committee. He will again devote his entire time to his duties as President of the National City Bank.

Other members of the National Committee which will go out of existence are Henry Ford, Eugene Meyer, Jr., now Director of the War Finance Corporation; Charles L. Baine of Boston, member of Samuel Gompers's labor delegation now in Europe; Mrs. George Bass of Chicago, and Frederic A. Delano, ex-member of the Federal Reserve Board, now an army Major.

State directors have been asked to meet this week with Governors of Federal Reserve Banks to work out practical plans by which the Governors hereafter will direct war savings work in their districts.

WHERE ARE THEIR LEGS?

—the audience shouted

They thought the picture was out of focus.

They stamped their feet, they hissed.

AND THEN CAME APPLAUSE!!

It was in a little New York Motion Picture Theatre when spectators first saw the CLOSE-UP.

They had always seen figures in the far-off. And here was a face as full and close as a mother's over a cradle-bed.

It startled, it shocked, it delighted.

David Wark Griffith created the close-up, and later came other historic improvements from the ever-searching brain of that genius, the "cut-back" bringing suspense to the films, the "fade-away," the "long-shot," and on and on.

Do you realize when you see a motion picture, no matter who the producer, you see a product done with the tools Mr. Griffith created? Others use them now, but he placed them in their hands and taught them how.

He exacts no tribute or royalty for their use. He gives them freely to the world.

"Mr. Griffith is the great legendary figure of the films, the great inventor and innovator of their youth, yet also the great consistent, progressing genius of today. As inventor of the 'close-up' and 'cut-back' and half a dozen other technical devices, he might be content to occupy the position of a Masolina, discoverer of perspective and the art of painting. Yet each new production demonstrates that he is a Masaccio as well—an artist of full and splendid naturalistic powers. His is an art of pure emotion which can go beneath thought, beneath belief, beneath ideals, down to the brute fact of emotional psychology."—(The New Republic.)

"With all respect to his rivals, Mr. Griffith has demonstrated his claim to the sole and only right to make a picture that will go on the big time and stay there at two dollars."—(Washington, D. C., Herald.)

"Griffith is the One Genius of the Films. He stands Supreme and Alone."—(Indianapolis Star.)

Mr. Griffith's Supreme Triumph has now passed its 350th Performance in New York City.

THE GOVERNMENT RAILWAYS.

The Director General of the Railways is a business man. He knows that the laborer is worthy of his hire, consequently not only the wages of the men employed in the railway service, but the wages of the railways themselves have been raised under his administration. All the railway systems are laborers in the service of the nation. Mr. McADOO has a juster sense of the value of that service than the Interstate Commerce Commission has had.

The Director General knows the value of brains. The names of some 400 railway Presidents and other officers "have been removed from Government payrolls, though they have been retained at company expense." But the Director General is well aware that the vast and highly specialized business of the railways cannot be administered by cheap men. Regional Directors receive from the Government from $40,000 to $50,000 a year, and some Federal managers of individual roads get salaries as high as $40,000. A policy of niggardly payment to responsible railroad executives would constitute noncompliance with the intent and letter of the act authorizing Federal control. Twenty-one months after peace is declared the Government must turn over to the companies the railroads in as good condition as it received them. They would not be in as good condition, their capacity and usefulness would be grievously impaired, if through a mistaken Federal policy of fixing rates and compensation too low to retain or attract men of extraordinary ability and experience the railway systems should be deprived of the service of such men in high places. Accordingly, Mr. McADOO declares that

> It is not only equitable but necessary that they should be justly remunerated and that the reward of brains, industry, and loyalty should be sufficient to continually attract able men to the service of the railroads as their life's work. It is not merely a question of operating the railroads during the period of the war, but it is a question of the post bellum period as well, when railroad work must continue to be sufficiently attractive to draw constantly to it men of the right quality and calibre. The salaries paid under Government control to the higher officers should be sufficient to make the juniors realize that the promotions and rewards of a railroad career are still worth working for and that they will be commensurate with those of private enterprise and industry.

From the point of view of the Government, and that is paramount to all others, the Director General's first report is encouraging. Under his management, the railroads have been able to carry enormous volumes of freight for the Government; up to Aug. 1, 21,000,000 more tons of coal were hauled than in the same period last year. The transportation of soldiers to and from training camps and to ports of embarkation has added enormously to the business of the railroads, and in this war service they have been most efficient. The general public, the private patrons of the roads, have, however, suffered very serious privations and inconveniences. The matter is unimportant, quite negligible, it is a sacrifice the people willingly make in the interest of an efficient prosecution of the war. Note must be taken of it, however, to dispel delusions about Government operation.

Mileage books good over any Government-controlled roads are a convenience, but while under private operation mileage books were sold generally at 2 cents a mile, they now cost 3 cents. All railroad fares are higher, sleeping car and parlor car charges are higher, while the accommodation the railroads supply to the people is less. Under Government operation passenger-car mileage for the whole country has been reduced 67,000,000 miles per annum. The buying of all railway tickets for transportation or for sleeping cars and parlor chair cars is attended with a great deal of inconvenience to purchasers, some of it, we fear, unnecessary. Transportation of baggage is more uncertain than under private management—of that there is a great deal of complaint.

There is but one thing to be said for wartime Government operation of the railways. It has enabled them, through unification of the service, to do the war work of the Government doubtless better than it could have been done under independent operation. Private persons doing business with the railroads, either as passengers or as shippers of freight, have been disadvantaged. That is not complained of, but it is a matter that will be distinctly present in the public consciousness when, after the war, the advocates of Government ownership and operation begin to raise their voices for a continuance of Federal control.

TRAINING THE BOYS.

In the last school year great numbers of New York State schoolboys and boys of school age at work got military instruction and drill under the Compulsory Military Training act, which, as a matter of fact, could exercise no compulsion, since it contained no punishment for violation of its provisions. It really made military training elective. Take it or leave it; and nobody could do anything to you.

Fortunately, the law was amended into the form it should have had from the start. No healthy boy between 16 and 19 can stay in any school or college, public or private, or get any work in the State, unless he has a certificate of his enrollment for military training. Penalties are also provided for school officials who don't comply with the law.

Yesterday the enrollment began. How remote, as if divided from us by thousands of years instead of a few months, seem the bleatings of the pacifist flock weeping over this regrettable military training for boys. Why, some angels of this millennial lamb-and-lion picnic would have banned even the classic tin soldiers and drums and trumpets and popguns of pugnacious, noisy, healthy boyhood.

Well, there has been industrious pricking of many bladders. The country has learned a salutary if bitter lesson. Our boys must fit themselves to do their primary duty to the State and the country. Meanwhile, for their health, for the improvement of their carriage, for the restraint, discipline, and obedience which our American children too often fail to get at home or in school, this required military instruction will be useful permanently, aside from its immediate value as a preparation for the severer training of military service. Every healthy boy is to have it, and will be glad to have it if he is worth his salt.

GERMAN COLONIAL DREAMS.

It is curious to see German professors, journalists, and world politicians building up "Mittelafrika" even since the growing disaster that began on July 15. Thus the Kreuz-Zeitung, the voice of military Junkerism, says that "among the demands "upon which Germany must insist in "a victorious peace is the rounding "off her colonial territories in Africa. "East Africa, Togo, and Southwest "Africa will form the cornerstone of "a united German Africa."

Rubber and palm oil and a full list of tropical economic necessaries engage a multitude of German colonial experts. As library colonizers, the Germans are a marvel. Not long ago Mr. LEHMANN kindly restored and enlarged Germany's African colonies. Gobbling South Africa was child's play for him. German Africa would be made so much more valuable by German permanent control and occupation of the coal and iron lands of Flanders and France, and of the Flemish coast. He even threw in most of the British mercantile marine for good measure. Whom the gods would destroy!

Of these megalomaniac dreamers, dividing Africa while Germany is shaken at home, the moderates, the Centre, would be content, at first, with the Belgian Congo and enough of French and Portuguese West Africa to make an uninterrupted German Africa between the Atlantic and the Indian Ocean. The immoderates, or Right, the Kreuz-Zeitung school, annex South Africa, and by gigantic grabs in West Africa bring Togoland and the Cameroons into Middle Africa.

PAUL LENSCH, a Majority Socialist Deputy, though he doesn't agree with the Kreuz-Zeitung that the "splendid military material" in Africa should be exploited, yearns as strongly as the greediest Pan German economist for palm kernels and other colonial products. Why has German milk production fallen "almost by half"? Because there's no oilcake for fodder. Home foodstuffs don't produce so much, don't "give such good manure "as tropical products, which are "ripened by a far fiercer sun; and "where these tropical foodstuffs are "lacking, the output of milk, corn, "sugar, and hides sooner or later "falls, and the material basis of our "existence is at stake."

In short, without Africa, German babies, as Mr. VON MACH would say, must starve for want of milk. Mr. LENSCH solemnly, or funnily, affirms that Africa must be organized by German State Socialism.

Meanwhile, the fact remains that all German Africa, in extent between 900,000 and 1,000,000 square miles, is in the hands of Germany's enemies. It is true that the competent and cruel German commander in East Africa, Colonel VON LETTOW, and his forces have not been caught. In so vast and difficult a region, in the obscurity of the African bush, it is "practically impossible," as General SMUTS, who tried it for ten months, says, "to inclose an enemy determined to escape," but German East Africa, though it still affords a hiding place for VON LETTOW, is no longer German.

Knowing the German cruelties to natives, knowing that no promises could bind Germany to abandon the military exploitation of her African colonies, knowing what a detestable neighbor and sower of sedition and insurrection she is, knowing that her occupation of African ports and command of sea routes would be a permanent danger to peace, is the restoration to Germany of her colonies, let alone any extension of them, likely to commend itself to the free world?

ESSENTIAL WAR INDUSTRIES.

In the table of classes at the front of the questionnaire, which will determine the status of men between 18 and 45 who will register on Sept. 12, the deferred classifications contain such descriptions as: "Necessary "skilled industrial laborer in neces-"sary industrial enterprise"; "nec-"essary assistant or associate man-"ager of necessary industrial enter-"prise." And even in Class I, from which most of the men drafted for war service are drawn, Division F reads: "Unskilled or not a necessary industrial laborer." What is a necessary industrial enterprise, and what is the definition of "not a necessary industrial laborer"? Hitherto industries have not known where to place themselves, and workmen have been uncertain about their relation to the industries, as exempts or not. Except in the obvious essential industries, there has been a lack of regulation and, therefore, much confusion. The War Industries Board has now come to the relief of employer and workman with a list of preferred industries.

There are four classes in the order of their importance. A great deal of study has been given to completing the respective lists. At first sight it will not appear that all the industries named are essential, but in one way or another they are contributing to the prosecution of the war. Like Class I in the man-power draft, Class I of the preferred industries is logically at the head of the list. The war could not be carried on for a day without the products of the industries designated; at the same time, if importance seems to shade off as the series lengthens, it cannot be argued that any of the industries should have been omitted; they are all playing a part in the war; some perhaps a minor, but nevertheless an indispensable, part. If the question of more combatants is raised by General CROWDER, the list will have to be revised. That must certainly be done if the war is to last for several years and reinforcements, other than those planned, are called for. The maximum service age can hardly be advanced.

The purpose of the draft was to divide and assign the man power of the country according to military and industrial needs. A great deal has been said about the man behind the riveting tool being as much a factor in the war as the man behind the gun. It was not difficult to call men to the colors, put them in uniform, and train them. As a problem, that was simple enough. But to decide who should do the essential work at the rear and be exempt from military service was not so simple. To solve that problem, we have been muddling along. What the War Industries Board will effect by its list of essential industries is well put by Priorities Commissioner EDWIN B. PARKER:

> The administration of priorities is calculated to bring order out of chaos and to develop an evenly balanced industrial program to meet the requirements of the military program, and at the same time supply the essential requirements of the civilian population.

The administration of the plan will have its difficulties, but they will gradually disappear if employers and their workmen co-operate loyally and intelligently with the War Industries Board. They have now got their bearings.

POTASH INDEPENDENCE.

Great Britain will soon be producing as much potash fertilizer as was imported from Germany before the war, and the output in the United States is steadily growing. As the German people look at their own small crops and compare them with abundant yields on increased acreage in the countries of their foes, they must recall with resentment and sneers the attempts of Professor ROTH and other learned scientists to encourage them by asserting that American and British agriculture was suffering great restraint for lack of potash, and that at the peace conference the Allies would beg on their knees for renewal of the old supply.

In Great Britain the fertilizer is now taken from blast furnace dust by a cheap and simple process. One new factory, near Birmingham, is ready to produce from 400 to 500 tons a week. Others are to be built in the iron districts, and the output can easily be increased to 50,000 tons a year, or enough to satisfy all demands.

At the convention of the National Fertilizer Association in this city last week it was shown that the quantity of potash produced here this year would largely exceed last year's 32,000 tons. The presiding officer said it would "be possible, by mobilizing all "the raw material at blast furnaces "and cement mills, to reach an an-"nual output of 500,000 tons," or nearly twice as much as formerly came from Germany. Our imports in the year which immediately preceded the war were 283,025 tons, valued at $9,813,263. Part of our supply will be drawn from a California lake whose waters hold in solution, chemists say, 20,000,000 tons. Germany has lost forever her foreign market for potash.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Power Greater Than Law.

Nothing could better illustrate the power of public sentiment when it closely approaches unanimity than did the almost complete absence on Sunday of automobiles from all the city streets and country roads in this vicinity. Presumably, it was the same throughout the country east of the Mississippi. And this truly remarkable abandonment of a well-established habit from which thousands and thousands of people have long derived one of their greatest pleasures was brought about not by an order, but by a mere request of the Government! To make the phenomenon the more impressive, the request was issued through a board the previous acts of which have been much and hotly and justly criticised by the same public that in this instance showed itself so docile.

The explanation, of course, is that the request was reasonable and the motive of it thoroughly understood and as thoroughly approved.

On the first Sunday when it was asked that motoring except for necessity and charity be stopped, the thoughtless and the vicious folk who have always formed a small but conspicuous and troublesome minority of the automobiling part of the population acted after their familiar fashion and went out as usual. Their experiences on the road, however, were such as to convince even the dullest-witted and thickest-skinned that pleasure riding on a Sunday when intelligent and decent folk had united to save gasoline was about as unpleasing as riding could be. Few of them were arrested—none for ignoring the Government's request—but they all found themselves subjected to such a pressure of contempt and scorn that hardly one of them ventured out when the second Sunday came around.

That there are only too many automobilists indifferent to the law, we all know, but when the penalty to be faced was of a kind which, unlike fine and imprisonment, could not possibly be escaped, even the worst of them submitted—whether with a good grace or not nobody knows or cares. They submitted, and that is enough.

Information Needed by Registrants.

There has been made what seems to be the wise suggestion that to every registrant next Thursday under the new draft law a circular be handed, explaining briefly, but clearly, just what the American Red Cross purposes to do in the way of caring for the families of soldiers and sailors, whether enlisted or drafted men, while the heads of those families are away fighting for the cause their country has made its own. On this circular should be printed the address at which the dependents of each man in the service should apply for assistance or advice in case of need.

The Red Cross has already prepared posters in several languages, containing this information, but these are only for posting on the walls at the places of registration, and they are not likely to be read by many—certainly not by all—who go through a formality somewhat trying to the nerves and who may not note down for future reference the all-important addresses. A small card to be taken home and given to wife or mother would be much more effective.

And it would not be a waste of effort or paper to give one of these cards to each registrant—those who are put in the deferred classes or even exempted, as well as those who are listed for immediate call. That is because it is important that as many people as possible should be well informed as to the plans of the Red Cross for meeting just those exigencies which cause the most of anxiety to the men who are to quit their homes. The effect would be good, not only in the way of calming the apprehension so natural to those whose families are to be left with small and uncertain resources, but to the others, out of the service as well as in it, who are able to do something, much or little, toward lessening the burdens that war inevitably brings to those not directly engaged in its conduct.

The country is able and willing to provide at least the necessaries of life for the families of its defenders, and its most efficient agent for doing this work is the Red Cross.

Baseball Will Not Be Missed.

Baseball is ending what will be its last "season," for the duration of the war at least, and it is ending in a way to emphasize all the evils and the utter lack of anything like real sportsmanship that always have characterized this game in its professional phase.

The claim is made, probably with a fair approximation to truth, that in recent years baseball has been "honest," in the sense that the players do their best to win, but even this is not always the case, according to the reports of some observers, and there is no question that the players of professional baseball habitually indulge in talk and action inconsistent with the principles of fairness and courtesy, as those principles are understood among the players of games that are worthy of the name and have not degenerated into "business" of the sort that is meant when people say that "business is business." That phrase, as is well known, is always the excuse for doing something mean, ungenerous, or barely within the technicalities of the law.

And the spirit that prevails on the diamond has spread to the occupants of the stands. They, too, treat the members of visiting nines not as competitors in an honorable struggle, but as enemies to be abused, disturbed, and confused whenever opportunity offers, and that is throughout the course of almost every game.

That baseball in itself is a good game and an interesting game nobody could deny, but as played by the professionals it is certainly a "mucker" game to a degree that is not true of any other, and the state of public morals and manners will be appreciably elevated as long as it remains in a state of suspension. All too clearly, professional baseball has become purely a moneymaking scheme, and one as sordid and as ruthless as exists anywhere in the country. It does not even produce men physically sound, for it has been found by the examining boards that strangely few of the professional players have the fitness for war that would be expected from their strength and agility on the field.

A High Opinion of Tommy Atkins.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

All Americans who desire a speedy and successful prosecution of the war will be glad to know that a spirit of good-fellowship exists between the Yankee boys and the British Tommies. This is as it should be, and any doubting Thomas has only to read the following extract from a letter from a Yankee boy to be convinced of his error:

> In the trenches and out of them we have seen a good deal of the British Tommy, and I want to tell you that in all this whole wide, war-ridden world there is no better pal than he. They are all alike, big hearted and generous, and the best of it is that they are so totally unaware of it. They'll share anything they have with you and in such a matter-of-fact way as if it were nothing at all.
> A short time ago several of us were detailed to guard an ammunition dump. The building in which it was located was used as a rest billet by some Tommies. They made us feel right at home, cooked our rations for us, indeed, more often gave us some of theirs, and this is only one of many instances.
> The reason I mention all this is because not so very long ago, about the time of our departure, from the United States it was considered quite the thing among us to knock the English, particularly their army. And now, for my part, I want to take it all back.

This letter was written on Aug. 5 last by my son, John D. Byrne, a private in the 105th Machine Gun Battalion, formerly known as Squadron A, New York National Guard. I doubt not that among the rank and file of all our allies, British, French and Italian, the same kindly feeling of comradeship exists toward all of our dear home-loving lads. JOHN V. BYRNE.

The Sustaining Aspirate.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Some years ago—or, they may be counted as many, since it was in the time before the war—I was a visitor in a small "foreign colony" on the German shore of Lake Constance. In the group, however, was no German. We were, therefore, free to "pass comments" on affairs Teutonic, and to express our untrammeled views on the various absurdities marking the conduct of Der Hoechste.

"Did you know," said a Russian of the company, "that when the wave of what you call 'Spelling Reform' passed over Germany, there was a resolution to drop all unsounded h's in the language?"

We had heard something about it, and said so.

"But do you know that the change met with opposition from the Kaiser—but only in one little instance—just one short word?"

"What word?" we all asked.

"It was the word 'Thron!' The Kaiser would not permit his learned men to pull out the letter h from that word!"

Said the one American present, "Oh—afraid it might disturb the underpinning!"

"Underpinning—what is that?" The question was asked by French and Russian present. The American laughed, proceeded to explain—and in recent days and the impending situation has often remembered this conversation, to wonder whether the sublime occupant of aforesaid "Thron," after all his fuss about retaining the aspirate, is going to find it an easy matter to "sit tight" in the days to come. The Webb Law Misjudged.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have before me your editorial of Aug. 28 last, commenting on the misjudgment of the "Webb Law" by our friends in the Argentine Republic. No doubt our Webb law has been misunderstood by representatives of the Argentine newspapers here transmitting by cable parts of the text of the new legislation.

La Epoca, the Buenos Aires daily, commenting upon the effect of the new law, apparently misunderstands its purpose, for it is very clear that the proposed post-war co-operative plan for American manufacturers will benefit the southern markets, therefore I see no reason for animosity.

It is possible that the Argentine press fears that the authorized combinations will permit the American manufacturers to monopolize and fix prices to the detriment of the buyer; such an idea is erroneous. There is only one feature of the Webb law which deals with prices, and that is that manufacturers exporting on the co-operative plan, as authorized, can quote a lower free-on-board port-of-entry price.

I feel sure that the Central Powers will be glad to use the comments of La Epoca against us; it would therefore be well for our cable censors not to permit the transmission of any news or items not fully explaining the real and true spirit of our acts. As an organization representing the interests of American manufacturers and their products, we shall do all in our power to counteract just such misconceptions, which may give our enemies an opportunity to slander our real purpose.

Sherman and Thompson.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In reading your editorial on Senator Sherman, printed in Thursday's paper, I gathered the impression that you think Senator Sherman is a political partner of Mayor Thompson of Chicago. It may be of interest to you to know that Senator Sherman has been consistently opposed to Mayor Thompson ever since the latter refused to extend an invitation to the allied missions to visit Chicago.

It may be of further interest to you to know that in the present Senatorial campaign in Illinois, Senator Sherman has done all in his power to get the Republicans of that State to concentrate upon one candidate to defeat the Mayor of Chicago. Only this week, so I am told, the Senator wired Governor Lowden asking if there was not some way in which they could co-operate in order to avert the possible danger of Thompson's nomination.

While I do not always agree with Senator Sherman in his views on policies and individuals, at the same time I have always given him credit for a fearless integrity. His opposition to Thompson has been so pronounced and so well known for a great many months that I am surprised that any one should link him up with the Mayor.

WE'VE GOT THEM ON THE RUN.

In Picardy and Flanders,
Like frightened geese and ganders
They flutter in the sun;
They don't take time to goose-step:
They take a long, quick, loose step—
We've got them on the run!

Though Hindenburg may scold them,
His famous line won't hold them—
They're making a home run:
They're hiking for the Rhine land:
Don't blame them—it's a fine land
Lies basking in the sun.

Some day they'll rally—may be;
Yet awful though that day be
The battle will be won;
And all the world, made free then,
Will praise the deeds of free men
Who overcame the Hun!

WILSON CALLS OFF TRIP THROUGH WEST

Hoped to Go to Pacific Coast and Back During Liberty Loan Campaign.

UNABLE TO LEAVE CAPITAL

President Explains That Questions Requiring Prompt Decision Arise Every Day.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Formal announcement was made from the White House today of the decision, rather reluctantly reached by President Wilson, to abandon his proposed transcontinental speaking trip to the Pacific coast.

It had been the hope of the President that he might be able to take advantage of the Fourth Liberty Loan campaign, which opens on Sept. 28, to make a swing across the country to California and return and deliver speeches in discussion of the war. He had even begun to make such plans, but finds now that he cannot engage in such an undertaking without neglecting matters pertaining to the war that can only be decided promptly and in Washington.

"I should feel myself an unconscientious public servant," says the authorized statement issued by the President today, "if I yielded to my wish in this matter."

The President's statement follows:

"I had hoped for, and had even begun to plan, a trip to the western coast and back in connection with the 'campaign' for the Fourth Liberty Loan, not because I believed that the country had any need of being stimulated to subscribe to that loan by anything that I could say, but because I coveted the opportunity to discuss with my fellow-citizens the great undertaking which has made such loans necessary and in which our whole energy and purpose are enlisted.

"It is the third or fourth time that I have tried to persuade myself that such a trip was possible for me without serious neglect of my duties here, because I have keenly felt again and again the privation of being confined to the capital and prevented from having the sort of direct contact with the people I am serving, which would be of so much benefit and stimulation to me.

"To my deep regret I find that I must again give the idea up. The questions which come to me every day, many of them questions of the utmost delicacy and involving many critical matters, convince me that it is not right for me to absent myself from Washington for more than a day or two at a time while the war continues. Questions concerning our dealings with other Governments, in particular, it is impossible for me to deal with by telegraph or at a distance from the many sources of information which exist only here.

"I should feel myself an unconscientious public servant if I yielded to my wish in this matter, and took any chance of neglecting, even for a short time, things that must be decided promptly and in the presence of all the facts.

INSIGNIA FOR GUARD.

Scarlet Star to be Distinctive Mark of the State's Forces.

A general order affecting the insignia to be worn by officers and men of the New York National Guard was issued yesterday. It recited the fact that the Secretary of War had granted authority for the New York Guard to wear its present uniform, which is similar to the uniform of the United States Army, and had prescribed distinctive marks and insignia. The order announced that the insignia had been adopted and were as follows:

For All Officers and Enlisted Men.—On overcoats, raincoats, dress and full dress and service coats, and on olive drab shirts when worn without a coat, a scarlet five-pointed star of cloth or felt, as issued, measuring one inch from its centre to each point thereof on the outside of each sleeve and centred one and one-half inches from the lower end thereof.

For Officers.—Sleeve braid for service coat, same as heretofore prescribed, except that the braid will be olive in color; sleeve braid for overcoat, all officers except Second Lieutenants, same as heretofore prescribed except that the braid will be dark blue in color; sleeve braid for overcoat, Second Lieutenants, same as heretofore prescribed except that the braid will be olive in color; sleeve braid for other coats and jackets, same as heretofore prescribed except that the braid will be light blue in color.

For All Enlisted Men.—Collar ornaments, bronze, same as heretofore prescribed except that the disks will be octagonal in shape and one and one-quarter inches between sides.

The order affecting the new insignia for the guard was issued from the Adjutant General's office.

AMERICANS REACH ALGIERS.

Agricultural Mission Seeks 4,000,000 Acres for Cultivation.

ALGIERS, Sunday, Sept. 8.—The American mission which has been designated to study conditions and devise means to help in the development of agriculture production of Algeria arrived here today. All of the members of the mission are specialists in dry farming and irrigation and will study the soil with the intention of production of crops on the semi-sterile high ground of Southern Algeria.

According to private information the mission desires to obtain a concession of more than 4,000,000 acres for cultivation by American methods and with American implements. The Governor General entertained the mission at luncheon today.

LUSITANIA MODEL DONE.

Huerta, Spanish Sculptor, Completes Work for Monument.

MADRID, Sunday, Sept. 6.—Moises Huerta, the Spanish sculptor, has completed the model for a monument dedicated to the victims of the Lusitania which is to be erected on the seashore near Boston.

The monument represents the earth drawing from the sea bed the bodies of the torpedoed vessel's victims.

Y. M. C. A. TO GET $480,000.

Surrogate Orders Payment of Part of Butterfield Legacy.

Special to The New York Times.

COLD SPRING, N. Y., Sept. 9.—Surrogate J. B. Southard of Putnam County filed an order in Carmel today directing the executors of the estate of Julia Butterfield of Cold Spring, widow of General Butterfield, to turn $480,000 over to the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A., the residuary legatee.

The organization, which has been trying for five years to collect its legacy, says that it needs the money to carry on war relief work. The estate has been in litigation since the death of Mrs. Butterfield.

The order directs that $100,000 in cash be turned over to the Y. M. C. A., and the rest in mortgages. There will remain about $400,000 to be paid over to the Y. M. C. A.

ASK FOR SHORTER HOURS.

Clothing Workers Make Demands on Makers of Uniforms.

Members of the American Men's and Boys' Clothing Manufacturers' Association engaged in making army uniforms were disturbed last night when it was made known that the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America had made demands upon the manufacturers which the latter said they found it impossible to grant.

The Amalgamated, it was charged by the manufacturers, was making its demand under the guise of a plea for an eight-hour day. Leon Mann, Managing Director of the employers' body, said last night the union's letter addressed to the Clothing Manufacturers' Association asserted that the Amalgamated workers expected the eight-hour day to hold good only five days a week, while Saturday was to be a half-holiday. Mr. Mann said that if the union achieved its aim the operators would be working forty-four hours a week, while even the present forty-eight-hour week had been virtually abandoned by all the great plants filling Government contracts in other branches of industry.

The manufacturers said there were indications that the workers did not intend to take the army's pressing needs into consideration, while the employers were further disturbed by a report that the Amalgamated was collecting a huge strike fund. Mr. Mann sent a reply yesterday to the union in which he told the workers that about one-third of the capacity of the industry at present was engaged upon army uniform work for the Government, while, with great increases in the army imminent, a reduction of nearly 10 per cent. in working hours seemed inadvisable.

The letter to the workers said, in part:

"We are willing and hereby offer to submit the question to the National War Labor Board, which was appointed by the President, whom you have quoted, for the express purpose of deciding questions of this kind in wartime, in order that the country's interests in production be not damaged by stoppage of work. We cannot believe that, upon further thought, you will press your demand for a reduction of working hours at this time, or that, in any event, your organization will be so unmindful of the national interest as to bring about a strike in an essential war industry."

AIR MAIL FLIGHT HALTED.

Aviator Miller Lands at Lockhaven, Penn.—Due Here Today.

Max Miller, Chicago to New York mail flier, who left Chicago yesterday morning at 6:30 o'clock, landed at Lockhaven, Penn., his second scheduled stop in the afternoon, at 4:50 o'clock. Superintendent H. H. Hartung announced last night at Belmont Park that Miller would stop overnight at Lockhaven, ascend at 6:30 A. M. today, and should arrive at Belmont shortly before 10 o'clock.

Starting from Chicago with weather conditions so favorable that he predicted a record flight, Miller was forced to contend with mechanical troubles. Instead of coming down at Bryan, Ohio, he landed at Cleveland, where he was held up for four hours and twenty minutes while leaks in the machine's radiator were soldered.

Before being halted by darkness, Miller had covered about 600 miles. His flight this morning will be approximately 200 miles.

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—Max Miller, carrying Chicago's first aerial mail to New York, left Grant Park, this city, at 6:30 o'clock this morning in a French airplane, carrying five bundles containing 2,974 pieces of mail that weigh seventy-nine pounds. The mail will be partly distributed at the landing points en route, but most of it is for New York City.

Edward V. Gardner, Miller's companion aviator, was scheduled to start his return trip half an hour after the first airplane, but the plans were changed at the last minute and he will not depart until tomorrow.

On the journey from New York Miller completed the trip in thirteen hours and fifty-seven minutes actual flying time, while Gardner made the distance in eight hours and thirty-five minutes.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 9.—Max Miller landed at Woodland Hills Park, five miles south of here, at 9:40 A. M. He did not stop at Bryan, Ohio. Owing to a leaky radiator he did not reach Glenn Martin aviation field, his scheduled stopping place. He resumed his flight at 2 P. M.

Marie Louise Tillotson Devotes Her $500,000 Estate Largely to Them.

An estate of more than $500,000 is distributed under the will of Marie Louise Tillotson, who died July 11 last. The gifts to charities are $20,000 to the Society for the Relief of the Destitute Blind, $10,000 to the Post-Graduate Hospital, and $5,000 each to the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary, New York Society for the Relief of Widows and Orphans of Medical Men St. Mary's Lodging House for Respectable Girls, and Tuxedo Hospital of Tuxedo Park, N. Y.

The remainder of the estate goes largely to friends. Edwin C. Kent, an executor, gets $30 000 and $25 000 goes to Richard Kent. Bequests of $15 000 each are left to Rebecca C. Wetmore, Mrs. Duncan Kennedy, and Mrs. Elizabeth R. Newton. Gifts of $10 000 each go to Lucy Brown, Oakland, Cal.; Edith de Russy, William B. Wainwright, and Mrs. Susan Hall Metcalf. Theodore H. Ludwig gets $6,000, and twelve friends receive $5,000 each. Charles H. Wainwright receives $10,000 and is the residuary legatee.

SCHOOL DAYS BEGIN FOR 1,000,000 PUPILS

DRAFT TO CUT ATTENDANCE

It Will Also Reduce Force of Men Teachers—No New Classes in German Started.

The city schools reopened yesterday with a total attendance of about 1,000,000 pupils. Of this number the public schools have a registry of more than 800,000. This takes in the public elementary and high schools, training and vocational schools.

The marked feature is the large registration in Brooklyn, which leads all the other boroughs. It had a registry of 285,018 in the elementary schools, and an attendance of 243,396. The number of new pupils is 13,168. It had in the high schools a registry of 26,095, and an attendance of 21,111, and the number of new pupils 6,050.

The number of part-time pupils is about the same as last year, when there were 41,963 children on part time. When the schools closed in June this had been reduced to 30,544. The number of part-time pupils this year is expected to be about 40,000. City Superintendent Ettinger said that about 1,500 new sittings had been provided, and that he has plans in mind whereby he hopes to provide for all part-time pupils.

Dr. Ettinger gave the statistical conditions as exhibited in the public schools at 10 A. M. yesterday. He said it was only a tentative statement, and that later figures, which would probably be ready tomorrow, would make a material difference. The statistics are as follows:

ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS.

	Register.	Attendance.	No. of New Pupils.
Manhattan ..	261,488	222,610	11,858
Bronx	165,955	89,715	5,508
Brooklyn	285,018	243,396	13,169
Queens	66,095	57,501	4,277
Richmond ...	16,552	14,608	1,090

CONEY ISLAND HAD 423 AUTO SLACKERS

FUEL OFFICIALS GRATIFIED

Commissioner Enright Says Most of the Cars on the Streets Were Used by Physicians.

Officials of the Fuel Administration and the Police Department were highly gratified yesterday with the results of New York's fathful observation of the second "gasless" Sunday. Unofficial estimates indicated that about 300,000 gallons of gasoline were saved. Police Commissioner Enright stated that very few willful violations were reported. Most of the automobiles on the streets, he declared, were used either by physicians or persons leaving town as the result of being held up for repairs on Saturday. According to A. C. Bedford, Chairman of the National Petroleum Committee, the total saving of the last two Sundays in the territory east of the Mississippi River is roughly estimated at 9,450,000 gallons.

The largest number of violations of the Fuel Administration's prohibition against the use of gasoline on Sunday was reported from the Coney Island Precinct. Captain Sackett reported that his men had checked up 423 alleged violaters. In contrast Captain Robinson of the Madison Street Station reported that not a single violation was recorded in his precinct.

The police of each precinct, in accordance with the order of Mayor Hylan, took the license number of each car, the name of the owner and driver, and the use to which the car was being put.

It was stated at Headquarters yesterday that it would be impossible at the present time to estimate the exact number of alleged violations, inasmuch as many car users were checked up by the police of two or three or possibly four precincts, according to the distance they traveled.

Eight persons charged with violations of the motor vehicle law on Sunday were given severe fines when arraigned in the Flatbush Court yesterday. They pleaded that they had taken out their machines because of the rain, but Magistrate Nash said that the excuse was insufficient. He declared that he himself and his children walked to church in the rain. Those arraigned were John Guida, 41 Woodnull Street, Brooklyn, speeding, fined $30 or seven days' imprisonment; Harold C. Smith, 22 Rockaway Avenue, Brooklyn, no operator's license, fined $25; Murray Hyman, 1,154 Forty-sixth Street, Brooklyn, no operator's license, fined $10; Emanuel Guelamio, 153 Mott Street, Manhattan, no chauffeur's card, fined $20; Eugene F. Price, 2,543 Church Avenue, Brooklyn, no lights, fined $10; Frank B. Spalding, 293 Rugby Road, Brooklyn, no operator's license, fined $25; Constantine R. Schmitt, 584 Pacific Street, Brooklyn, no lights, fined $10; and Thomas McDermott, 101 Trowbridge Street, Astoria, no lights, fined $10.

In the Traffic Court in Manhattan Masayo Satake, a Japanese, was fined $3 for bad signaling. He said he was driving his car on Sunday because he had to take an official of the Japanese Embassy from the Pennsylvania Terminal to the Plaza. A sailor in uniform giving his name as Herman Schwartz of 3,495 Broadway was fined $40 for speeding, the severity of the fine being due to Magistrate Cobb's conviction that Schwartz had no business out in an automobile, even though he insisted that he was taking his sister to her home. The Magistrate could not see why the elevated or the subway would not have served the purpose just as well.

Carey Walker, a chauffeur for Charles Esterson of 640 Riverside Drive, was fined $30 by Magistrate Cobb for speeding, and Elinor Dayne, an actress, of 766 Seventh Avenue, was fined $35 for the same offense.

SENATE ASKS DATA ON GASOLINE SUPPLY

Members Suspect Higher Price Despite "Gasless Sundays"—Garfield to Fix Domestic Price.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The Senate today adopted a resolution offered by Senator Lodge calling upon the Fuel Administration for data as to production, consumption, exportation, and reserve supply of gasoline. Senator Lodge explained later that the resolution was offered to get at the reason for the "gasless Sunday" request of the Fuel Administration. But back of it there is a desire to ascertain whether reports are well founded that there is an ample gasoline reserve supply in the country and that there is a purpose to put it upon the market later at the highest price that can be fixed.

The "gasless Sunday" order appears to some Senators, so they said today, as an unwarranted deprivation. Information has come to them that there is an abundant supply of gasoline and that the Fuel Administrator apparently has acted without adequate knowledge of the real situation.

No comment was made on the resolution, the Senate adopting it viva voce. Some Senators are eager for an inquiry into the gasoline situation, based upon allegations of a deliberate hold-up of the commodity from the market. This, however, will not be pressed until the Senate has heard from the Fuel Administrator.

It is probable that the situation which has been created will result shortly in action by the Fuel Administration to control the price of gasoline. Dr. Garfield said that he had a report on this phase of the matter. It was probable, the Fuel Administrator said, that the Government price for gasoline, both to the Government and the private consumer, would be somewhat lower than the present scale.

Intimations coming from some quarters that the Sunday order was dictated by certain oil-producing interests in order to create the impression that there was a shortage of gasoline, when, in fact, the stocks were sufficient to meet all demands, may result in an investigation. Dr. Garfield said that, as far as he was aware, no interests except the Fuel Administration had been responsible for the order.

If the flare-up in the Senate results in bringing out any definite information it is possible that the connection of employes of the Fuel Administration with oil interests will be gone into and made public.

MISS HARTJE WED IN HASTE.

The marriage was announced yesterday of Miss Mary Louise Hartje, daughter of Mrs. Stanley Howard, former wife of Augustus Hartje of Pittsburgh, and Lieutenant Louis Woods, Jr., son of Louis Woods, a cotton merchant of Memphis, Tenn., which took place on Saturday night last at the Hotel Plaza.

The wedding was hurried, as Lieutenant Woods has just returned from the front, and the relatives were notified after the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Henry Miller. Mrs. J. Bennington Bennett acted as matron of honor, and Ensign Hooper Bennett was best man. Mr. Woods, Sr., is on his way here from Memphis, but will be twenty-four hours late for his son's wedding.

Lieutenant Woods and his bride will go to Memphis to reside after visiting the bride's father at Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Howard, the bride's mother, was divorced from Mr. Hartje in Pittsburgh in 1910, after an extended litigation in the Pittsburgh courts. Four years later she married Mr. Howard. Lieutenant Woods has two brothers at the front.

Obituary Notes.

OUTING MAGAZINE says about

Theroz MESS KIT

The Pocket Kitchen

"Like most things designed for soldiers' comfort, however, the Theroz Kit will prove decidedly popular with the civilian camper and deservedly so.

It consists of a set of aluminum cooking utensils which nest so as to measure 3¼ x 6¼ inches and which weigh, together, less than two pounds.

In this compact package are contained, two saucepans each capable of cooking a pint of liquid food, a frying pan, a coffee cup, a fuel container, a stove, a combination spoon and handle and enough fuel to cook ten meals for two people!

More remarkable still is the fact that three dishes may be prepared at one and the same time.

Imagine, if you will, what the hot food and drink thus quickly supplied, means to the half frozen soldiers in the front-line trench!

The kit, including twenty cubes of Theroz Fuel, sells for five dollars prepaid anywhere in the United States and I do not know of any greater value for the man who eats out of doors be he soldier or civilian."

The all aluminum cooking outfit

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Sell Off Rapidly in Final Hour Under Professional Guidance—Crop Outlook.

Until near the close of the session yesterday's stock market was firm and uninteresting; in the last hour it was active and weak. The selling which carried Steel down a little more than three points and numerous other issues from a point upward developed so suddenly in different parts of the room as to indicate either important developments which had not come to general notice through publication, or a concerted move on the part of big operators to reduce holdings. Outside of the September crop report, which was only as bad as had been looked for, there was nothing in the news to account for the quick change in the market's tone.

Rightly or wrongly, it has been held in some quarters that the statement last week from the Money Committee was a plain invitation to sell stocks, and there is little question but that the purposes aimed at by the committee would be served by some liquidation of pool holdings where they have absorbed large sums in the loan market. If this view is correct it would not be strange to see further pressure on such issues as have been accumulated by group buying, but the restrictions which the bankers have put upon speculative dealings are not forcing any widespread liquidation. From the behavior of the list when weakness developed yesterday it looked as though the professionals were selling in the belief that with difficulties put in the way of a further advance the logical movement of prices would be downward.

Steel led the decline, selling down to 108¾, which compares with a price of 116, made last week, but recovered in the last few minutes to 109½, at which price it showed a loss of 2½ for the day. Cigar Stores, General Motors, Tobacco Products, Baldwin, and Burns Brothers were among other issues which had to stand the brunt of the selling. A number of issues were not put under pressure, and moved to higher levels, but they were mostly the inactives, and the tone of the market was decidedly weak.

The year's corn crop is a severe disappointment, and particularly so because of the high hopes raised by the excellent start the crop obtained. On the condition and acreage reports indicating a yield of 3,160,000,000 bushels, which the September report reduced to 2,672,000,000 bushels. The wheat crop is coming through with flying colors, the latest estimate giving the 1918 crop at practically 900,000,000 bushels, which compares with a yield of only 651,000,000 bushels last year.

CONFIDENT TONE IN LONDON.

French Fives Are the Favorites in the Funds Section.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The stock market maintained a confident tone today on the week-end news, which brought a number of investment orders from the provinces. French fives were the favorites in the funds section, though a good business was transacted in other allied stocks.

Home rails, mines, and oils were firm and shipping shares rallied, but Argentine rails were flat on reports that the Government will not sanction increased rates. Russian issues closed easy.

Money was in better supply and discount rates were easy.

SAYS GAS COMPANY SHOULD RAISE DIVIDEND

Thomas Read Solicits Proxies for the Annual Meeting of the Brooklyn Union.

On the ground that the Brooklyn Union Gas Company's earnings justify a higher return to stockholders than the current 6 per cent. dividend, Thomas Read, President of the Union Ferry Company of New York and Brooklyn, is soliciting proxies for the annual meeting on Nov. 12. Mr. Read said yesterday that he had received the proxies of 700 or more of the 2,000 stockholders he had written to.

In the letter sent to shareholders a few days ago Mr. Read said that he held more Brooklyn Union Gas stock than all the directors together, with the exception of one. He set forth figures tending to show that, in comparison with 100 other public utility concerns, the gas company's dividends were low, and stated that it was time the stockholders learned about the actual size of earnings. The letter informed stockholders that certain demands would be made on the Directors at the meeting, and asked the support or minority owners of the shares.

"The Brooklyn Union Gas Company," said Mr. Read yesterday, "has not issued a statement of earnings and condition in twenty-three years. At the last annual meeting in November, 1917, the stockholders received some general information as to the company's position on Jan. 1, ten months before, and nothing as to conditions then current. I am in position to know that the company is charging about 82 per cent. of its gross income to operating expenses, maintenance, &c., while the corresponding costs and charges of the Kings County Electric Light & Power Company are 65 per cent. of gross, the Union Ferry Company's similar items absorb 62 per cent., and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company expenses and charges are 54 per cent. of gross. I believe an effort should be made to have the stockowners informed of the details of earnings and disbursements."

United Drug Company's Earnings.

The report of earnings of the United Drug Company for the first six months of 1918 shows total sales of $22,383,425, an increase of $3,417,816 over the corresponding period one year ago, while the net profits for the period amounted to $2,268,011, before deductions for depreciation, reserves for taxes, &c. The net profits of $1,719,167 after all deductions were at the equivalent rate for the entire year of 5.9 per cent. on the common stock, after payment of regular preferred dividends.

MORGAN CO. DISOWN BLAME FOR DEFAULT

WORKED HARD FOR RENEWAL

Say They Were Willing to Attempt to Obtain Extension Without Fee —Defend Interest Rate.

J. P. Morgan & Co. issued a reply last evening to the statement put out by Director General McAdoo Friday night in which blame for failure on the part of the Railroad Administration and the bankers to arrange for the maturity of an issue of $15,000,000 one-year notes of the Chicago & Western Indiana was laid at their door. The notes fell due last Tuesday, and are now in default, no provision having been made either to extend or pay them off.

According to the bankers, all the means at their disposal were used in an effort to effect a renewal of the notes, to obtain new investment funds with which to meet the issue at maturity. If John Skelton Williams asked that an extension at 6 per cent. be offered the holders, J. P. Morgan & Co. were willing to attempt to obtain acceptance of the offer without any fee for their services, they state.

J. P. Morgan & Co.'s answer to Secretary McAdoo's charges, which was given out by A. M. Anderson, manager of the bond department, follows:

"The statement of the Director General of Railroads, as published in Saturday's papers, only gives a portion of our correspondence with John Skelton Williams, Director of Division of Finance, who is the only official of the Railroad Administration with whom we have had any communication on the subject of the Chicago & Western Indiana Company's notes which fell due on Sept. 1.

"We do not intend to enter into a prolonged controversy on this matter, but the records amply set forth the following points which we believe should be made clear to the public.

Negotiations Began in April.

"First—It is far from the case that we disregarded the fact that the Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad Company's obligations matured on Sept. 1. Last April we began negotiations with this company and have followed them up diligently and continuously, by letter and conference, since that date, urging upon the company the wisdom and necessity of making timely and adequate provision for the Sept. 1 maturities. We suggested to the company that this could be done either by concluding their terminal rental contracts with the Government, that we might successfully negotiate with the public a refunding note issue in their behalf, or by the company's securing directly from the Government an amount sufficient to meet the maturing obligations.

"The railroad company was unable to accomplish either of the alternatives indicated above and, therefore, we were unable to render the service which we were perfectly willing to do.

"Furthermore, we might add that two representatives from our firm appeared before the Advisory Committee to the Division of Finance on Aug. 21. This conference did not result in any request for action on our part until Mr. Williams's telegram, which was received by us on Saturday noon, Aug. 24.

"Second—Mr. Williams intimates that our estimate of the cost for extending or renewing the notes of the railroad company approximated 6 per cent.

"On the contrary, we offered to submit to the noteholders of the Chicago & Northwestern Indiana Railroad Company any proposition for a renewal or extension that he might request, making such an offer at 6 per cent., if he deemed it wise, and we asked no compensation whatever for our services in using our best endeavors to secure such a renewal or extension.

Interest Rates Defended.

"Third—In regard to the high rate of 9¼ per cent. suggested by us, it must be remembered that this rate was proposed in order to procure $15,000,000 of new investment money. It was necessary to obtain this money in competition with the other demands being made on the present narrow investment money market, and still is, our opinion that it would not be possible to form an underwriting and distributing syndicate to buy and sell, in times such as these, a note of this character, running for one year, if the note were to be offered to the public at a rate less than 7½ per cent.; it is also our opinion that such a syndicate would require, in compensation for the underwriting risk and distributing services involved in such a transaction, a fee of not less than 1¾ per cent., and that a fair compensation for ourselves and our associates would be ½ per cent.

"Although the terms as a whole may appear to be onerous, nevertheless we considered them the best obtainable under the existing circumstances. We are not responsible for the condition of the money market nor do we control the price at which money is quoted any more than we do that of wheat or cotton.

"We regret that Mr. Williams did not see fit to publish our correspondence and the records of the case in full if he felt obliged to publish any part of them.

"The attack made upon us is not justified and we cannot allow it to pass without recording in a public way our sense of the injustice done to ourselves and our associates."

Investment dealers who participated in the Morgan syndicate which put out the Chicago & Western Indiana notes, a 9¼ per cent. 9¾% basis, to yield the purchaser 6¼ per cent., were asked recently to get into touch with as many holders as possible to learn their attitude toward accepting a one-year extension. It was the understanding in banking circles that in view of the rapid increase in the cost of money the Controller was willing to allow the company to issue a new 6 per cent. note slightly under par, but no offer has yet been made to the holders, and negotiations are making to put the matter in the hands of a protective committee.

COTTON FLUCTUATES IN A NARROW MARKET

Close Is Steady at Net Changes of from 12 Points Advance to 3 Points Decline.

Cotton prices fluctuated considerably yesterday in a very thin market, but when the closing gong rang, prices had worked back very close to their starting point, the close being steady at net changes of from 12 points advance to 3 points decline from Saturday's last prices. The only real burst of activity was at the close, when in the last half hour a number of early sellers tried to take their paper profits, but only succeeded in wiping out the net losses for the day which had stood on the bulletin-boards up to that time.

The market looked fairly strong at the opening, which found the near months a few points up, and the late positions showing marked advances up to 42 points at the highest, on what seemed likely to develop into a good demand for Spring deliveries. It petered out quickly, however, and the "ring crowd" began to sell freely on the Census Bureau report showing some 400,000 bales more ginned up to Sept. 1 this year than was the case a year ago.

8TH AV. ROAD'S NOTES DUE.

Asks Authority to Issue New Ones for $750,000.

The Eighth Avenue Railroad Company, a subsidiary of the New York Railways Company, asked the Public Service Commission yesterday for authority to issue certificates of indebtedness for $750,000 for the purpose of discharging outstanding certificates issued in January, 1914. In commenting on the application the commission said:

"The financial status of the road illustrates the high rentals paid by the New York Railways Company to the security holders of some of its subsidiary companies. The Eighth Avenue road is only capitalized at $1,000,000 and has no bonded indebtedness. The yearly rental paid by the New York Railways Company is $215,000, and in addition the Metropolitan Street Railway Company in the past and the New York Railways Company recently have made large expenditures for electrification and other improvements on the Eighth Avenue company's property."

It is also pointed out that the Eighth Avenue company pays out of the rental money the interest on its present certificates of indebtedness, amounting to $40,-000 annually, and has enough left to pay quarterly dividends of 4 per cent., or 16 per cent. a year on its capital stock of $1,000,000, and to lay aside a surplus.

Besides these advantages accruing to the stockholders through the lease of the property the improvements to the property have increased its value so that it is now worth at least $4,621,430, which makes the actual surplus of the company something like $3,000,000. In the figures submitted to the commission by the New York Railways Company in announcing that it intended to cease operating its cars from midnight until 6 o'clock in the morning, the earnings of the Eighth Avenue line were said to have been $1,556,960.36 in 1913 and only $1,315,803.50 during the last fiscal year.

Notwithstanding its financial situation the Eighth Avenue Company says in its application that it would not be able to pay off the certificates falling due, but expresses the hope that it will be able to meet the new ones before they mature. It is proposed to have the new certificates carry 6 per cent. interest, payable semi-annually and to mature Feb. 1, 1929.

ROYAL DUTCH CO. FINANCING

Stockowners May Buy New Shares Up to 50% of Present Holdings.

The Equitable Trust Company, as American depositary of shares of the Royal Dutch Company, yesterday made public the principal details of the plan whereby the right to subscribe to shares of the new ordinary issue at par will be offered stockholders to the extent of 50 per cent. of their present holdings. This plan entitles the holder of Equitable Trust Company certificates for American shares to subscribe to one share, par value 100 florins, for each six American shares.

The subscription rights are open to registered holders of American shares of record Sept. 13. Holders to avail themselves of the rights must deposit their subscription warrants, duly indorsed and accompanied by $60 for each share subscribed for, on or before Sept. 21. The cash deposit will cover the price of the new stock at par in Holland and also cover expenses, taxes, &c.

If the subscription rights are not exercised, the Equitable Trust Company reserves the right to endeavor to realize on the rights or on the new stock acquired, distributing the net proceeds, if any, together with the proceeds of similar unexercised rights, pro rata among the registered holders of any such unexercised rights after deducting its expenses and charges. It is announced that the proposed stock dividend of 50 per cent. awaits Governmental approval in Holland.

EXPORTS ENORMOUS IN FOUR WAR YEARS

Their Value as Great to Aug. 1 Last as in the Seventeen Years Preceding Conflict.

IMPORTS INCREASED ALSO

Figures Affected Considerably by Higher Values—Radical Changes in the Trend of Trade.

Exports of manufactures from the United States in the first four years of the European war were as much in value as in the seventeen years preceding the conflict, while exports of foodstuffs in the war period were as much as in the ten years prior to the war. Exports of manufacturing material actually declined.

A compilation by the National City Bank, made public yesterday, shows that the total foreign trade of the country in the first four years of the war was $29,232,000,000, and in the four years immediately preceding the war $15,972,000,000. The imports increased from $6,887,000,000 to $9,558,000,000, while the exports jumped from $9,-084,000,000 to $19,674,000,000.

The increase in imports was virtually 40 per cent., and in exports 117 per cent. The bank's figures, it was stated, were based upon the official returns for the forty-eight months from Aug. 2, 1914, to which month hostilities started, to Aug. 1, 1918. The pre-war period taken for comparison was the four fiscal years ended June 30, 1914.

Decline in Raw Materials.

How much of the increase was due to higher prices cannot be accurately determined at present, the bank's statement said. It was possible, however, to show by great groups of articles the increases and decreases in imports and exports when measured by values. Exports of raw materials for use in manufacturing, for example, showed an actual decline in value despite the higher prices, the total value of raw material for use in manufacturing exported in the four years of war having been only $2,733,000,000, against $2,961,000,000 in the four years preceding the war.

This fall-off in the value of manufacturing material exported is due chiefly to a decline of about 33 per cent. in quantity of cotton exported, Germany, Austria-Hungary, Belgium and Russia, normally large buyers of cotton, having been out of the market.

In all the other groups of articles exported, however, the figures of the war period are far in excess of those of the pre-war period. Foodstuffs exported in the four war years aggregated $4,852,-000,000, against $1,738,000,000 in the pre-war period of four years. Manufactures exported in the four years of the war were $11,526,000,000, against $4,212,-000,000 in the like four years before the war, while the group "miscellaneous" was $300,000,000 in the war period under review, against only $31,000,000 in the four-year pre-war period.

This enormous increase, it was pointed out, was due to the fact that it includes horses and mules. Thus, in the exports of domestic products, manufacturing material shows an actual decline of approximately 8 per cent., foodstuffs an increase of 174 per cent., and manufactures an increase of 174 per cent.

Radical Changes in Trade.

On the import side there was a marked increase in value of importation of manufacturing material and foodstuffs, but only a very slight increase in manufactures. The total value of manufacturing material imported in the four years of war was $3,913,600,000, against $2,336,-000,000 in the pre-war period; of foodstuffs $2,521,000,000, against $1,661,000,-000 in the four pre-war years, and of manufactures $3,058,000,000, against $2,-829,000,000. Manufacturing material imported shows an increase in valuation of 67 per cent., foodstuffs 52 per cent., and manufactures only 8 per cent.

The trade with various grand divisions shows radical changes. Imports from Europe in the four years of war were only $2,204,000,000, against $3,376,000,000 in the pre-war period, a fall-off of 35 per cent., due in part to the absence of trade with the Central Powers and Belgium, while the allied countries at war had comparatively little merchandise to send to the United States.

The exports to Europe, however, show an enormous increase, being for the four years $13,568,000,000, against $5,616,000,-000 in the four pre-war years, an increase of 141 per cent. This total to Europe included that sent to Russia by way of the Asiatic ports.

In the trade with North America, outside the United States, the imports of the war period show an increase of 95 per cent. over the pre-war period, and the exports thereto an increase of 73 per cent. From South America the imports show an increase of 114 per cent. and the exports a gain of 72 per cent.

In the trade with Asia imports revealed a gain of 117 per cent., while exports to that continent gained 121 per cent., exclusive of that sent to Asiatic ports for transfer thence to European Russia. From Africa, the imports show an increase of 146 per cent. and exports thereto 75 per cent. Oceania imports here gained 152 per cent. and exports 43 per cent.

Prepare for New Laon Drive.

Several hundred insurance and other salesmen met in the Equitable Building yesterday preliminary to starting their campaign to obtain funds and advertising space for the Fourth Liberty Loan. Benjamin Strong, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and Chairman of the Liberty Loan Committee; Captain Herbert C. Mathias of the Canadian Army, Colonel Moses Greenwood, and Guy Emerson, Director of Publicity of the Liberty Loan, addressed the salesmen.

FINANCIAL NOTICES.

Pursuant to resolution duly adopted, the trustees of the village of Nassau, New York, will sell on sealed proposals at the house in the village of Nassau, N. Y., on the 20th day of September, 1918, at 3 o'clock P. M., bonds aggregating $3,900.00, with interest thereon at five per cent. per annum, in denominations of $300.00 each, to be numbered from one to thirteen inclusive, each to be dated October 1, 1918, the first one payable October 1, 1923, and one annually thereafter until the thirteen are paid, interest to be payable April 1 and October 1, each and every year during the term of said bonds, which are to be registered.

These bonds are issued for the purpose of completing repairs to the water works in the village.

ISSUES NEW TAX RULINGS.

Roper Decides on Discount for Advance Payment on Inheritances.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Internal Revenue Commissioner Roper announced today a ruling explaining the conditions under which the 5 per cent. allowance or discount for advance payment of the estate tax may be granted. The Estate Tax law of Sept. 8, 1916, provides that estate tax shall be due one year after decendent's death, and if the tax is paid before due a discount at the rate of 5 per centum per annum, calculated from the time payment is made to the date when the tax is due, shall be deducted. Discount is not allowable unless the total tax be determined and advance payment made in full.

The Commissioner holds that if the tax amount cannot be determined, for any reason, the payment of a sum of money, sufficient in the opinion of the collector to discharge the tax, shall be deemed payment in full of the tax. The collector is not required to exercise his discretion as to what amount will satisfy the tax until the due date.

If at the end of the year following decedent's death the executor represents, and the collector is satisfied that the amount of tax upon the estate cannot be determined, a return may be filed by the executor setting forth known assets of the estate and the actual value as of date of decedent's death, the allowable deductions, the value of the net estate, and the tax due. This return will be designated "tentative." The tax shown to be due upon the tentative return should be paid and entered upon the collector's assessment list.

If the amount of tax as finally determined is less than the amount paid upon the basis of the tentative return, the Commissioner will, upon filing claim, make refund of the excess payment. If the amount of tax as finally determined exceeds the amount paid, the Commissioner will notify the executor of the excess. From the time of such notification to the time of final payment of the tax, interest will be added at 10 per cent. per annum.

At the time the "tentative" return is filed an extension of ninety days may be granted in which to file a final return. If, at the expiration of the extension, the executor is still unable to determine the tax, a detailed statement as to the reason preventing the determination should be transmitted to the Internal Revenue Bureau for consideration.

To facilitate compliance with the provisions of the income and excess profits tax law, which permit the establishment of a replacement fund in case of property requisitioned for war uses, or lost, or destroyed in whole or in part through war hazards, Commissioner Roper has decided that only active depositaries of public moneys and surety companies holding certificates of authority from the Secretary of the Treasury as acceptable sureties on Federal bonds will be approved as sureties or depositaries.

As a basis of allowance for depreciation in calculations of income tax, the Commissioner holds that a reasonable allowance for wear and tear, etc., is to be based on the cost of such property, or on its fair market price, or value as of March 1, 1913. In absence of proof to the contrary it will be assumed such value as of March 1, 1913, is the cost of the property, less depreciation to that date.

In determining the excess tax on boats the Commissioner has ruled that a boat not used or intended to be used between July 1, 1918, and June 30, 1919, is not subject to the tax, but if used or intended to be used in such period the tax was payable on July 1, 1918, for the full year ending June 30, 1919. If, on July 1 of any year, or on the date of purchase, if on another date, the owner of a boat intends to use it before the following July 1, or if he does use it before the July 1 following, the tax attaches.

A person who has paid no tax at the regular time by reason of an intention not to use a boat, and later decides to use it, must pay the full tax before using the boat; but an owner not paying on time is liable for the full penalties. The taxpayer must keep the tax receipt about the boat when in use.

Canada's Military Effort

The Dominion of Canada, with a population slightly more than that of Greater New York, shows a total enlistment of 552,601 men from the commencement of the war to June 30th, 1918.

The gallantry of Canada's sons at the front has been conspicuous. Thirty have won the coveted Victoria Cross; 432 the Distinguished Service Order; 1,467 the Military Cross; 939 the Distinguished Conduct Medal; 6,549 the Military Medal; 119 the Meritorious Service Medal.

Canada has given a notable number to the Air Service.

Canada has furnished several hundred doctors and veterinarians, about 200 nurses and hundreds of motor drivers.

Some 200 Canadian officers have been lent to the United States for instructional purposes, and a number of Americans have been trained on Canadian soil by the Instructional Staff of the Royal Air Force.

American Credit Insurance does far more than provide absolute protection against abnormal, unforeseen credit losses. It serves to prevent losses, by providing for the allowance of covered accounts not over forty-five days past due, if the company fails to collect them.

Thus it cultivates confidence as well as carefulness; helps to construct as well as to conserve.

Such a broad service—which places credits upon an absolutely guaranteed basis and safeguards them against all eventualities—is of particular value to manufacturers and wholesalers right now. Full particulars of the American's Unlimited Policy will be sent free upon request.

CORN CROP SUFFERS FROM BAD WEATHER

September Estimate of Production Shows Drop of 317,000,000 Bushels from August.

SPRING WHEAT IMPROVES

Prospective Crop Now Up to 843,000,000 Bushels—Oats and Barley Also Better.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Heavy loss in the prospective corn crop, but a considerable increase in the forecast of Spring wheat production featured the September crop report issued today by the Department of Agriculture.

Lack of rain during August in the principal producing sections of the corn belt caused a reduction of 317,000,000 bushels in the crop forecast, bringing the loss in prospective production since July 1 to 487,000,000 bushels, representing more than $800,000,000.

A corn crop of 2,672,000,000 bushels this year, was forecast today from Sept. 1 conditions. That would be almost 500,000 bushels less than last year's crop and slightly smaller than the average crop of the five years from 1912 to 1916.

The Spring wheat crop showed improvement, and there was an increase of 21,000,000 bushels in the forecast of production, bringing the prospective crop to 843,000,000 bushels. With the Winter wheat crop of 556,000,000 bushels, previously announced, this year's total wheat crop will be 899,000,000 bushels. That is almost 250,000,000 bushels more than was harvested last year and 90,000,000 bushels more than the 1912-16 average.

Estimates of production of other crops compared with these made a month ago showed various changes. Oats had a 49,000,000 bushel increase, tobacco a 20,000,000 pound loss, hay a 13,000,000 tons loss, and white potatoes a 6,000,000 bushels loss.

Other changes were: Barley, 4,000,000 bushels increase; sweet potatoes, 3,500,000 bushels decrease; flax, 1,100,000 bushels increase, and rice, 700,000 bushels decrease.

Heaviest reduction in the corn production forecast came from Kansas with a loss of 62,000,000 bushels, Nebraska with 60,000,000 bushels, Missouri with 57,000,000 bushels, Illinois with 37,000,000 bushels, and Iowa with 32,000,000 bushels.

The following are the estimates of the condition of the crops on Aug. 1 and Sept. 1:

	August.	September.
Spring wheat	322,000,000	343,000,000
All wheat	978,000,000	899,000,000
Corn	2,989,000,000	2,672,000,000
Oats	1,428,000,000	1,477,000,000
Barley	232,000,000	236,000,000
Buckwheat	20,000,000	20,100,000

COTTON GINNING RECORD.

1,039,620 Bales Were Ginned Prior to Sept. 1.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—More cotton was ginned this year prior to Sept. 1 than in any previous year in the history of American cotton growing. The Census Bureau announced today in its first report of the season that 1,039,620 bales had been ginned.

The largest quantity heretofore ginned to Sept. 1 was 850,668 bales in 1916, when 7.5 per cent. of the crop was ginned to that date. Ginnings reported today comprise 9.3 per cent. of the 11,137,000 bale crop forecast from Aug. 25 conditions by the Department of Agriculture.

The heavy ginnings this year are ascribed to hot and dry weather in the western part of the cotton belt, especially in Texas and Oklahoma. Much cotton opened prematurely and the picking was done early. There also was a considerable increase in the acreage planted in Southern Texas and the crop there matured early. Ginnings by States follow:

Alabama, 35,898; Arkansas, 7,469; California, 1,074; Florida, 1,830; Georgia, 120,350; Louisiana, 33,141; Mississippi, 34,028; North Carolina, 1,852; Oklahoma, 19,442; South Carolina, 35,871; Tennessee, 224; Texas, 749,416. All other States, 25.

Ginnings of Sea Island by States: Florida, 108; Georgia, 97; South Carolina, 1.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Liquidation in heavy volume in the final hour caused a sharp break in the market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Values throughout the list were affected, with the declines ranging from 1 to more than 2 points at the climax of the reaction. Stocks were freely supplied on the decline. Final prices were fractionally higher than the previous low levels, but the closing tone of the market was unsettled and nervous.

SEND LEHIGH TRAINS TO NEW STATIONS

Passenger Traffic to Reach New York by Pennsylvania's Gateways.

McADOO ORDERS CHANGES

Through Western Trains Will Use Pennsylvania's Tunnels and Locals Will Enter Jersey City Station.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9. — The announcement was made by the Director General of Railways tonight that the New York City and Jersey City stations of the Pennsylvania Railroad would be used by the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, beginning on Sept. 15. On the same date the present use of the Communipaw terminal of the Central Railway of New Jersey by Lehigh Valley passenger trains will be discontinued.

It is proposed to send Lehigh Valley trains Nos. 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 29, 30, 31, and 28 into the Pennsylvania Station in New York City, while the other Lehigh Valley passenger trains, Nos. 1, 27, 33, 40, 22, and 34 will use the Jersey City station of the Pennsylvania.

Passengers from downtown New York for trains leaving the Pennsylvania uptown station will use the Hudson & Manhattan trains connecting at Manhattan Transfer.

Hudson & Manhattan trains and the Pennsylvania ferry service also will be used by passengers for the Lehigh Valley trains leaving from the Jersey City station of the Pennsylvania.

Discussing Director General McAdoo's order, railroad officials last night said it was another step in his program to co-ordinate and centralize railroad traffic. Under the new routing, they said, Lehigh Valley passengers, by virtue of the Pennsylvania tunnels, would be enabled to arrive directly in this city, without the inconvenience of the ferry trip.

It was said that the trains scheduled to arrive in the Pennsylvania Station in New York City included all of the through trains from the West—five incoming and five outgoing. The six trains diverted to the Pennsylvania station in Jersey City are all locals. In addition to concentrating New York's inbound traffic, the new arrangement, it was said, would permit greater utilization of the Communipaw terminal for Government business.

CENTRAL PALACE TAKEN.

New War Hospital Here Will Accommodate 3,000 Patients.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The War Department today announced formally that the Grand Central Palace in New York City had been leased for use as a surgical reconstruction hospital for the period of the war and three months after, at an annual rental of $395,000 and maintenance. It will be remodeled to accommodate 3,000 patients. The work of preparing the building for the Medical Department was begun today and it is believed that it will be ready for occupancy by Dec. 1.

J. H. Nixon, Vice President of the Merchants and Manufacturers Exchange, said yesterday that the Government had been in actual possession of the building since Sept. 1.

EGGS.—20,294 cases. Market opened with liberal receipts. The proportion of fine to fancy eggs is still small, and such are meeting a fair demand at steady prices. There is accumulation of medium grade eggs, for which demand is limited. The range of prices shows little change except that there is nothing now arriving as poor as heretofore, and inside quotations are raised. High grades of dirties and checks are steady, with a fair demand. Storage eggs steady to firm, with a fair movement. Strictly fancy nearby white eggs in light supply and slightly in sellers' favor. Offerings are still of very irregular quality and widely ranging value. Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 51@52c; extra firsts, 49@50c; firsts, 44@47c; seconds and poorer, 32@43c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, 37@38c; No. 2 and poorer, 30@36c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 33@34c; under grades, 26@32c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, charges paid, 45½@44c; firsts, charges paid, 42½@43c; seconds, charges paid, 40@42c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 64@68c; ordinary to prime, 45@63c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 45@63c; Pacific Coast whites, first to finest, 60@62c; Western and Southern gathered whites, 42@60c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 54@56c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 40@52c.

PROHIBITION ZONE RESOLUTION PASSED

House Quickly Adopts Senate Measure—Italy Wants Wine Restriction Modified.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Without a dissenting vote the House today, after a few minutes' consideration, passed the Senate resolution empowering the President in his discretion to establish prohibition zones around munition factories, mines, shipyards, and other war production plants. Penalty for violation is $1,000 fine or a year's imprisonment.

The resolution was reported by the Rules Committee, with the information that Acting Secretary of War Crowell regarded its passage as urgently important. A brief hearing had been held earlier in the day, at which Representative Miller of Minnesota told of conditions near Duluth, the first large city in America to go "dry." Across the river from a steel plant is the Wisconsin town of Oliver, which he said was organized solely for "booze purposes" and had demoralized conditions on the street car line running between Duluth and the munitions works.

A protest against the provision in the Wartime Prohibition bill barring the importation of wines except those in transit after final passage of the measure has been made by the Italian Government through Ambassador Di Cellere. A copy of the protest was transmitted to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today by Secretary Lansing.

In his communication the Italian Ambassador urged that the measure be amended so as to permit the winemakers of his country an opportunity to readjust their business and avert great losses. Under its provisions the manufacture of wine would continue until May 1 next, and the Italian Government urges that the importation be permitted up to that time also.

Secretary Lansing, in his letter of transmittal to Chairman Hitchcock, called attention to the serious consequences which the measure, in its present form, might have on the economic life of Italy at a time when such a thing should be avoided, a point also made by the Ambassador.

Nearly a thousand telegrams reached the Food Administration today protesting that enforcement of the order to stop brewing beer and near beer Dec. 1 would seriously disturb economic conditions, and interfere with cattle breeding. The messages were in twenty different forms, and were signed by bankers, labor organizations, dairymen, business and professional men, and manufacturers. Most of them came from States east of the Mississippi River.

OPERATORS SHIFT BLAME.

Assert That Shortage of Cars Cut Down Production at Mines.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The National Coal Association tonight took direct issue with the statement made by Director General of Railroads McAdoo in his report to President Wilson, which was published today and in which he said that car shortage had not been responsible for the fact that coal mines failed to produce their maximum output.

"Shortage of railroad cars at the bituminous coal mines of the country," the National Association's statement says, "has curtailed production not less than 82,000,000 tons since Jan. 1 last, and stands as the dominating factor of all causes of curtailment. Much of this huge production lost to the country, because the railroads did not furnish the coal mines sufficient cars, occurred during the months of January, February, and March, when the railroads were recovering from the worst congestion in their history and from the effects of unprecedented storms.

"Car shortage cut bituminous coal production 1,934,000 tons during the week ending Aug. 17; 1,559,000 tons during the week ending Aug. 10; and 1,145,000 tons during the week ending Aug. 3. These figures do not support a claim that the coal mines are receiving more cars than they can load, even recently.

"The production of bituminous coal from Jan. 1 to Aug. 24, inclusive, totaled 384,000,000 tons. The mines that produced this coal were capable of producing 522,000,000 tons under full time output. The total production lost from all causes was therefore 138,000,000 tons—far more than enough to afford a guarantee against a fuel shortage. Here are the reasons why these 138,000,000 tons were lost:

"Because of car shortage, 82,000,000 tons; because of labor shortage and strikes, 22,750,000 tons; because of mechanical disabilities and unavoidable shutdowns at the mines, 19,750,000 tons; because of no market, (chiefly in Southwestern States,) 4,000,000 tons; all other causes, 9,500,000 tons."

At the office of Director General McAdoo tonight it was said that the figures published by the National Coal Association were misleading, as they did not take into account many situations which arose from time to time. It was stated, for instance, that if a mine which had produced a certain amount suddenly increased its output the lack of sufficient cars at the mine was put down as car shortage, although the Railroad Administration had had no warning in advance that the additional cars would be needed.

BEGIN PRIETH'S TRIAL.

Publishers and Editors Accused of Violating Espionage Act.

On an indictment under the Espionage act of June, 1917, Benedict and Edwin S. Prieth, former publishers of the New Jersey Freie Zeitung, and three of their editors, were placed on trial yesterday before Judge Haight in the United States Court at Newark. On trial with the Prieth brothers are Henry Waechter, city editor; William von Katzler, editor and Hans von Hundelshausen, associate editor and reporter. Since the Freie Zeitung was raided and the proprietors and workers arrested last Fall it has been run by the employes.

Assistant District Attorney Joseph L. Bodine, in opening the Government's case, said the indictment was based on editorials and articles in German and English appearing in the Freie Zeitung. These articles, Mr. Bodine told the jury, made it appear America had entered the war to fight England's battles, that England was ruling down and letting America bear the burden of the war, and in other ways tended to ridicule the justice of the American cause.

The indictment charges conspiracy to violate the law and is considered stronger than previous indictments in that the Government does not have to prove the consummation of the alleged treasonable act or of acts tending to hinder recruiting, incite disloyalty or obstruct the military operations of the United States. Fifty articles from the Freie Zeitung are quoted in the indictment.

Two former employes were the first witnesses. They identified papers and testified to the positions held by the various defendants.

Charged with Bribing Inspectors.

On a charge of bribing Government inspectors, Joseph Usoskin, manager of Valentine & Co. of 698 Glenmore Avenue, Brooklyn, was held in $5,000 bail by United States Commissioner McGoldrick in Brooklyn yesterday for examination on Sept. 17. The company had contracts to supply 54,000 shirts for soldiers at forty-eight cents apiece, the Government furnishing all material. Three Government inspectors were sent to inspect the finished product and found many defects. It is said that, acting under orders from their chiefs, they accepted from ten to twelve payments for passing inferior goods. Samuel Valentine is resident of the concern and Benjamin Levy its Vice President and secretary.

BREWERS UNDECIDED AS TO THEIR FUTURE

In Doubt as to Whether Government Will Permit Them to Use Reserve Stocks.

DISCUSS SALOON SITUATION

Col. Ruppert Predicts Half of Them Will Not Renew Their Licenses on Oct. 1.

The New York Brewers' Board of Trade, of which Adolph G. Hupfel, Jr., is the Chairman, held a special meeting yesterday afternoon at 109 East Fifteenth Street to discuss the general situation in the brewing business as it will be affected on and after Dec. 1 by the Fuel Administration's order prohibiting the brewing of beer after that date. No definite action was taken, because no one had seen the text of the order giving, officially, the Government's specific demands. It seemed to be the general opinion, however, that a very large number of New York saloonkeepers would fail to renew their licenses on Oct. 1. Colonel Jacob Ruppert, a member of the board and President of the New York State Brewers' Association, put the number as high as 50 per cent. There are 9,673 saloons in the five boroughs.

There were others at the meeting who thought the Colonel had placed the number too high. "In the first place," said one member, "a saloonkeeper may renew his license, and if, some time after Dec. 1, he finds that he cannot afford to continue, he can turn in his license and get back the money for the unexpired part. Furthermore, the poorer class of saloons, whose chief business is the sale of beer, will be the ones who will fail to renew, and this class does not represent 50 per cent. of the saloons in New York."

The determining factor in the renewal or nonrenewal of many licenses would be, it was said, whether the saloon men may count on the help of the brewers, as heretofore, for loans to pay the license fee of $2,000. It was admitted that many brewers would not find themselves in a position to lend much money to anybody and be forced out of business at the same time. But Colonel Ruppert thought that some of the brewers would be willing to help the saloon men along with the license fee as usual.

"Nobody at the meeting," said Colonel Ruppert, "had any suggestion to make as to what can be done with our properties. I haven't the remotest idea as to what we can do with ours. Most of the breweries have immense steel tanks in the basement in which the beer is kept before barreling. These tanks are lined with glass. They are so huge that I know of no place in which they could be stored, except right where they are now. Then, too, even if we could store them elsewhere, it would be difficult to move these great cylinders about very much and keep the glass linings intact. I say to you frankly that I cannot, at the moment, think of any business that can be profitably carried on in a brewery except that for which it was intended.

"I see that some of the real estate men think the realty market will not be affected to any great extent by the closing of saloons. I wish I didn't know that just the contrary will happen. Take the hundreds of saloons on the far east and west sides. They are not in localities where any other business would flourish. Why, within two blocks of our brewery in Third Avenue there are stores that have been vacant for several years."

Colonel Ruppert was asked if, between now and Dec. 1, any great quantity of beer could be brewed and stored for sale after that date.

"Our consumption of beer here," was the answer, "is about 6,000,000 barrels a year. If we are to be permitted to use up our reserve stocks of grain and are permitted, also, to use enough coal after Dec. 1 to run our cold storage plants to keep the beer cool, we could brew a supply that would last about four or five months. But if the Fuel Administration cannot find a way to let us have the coal, there will be practically no extra beer in the breweries after Dec. 1. Of course, we shall have to have a ruling on that matter. But it must be remembered that beer that is more than five or six months old is not very palatable."

William B. Joyce, Secretary of the Bartenders' Protective Benevolent Association, was asked if he thought many of the members of his organization would be looking for jobs after Dec. 1.

"Sure as you're a foot high," was the reply. "In New York City there are not far from 25,000 bartenders. Not all of them, by any means, belong to this association. The first draft took many of the younger men and the next one will take many more. That will leave middle-aged and elderly men still in the business in which they have always worked. I believe that half the bartenders in New York will be thrown out of employment soon after Dec. 1."

E. D. Miller, General Manager of the Hotel Biltmore, said most of the hotels would renew their licenses. "You see the beer business in most of the hotels is comparatively a small part of the business done over their bars," he added.

The Retail Liquor Dealers' Association will hold a special meeting tomorrow to discuss the Food Administration's order and come to some decision, if possible, as to what can be done in the circumstances.

Exempts War Workers from Jury.

Employment in factories doing war work is an adequate reason for exempting men from jury duty, Judge Humphrey held in the Queens County Court in Long Island City yesterday. On that ground he excused more than twenty men and had to postpone the opening of the trial until more talesmen could be summoned.

SIXTY ARMY AIRPLANES IN 2-HOUR MANOEUVRE

Films Taken of Evolutions at Mineola for Exhibition and to Instruct Fliers.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Sept. 9.—Sixty army airplanes of five different types, piloted by American airmen of the First Provisional Wing unit at Mitchel Field, today stayed in the air for two hours without a mishap while a series of moving pictures was taken to show the public the work of training a military flier. Thirty-six planes manoeuvred for several minutes in a huge battle formation with such skill that Major W. J. East, in command of the field, received congratulations from allied aviators who saw the exhibition.

Films of every stage of the work of making a military aviator were taken for the Department of Military Aeronautics, and will be sent to Washington to be distributed throughout the country. Some of the pictures were taken from the ground and others from airplanes flying at great heights singly and in battle formations. The photography was done by enlisted men in the Signal Corps who have taken courses in military photography at Columbia University.

Officers at the field said they did not think a larger number of military airplanes had ever taken to the air at the same time above a single field in this country. When plans were made for the flights there was some apprehension about safety, but the pilots handled their machines so skillfully that no machine was forced to the ground.

Among the planes in flight were the De Haviland 4, equipped with Liberty motors; the American-built Caproni, also with Liberty motors; the Curtiss J. N. D. 4; the Curtiss type H, with Hispano-Suiza motor, and the Thomas-Morse monoplane scouts.

In the battle formation of thirty-six machines were several of the De Haviland machines of the type used by the American squadron on its first flight over the German lines in command of Brig. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois. General Foulois had eighteen machines in his reconnoisance squadron. The large formation yesterday was in command of Lieutenant George Zeisner, flying at the peak. He has commanded units of the machines in practice formations over New York City for several days.

The thunder of the sixty motors and the sight of the large number of machines in the air attracted thousands of spectators, and the roads were crowded with automobiles. All the other cadet fliers not in the First Provisional Wing and all the mechanics and officers at the field watched the manoeuvres with glasses.

After the films are developed they will be shown at the fields here to point out defects in flying to the men, and then will be taken to all the other grounds and flying schools in the country.

Gray Goods Bids Numerous.

Business in the local gray goods market would have been fine yesterday had it been possible to get out all the cloths for which bids were made by buyers. As it was, however, sellers were coy and the volume actually disposed of was limited. Good sales of voiles, poplins and similar fabrics were told of, but the story was different with staples. Some sheetings were sold by second hands, but the amount was not large. Liberal bids of 19½ cents for September-October lots of 39-inch 64-72s were in the market, but the goods failed to come out. The same was true of a number of constructions of narrow printcloths.

No More "Revision" Sales.

According to comment heard in this market yesterday, the War Industries Board has gone firmly on record as opposed to current sales of cotton goods subject to revised prices to be issued on Oct. 1. The original ruling of the board, it is pointed out, specifically said that sales made in the period between June 21 and Oct. 1 were to be made at the maximum prices announced by the Price-Fixing Committee, and the position of the board is that selling goods prior to Oct. 1 subject to the prices then to be given out is contrary to the spirit of the ruling. While sales of this kind are to be avoided in the future, it is understood that those already made will be allowed to stand.

Higher Prices No Deterrent.

In spite of the recent general price advance of about 20 per cent. in the glassware trade, business in Fall and Winter goods is progressing very well, according to reports from local factory representatives. Buyers apparently anticipate a good business over the counter during the coming season and, their stocks now on hand being low, they are obliged to do some quite substantial ordering. Cut glass lines are alone dull. But even here there is an improvement over last month. Confectionery glassware is unusually active and serves to offset the continued quiet in barroom lines.

Sheetings Offerings Opened.

The request of the Quartermaster's Department of the Army for offerings of 39-inch 64-68 sheetings brought only four bids for contracts. They were opened yesterday afternoon in the local office of the department. Though 8,000,000 yards were wanted, the total of all the bids submitted was only 5,450,000 yards. Prices ranged from 18¾ to 24¼ cents. The low bid was from George Wood, Sons & Co. of Philadelphia, and was for 200,000 yards. In this bid, however, it was stipulated that the tensile strength of the material could not be guaranteed. M. C. D. Borden & Sons offered 1,850,000 yards at 24¼ cents, deliveries to be at the rate of about 105,000 yards weekly. The Hunter Manufacturing Company offered 900,000 yards from two different mills at 20¾ cents. Lawrence & Co. offered 3,000,000 yards to include shorts, seconds and remnants, as well as firsts at different prices for each grade, ranging from 24¼ cents down to 21 cents.

Women's Suits Are Selling.

"A great many buyers of women's ready-to-wear garments are beginning to express a preference for suits," said a large manufacturer of this city yesterday. "One of our large customers told me this morning that in their ladies department alone they sold forty-seven suits last Saturday, as compared with twenty-three on the corresponding day last year. This incident may not be conclusive of anything, but it serves as an illustration that suits are most certainly not to be neglected this season, and that they are in great favor with a good many women. Several of our customers in widely separated communities have sent in reorders for suits, indicating that their popularity is not confined to any one locality."

"There is a certain inconsistency," said a local cloak and suit manufacturer yesterday, "in at least one feature of the preferential list of industries announced in connection with the new draft, which I can only attribute to an oversight. The list, which is of industries to be considered essential, places the manufacture of cotton and woolen textiles in class 4 and, by the implication of omission, rates the manufacture of clothing, whether it be for men or for women, as nonessential. While few of this industry will be glad of an opportunity to do our bit over there, I cannot bring myself to believe that the Government intends that the people at home shall revert for clothing to the blanket of the Indian, however picturesque it may be."

Millinery Trend Is Changing.

Practically all of the Fall models which have been displayed in local millinery circles up to the present time have been hand-made, excepting in the cheaper merchandise. Now, however, combinations of blocked brims and hand-made crowns are being introduced here. This is said to be an innovation born of wartime needs, as a line made entirely by hand requires considerable labor, and labor is scarce. Blocked hats, as a rule, have a stiff appearance, so soft draped crowns are used to overcome this effect. They are being shown here both trimmed and untrimmed, the latter retailing around $6 to $7. Trimmed hats of this type are seen both in tailored and "dressy" effects. Trade opinion is that they will do well.

Jute Is "Sky High."

With business as dull as it now is in the local market for burlaps, importers and buyers alike have plenty of time to cogitate over the remarkably high price of jute. One of the last quotations from London on this staple placed it at £62 10 shillings a ton, delivery here. This price may be gauged from the fact that jute was considered very high at £30 a ton, and that, in peace times, £15 to £16 is considered a pretty fair quotation. Trade in burlaps here is very quiet, and prices are somewhat nominal, the nominal bases of 18 cents for 8-ounce "40s" and 22½@22¾ cents for heavy cloths of that width. In the West Coast markets the quotations run about a quarter to a half cent less. Calcutta is reported firm.

Look for a Short Season.

Sentiment among local manufacturers of ready-to-wear garments for women seems to be shaped toward the idea that the current season will be a short one for them, in spite of the earliness with which many retailers began to operate. The chief reason advanced for this belief is the early date at which the Fourth Liberty Loan will open. This, as recently pointed out in THE TIMES, is expected to put a sharp check on consumer buying of garments at a time when this business should be at its height. This, in turn, is expected to reduce the duplicate business which the manufacturers regret. While there is no sign of complaint on the part of the manufacturers regarding this outlook so far as they are concerned, it is said that the effect of a short season on the workers will not be encouraging with living costs as high as they are.

"Floor Sale" Furs on Show.

Several thousand assorted raw furs—valued at $300,000—which are to be sold tomorrow through the medium of sealed bids at the first "floor sale" ever held in this city, were placed on show yesterday at the warehouse of L. Prouty's Sons, Inc., 382-384 West Broadway. They will continue on show all day today and tomorrow until 2 P. M., when the bids will be opened. The amounts of the successful bids will be announced soon thereafter, and a written notice will be sent to each successful bidder. The catalogue contains ninety-six lots, and experienced fur men say the collection is of excellent quality. It is made up mostly of Northern and Alaskan skins that have been sent to this city since the general auction of raw furs was held here last April. The fox offerings include 560 red, 30 silver, 60 blue, 120 white, and 65 cross, while the other assortments embrace 850 beaver, 295 lynx, 9,000 muskrat, 2,000 raccoon, 400 otter, 2,000 mink, 1,100 skunk, and 1,500 wolf.

REASSURES COTTON MEN.

Supervision, Not Price Fixing, Aimed At, Baruch Explains.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Bernard M. Baruch, Chairman of the War Industries Board, will confer with Southern Senators at the Capitol tomorrow over his recent announcement that he intended to appoint a committee to "stabilize the price of raw cotton." Southern Senators are up in arms against any price-fixing.

Senator Smith of South Carolina talked with Mr. Baruch today and learned from him, according to the Senator, that the impression that Br. Baruch wanted to fix cotton prices is wrong. Mr. Baruch explained that his idea was to have governmental supervision over the distribution of cotton during the war, so that war needs might be met. Cotton growers want an open market, at the highest prices they can obtain.

Senator Smith said that immediately after word went out that Mr. Baruch's prespective committee would "stabalize prices," raw cotton fell $22 per bale. Planters who had been getting record prices now see disaster ahead, Mr. Smith said, unless the market can be steadied with the assurance that prices are not to be arbitrarily fixed.

OFFERS TO SUSPEND ROAD.

Yonkers Manager Tells Council Trolley Line Must Have Higher Fare

Declaring that unless permission was granted to increase fares the company would be compelled to suspend business, Vice President and General Manager Leslie Sutherland of the Yonkers Railroad Company, appeared before the Yonkers Common Council last night to support a petition that the company's franchise be suspended for the duration of the war and one year afterward. The hearing was held before the largest crowd that has ever attended a session of the Common Council, and sentiment seemed to be about evenly divided for and against the petition of the company. The Yonkers Federation of Labor actively opposed the petition, as did labor unions in general.

Vice President Sutherland, who is also Second Vice President of the Third Avenue Railroad Company, New York City, would not state what amount of increase was desired. The council referred the petition to a subcommittee, which will take the matter under advisement. Interest in the request of the company is great. The public is much concerned over the threat of Mr. Sutherland to suspend operations if the increase is not granted. On the other hand, it is pointed out that the company would lose its franchise through voluntary suspension without the consent of the Common Council, and maintain the company's threat is made only for effect.

NO LUNCHES ON DINING CARS

Table d'Hote Meals at $1 Will Be Substituted After Oct. 1.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—A la carte lunches and dinners on dining cars will be abandoned after Oct. 1, Director General McAdoo announced today, and table d'hote meals of not more than four courses substituted, with the charge limited to $1, except on a few through trains, where $1.25 will be charged. Breakfast will be served à la carte with a restricted menu.

The purpose of the announcement is to economize and put meals within the reach of the most moderate purse, increase the capacity of dining cars, save labor, and conserve food.

Senate Passes Espionage Amendment.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—An amendment to the Espionage act designed to reach draft slackers and to punish disloyal talk was passed by the Senate today after brief debate and sent to the House. It fixes a maximum penalty of twenty years imprisonment or a fine of $10,000 or both. The penalties would apply to whoever attempts to obstruct the sale of United States war securities or to whoever promotes insubordination, disloyalty, mutiny, or refusal to perform duty, or to those who in any way injure the United States in the prosecution of the war.

BUSINESS RECORDS

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Sixth Avenue Corner Sold—School Buys Heights Apartment for Investment.

A downtown Sixth Avenue corner containing an entrance to the Hudson tubes was resold yesterday by Mary Margaret to a client of A. N. Gitterman. The property involved is the one-story taxpayer at 114 to 116 Sixth Avenue, on a plot 40 by 93, at the northeast corner of Ninth Street. The seller acquired the corner recently from Richard S. Elliott in a trade for 65 West Fifty-second Street.

Heights Investment Purchase.

Nathan H. Brandt, as trustee, sold through Samuel Kronsky, 656 West 162d Street, a new six-story elevator apartment on a plot 125 by 100. The property, which is fully leased, has an annual rent roll of $82,000, and was held at $225,000. The buyer is the New York Protestant Episcopal School, which gave in part payment the six-story loft building at 390 Canal Street and the vacant plot, 185 by 100, at 515 to 529 East Seventy-ninth Street. The school will hold the Heights property as an investment.

Sale on Arden Street.

R. E. Read sold to Frederick Brown, the five-story apartment house at 21 Arden Street, on a plot 27 by 110, through Nehring Brothers and Byrne & Baumann.

Vandam Street Buyer.

Daniel P. Morse is the buyer of the vacant lot 23 by 107 at 22 Vandam Street, taking the property in part payment for 218 Church Street, from A. D. Juilliard. The broker in the deal was the Charles F. Noyes Company.

The Bronx Market.

J. Weckstein sold, through Samuel Cowen, the three-story business building at 770 East 161st Street, on a lot 22 by 100.

Henry U. Singhi sold to Rose Golembe, the plot, 42 by 95.10, on the south side of 183d Street, 84 feet east of Webster Avenue.

Brooklyn.

A client of the James R. Ross Company bought from C. S. Johnson the dwelling at 1,061 Jorgen Street.

Chas E. Rickerson sold for the estate of Hester A. Hassard the three-story dwelling at 593 Sixth Street; also for a client to Wallace A. Silsbe the four-story house at 25 Montgomery Place.

Realty Trust sold for the Alco Building Company the one-family detached dwelling, with garage, at 2,121 Sixty-third Street, Mapleton Park, to Abraham Fox.

R. A. Schlesing sold for Johanna Johanna the two four-story flats at 236 and 238 Irving Avenue to Theodore Bittner.

St. Albans Auction Results.

A total of $27,020 was realized for the 197 lots at St. Albans, L. I., sold last Saturday by the Jere Johnson, Jr., Company, or an average of $138 a lot. The remodeled farmhouse on a plot of seven lots at the corner of Farmers and St. Mark's Avenues was sold to Mrs. G. W. McDougal for $4,200.

Long Island.

The residence of Stephen A. Sewall, on Greenway South, Forest Hills, has been sold by Howard Goldsmith to W. L. Johnson of New York.

Westchester County.

Fish & Marvin sold for the Wynwood Realty Company a residence on Wynwood Avenue, Pelham, to a Boston client. The property was held at $15,000.

Bernardsville Hotel Sold.

The Claremont Hotel, in Bernardsville, N. J., situated at the corner of Mine Brook Road and Claremont Avenue, has been sold by Louis Schlesinger, Inc., for Mrs. Emma E. Lyon to Harry R. Coffin of Montclair. The same broker leased the property for a term of years for Mr. Coffin to Vincent J. Sisser.

New Jersey.

A. N. Gitterman sold for Reinold Lehman to Mrs. Margaret Crimmins of Brooklyn the quarter-acre chicken farm, with a dwelling and orchard, on First Avenue East, Roselle, N. J.

WALSH PREDICTS ELECTION OF SMITH

Joint Chairman of War Labor Board Indorses Nominee for Governor.

PRAISE FOR THE CANDIDATE

Says His Election "Will Advance the Progress of Human Justice Immeasurably."

Indorsement of Alfred E. Smith, Democratic candidate for Governor, continues to come from Washington. Yesterday Frank P. Walsh, joint Chairman with ex-President William H. Taft of the National War Labor Board and former Chairman of the Committee on Industrial Relations, followed the example of Secretary of State Robert Lansing and sent Mr. Smith a letter congratulating him upon his nomination for Governor and predicting his election. The letter said:

National War Labor Board, Washington, Sept. 7, 1918.

My Dear Mr. Smith: You have my most sincere congratulations upon your nomination as Governor.

Your personality, home life and public service, all of which naturally will be discussed during the coming campaign, will I am sure be highly inspirational to the young men of America struggling under adverse circumstances, perhaps, for the success in life which can only come to them as it has to you by manly endeavor and fidelity to duty. A just pride in the pre-eminence and splendor of the State of New York is the inheritance of Americans everywhere.

Your election as Governor, to which I confidently look forward, will in my opinion advance the cause of genuine democracy, cleanliness in public office and the progress of human justice immeasurably. With my warm personal regard and sincere wishes, always

Faithfully, FRANK P. WALSH.

Hon. Alfred E. Smith, New York City.

Mr. Smith turned movie actor for a short time yesterday and posed for film pictures which are to be a part of his Gubernatorial campaign in his office at the City Hall. He was also shown in action in the Aldermanic Chamber, calling a meeting of the Board. The fact that there will be no regular meeting of the Board until late in the month did not interfere with his going through all the motions.

Both candidates for Governor are to speak at the State Fair in Syracuse this week. Mr. Smith leaves today and expects to spend Wednesday at the fair grounds, which is a mecca for politicians of both the major parties during Fair week. Governor Whitman speaks on Thursday. Some of the Governor's friends yesterday expressed some concern over the date, owing to the fact that Thursday is the draft registration day, which may tend to cut down the attendance at the State Fair.

There was anoher change made yesterday in the time for the meeting of the Republican State Committee. Originally the meeting was scheduled for next Monday at 4 o'clock. This being the Jewish Day of Atonement, the meeting was shifted to the same hour the following day. Yesterday it was decided to hold the meeting at noon next Tuesday at the Republican Club. The candidates for State offices who were successful in the Republican primaries will be notified of their nomination at the Republican Club on Tuesday evening. Ex-Judge of the Court of Appeals, Nathan L. Miller of Syracuse has been chosen to deliver the notification speech.

The Democratic County Committee will meet for reorganization at Tammany Hall on Thursday night, when, it is expected, a successor to County Chairman Robert F. Wagner will be elected. The Republican County Committee will meet Friday night at Bryant Hall.

The fight for State Senator from the Richmond-Rockland district, which involved two women candidates, Mrs. P. E. Brewer of Richmond and Mrs. Helen McKelvey of Rockland, was settled yesterday by a count of the latest primary returns, which showed Mrs. Brewer to be 666 votes in the lead. Mrs. Brewer obtained a majority of 983 in Richmond County, while Mrs. McKelvey's majority in Rockland County was 377. There was a Democratic contest in the same district for State Senator, and latest returns show that John A. Lynch, a real estate dealer of West New Brighton, won over Francis L. Leman, the organization candidate, by about 600 votes. It was said yesterday that Mr. Leman may ask for a recount of the votes in several of the districts.

STAATS-ZEITUNG REPLIES.

Never Carried Any but America's Shield, It Tells Cologne Gazette.

The following editorial appears in this mornings issue of the New-Yorker Staats-Zeitung:

"According to a special cable dispatch from The Hague, published by THE TIMES, the Cologne Gazette criticises certain editorials of the Staats-Zeitung, saying, 'We must protest against the Staats-Zeitung carrying our shield. It can sing "America," but can leave the protection of the German name to the Germans.'

"The Cologne Gazette falls into the same error as our neighbor, The New York Tribune, in assuming that the Staats-Zeitung has ever had any purpose other than carrying the shield of America. We are today consistent with the eighty-six-year-old policy of helping to make good Americans of the German-speaking immigrants, an easy and agreeable task, as the war has shown.

"In this instance, as in many others, an attack upon the agrarian military leaders of Germany is construed as an attack upon the German people. If we had fewer hopes and less love for the real German nation, and less devotion to world democracy, we would be less severe upon the evil forces attempting to drag the great German nation to destruction.

"Upon the ashes of the selfish junkerdom will arise a new and glorious Germany, greater, happier, and more useful to the whole world."

STOP MAKING FORD CARS.

Plant Will Be Devoted Exclusively to Government Work.

DETROIT, Sept. 9.—Production of motor cars by the Ford Motor Company has been suspended entirely, it was officially announced at the plant here today.

The move will enable the company to devote its entire facilities to Government work, the announcement said.

FRANCE HONORS MARNE DAY

Pershing Sends a Wreath to Meaux in Behalf of American Army.

PARIS, Sept. 8.—All France paid tribute today to the heroes of the Marne in celebration of the fourth anniversary of that battle. The celebration took on added significance from the recent series of allied victories on the same fighting ground as four years ago and the participation of American troops in the new battle of the Marne.

Although the day was overcast there was a great pilgrimage to the battlefields, and many ceremonies were held in villages slowly recovering from the devastation wrought when the Germans made their first sweep toward Paris. The principal celebration was at Meaux, which bears the scars of the battle four years ago. Memorial services were held at the Meaux Cathedral, and were attended by representatives of the allied Governments, the army, navy, and all branches of public life. An impressive discourse was delivered by the Bishop of Arras, who likened the battle of the Marne to the miracle which brought about the relief of Orleans.

On the battlefield Jacques Dumesnil, Under-Secretary of War for Aviation, made an address on behalf of the French Government. Other ceremonies were held in many cities throughout France.

General Pershing sent a magnificent wreath on behalf of the American army to Meaux, where Bishop Marbeau himself placed amidst a number of graves close together. Two other wreaths were placed in the Cathedral at the foot of the statue of Joan of Arc. One wreath was inscribed "From the American Soldiers" and the other was from the Knights of Columbus.

The graves of thirty American soldiers who died in the American hospital at Meaux after the fighting at Château-Thierry were not forgotten, Bishop Marbeau reciting a special prayer in the little cemetery. General James G. Harbord represented General Pershing at the ceremonies.

MEN MUST REGISTER SEPT. 12.

Every man past his 18th birthday and who has not yet reached his 46th, except those already registered or in service, must register for the selective service draft on Sept. 12.

A. B. ELDREDGE FOUND DEAD

Pesident of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic Railway.

Arch B. Eldredge, President of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic Railway, was found dead in bed yesterday morning in his room at the Manhattan Hotel. Death was due to an internal hemorrhage.

Mr. Eldredge had been at the hotel since Saturday. Sunday afternoon he became suddenly ill. Dr. Brown of 331 West Eighteenth Street was summoned and remained with him until Monday morning. A short time after the physician left Mr. Eldredge was found dead.

The home of Mr. Eldredge was in St. Marquette, Mich. He was born in Fon du Lac, Wis., on May 12, 1853. He was a student at Princeton University and at Racine College, from which he was graduated in 1875 with the degree of A. B. In 1877 he was admitted to the bar of Wisconsin and became attorney for the Michigan Central and Northwestern Railroad in 1882. He was made general attorney in 1890, and in 1910 he became Vice President of the road. In 1911 he was elected President and general counsel. Later he became Presidnt of th Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic Railway.

SHE had heard of it all her life, but she had never realized what it meant, before. The audacity of the married man, the father of beautiful children, husband of a devoted and virtuous woman, to dare—to dare to send her such a letter. His terms were—hideous!

"Why, but I can't face it—Dean, my own husband,—he can't mean it!"

But he did.

"THE LUCK OF GERALDINE LAIRD"
Kathleen Norris's

absorbing story of modern marriage, of stumbles and hurts and high courage, begins this month in the Pictorial Review.

This searching story of a woman's heart, her awakening, her struggles,—the triumphant rebirth by which she wins independence and self-respect, even happiness, out of the ruins of her marriage, is full of the drama and climax so characteristic of Kathleen Norris.

Begin her fascinating story in the October issue. The first installment moves with a rush. And the story grows more compelling in each of the four issues

THE VILLAGE CUT-UP
By George Weston

If you tell a girl you get $50 per, why what are you going to do when she becomes "the only girl"—and you're getting $12? You simply have to "come across"—with $50. But how?

Wally did it by feeding the unsuspecting public. It's a delicious story of a lad who made good. There's a laugh and a chuckle in it.

They're on the road to Berlin

THE "Belted Earl" and the "bloomin' barber" are in the same trench to-day in the British line at Lens in Flanders.

The American Millionaire salutes one of the millions of Americans in the Vesle Valley about Bazoches.

The millionaire's and the milliner's daughter are working together in the hospitals and dugouts near the old Hindenburg Line.

The Red Cross and Y. M. C. A. activities make Kipling's famous quotation read like news, when he said, "The Colonel's Lady and Judy O'Grady are sisters under the skin."

The Blue Devils and Poilus, the Tommies and Yanks, Canadians from the North of us, Highlanders from the hills of Scotland, the Bersaglieri from the mountains of Italy, troops from India, Africa, Arabia and Australia—black and white, Jew and Gentile, Mohammedan and Christian—they're all on the Road to Berlin!

Just as the war has levelled ranks, the War Industries Board has standardized styles for next year in men's clothes, shoes and hats.

My standard in a hat is Quality that satisfies; Style that pleases; and a Price that's right.

WANTED

Energetic, High-Speed Executive to handle distribution to 250 Motion Picture Theatres in this district of The Mayor of Filbert, an absorbing, $200,000, eight-reel Triangle Special on the liquor question. Must know how to deal with local committees and to handle bankers and big business men and deal with the political situation with judgment and discretion.

One man—if he is big enough and fast enough—can organize and put this through. It is too immediate—too important a job to be handled in usual trade channels.

To fall in with the advertising plan and take full advantage of the present situation, local distributors must be taking contracts and settling dates on this picture, in every part of the United States, within fifteen days. So we are looking for the right man in 100 districts.

Large immediate profit for the successful ones.

No matter what your present business interests—here's a chance for you and a few friend to get into the profit end of the Motion Picture business on your own account in your own district, that hasn't come before; wouldn't have come now but for the impossibility of letting this picture take its turn in the routine of distribution—for Speed is Vital.

We shall close quickly. A telegram now (not tomorrow) may make all the difference. Address.
